FOREWORD

In this edition we present several new features: a word section with some exclusive material; a section devoted to recipes furnished by many world-famous restaurants, some of which have never before revealed the secrets of their art; a section giving tax help, with emphasis on the important provisions of the new law; reviews of the year by top writers in different fields; and many other additions.

It was possible to add these new features to our large volume of information because we increased the size of the book to 960 pages. We were pleased to be able to make these additions, which we think will broaden the Almanac's usefulness, without any sacrifice of basic reference material.

We had a lot of fun planning and developing the new material and we sincerely hope our readers will have the same experience in reading and using these sections.

It should be apparent to the reader that in choosing editors for our new sections, we have kept strictly to the rule that governs the preparation of the entire INFORMATION PLEASE ALMANAC: this is to select the outstanding authority in each field. After we select an authority to work on our plan for a new section, it is the practice of our editorial staff to consult with them on the material, the interpretation and the presentation. They are not always in agreement with our staff, but the final decision is always left to the authorities. After all, who are we to argue with Red Smith on sports, or Merriam-Webster on words, or Louis, the chef of Jack and Charlie's "21," on recipes.

You readers can argue with them if you want to and maybe you will. If you do not like "O Sole Mio" with an omelet or Webster's pronunciation of February, throw the bricks—we're strong. Or roses—we love them.

JANUARY 1954

FAMOUS MEN got into trouble and famous women got into love. Papa Ernest Hemingway had two plane crack-ups in Africa, and became one of the few persons in history to read his own obituary notices (since the newspapers for a time thought him lost). . . . Arthur Godfrey was accused of buzzing the control tower of an airport in a momentary fit of pique while piloting his own plane; he was grounded in punishment. . . . Marilyn Monroe, of architectural fame, was married to Joe DiMaggio, of baseball fame; they went to Japan and Korea on their honeymoon, and there were riots by GIs when one of them appeared on the stage. . . . In a New York hotel suite, Barbara Hutton, a woman of means, began her fifth honeymoon; the bridegroom was Porfirio Rubirosa, a diplomat by courtesy of the Dominican Republic, whom the tabloids called "The Big Dame Hunter." (See March) . . . Us ordinary people got excited about the soaring price of coffee—over a dollar a pound and still heading skyward. Restaurants boosted the price to 15 cents a cup, and some urged their customers to drink tea instead. . . . Broadway lost an old friend—South Pacific closed after a 5-year run during which 3½ million persons had seen it. . . . Sad mystery of the month was why those 21 American soldiers in Korea chose to exile themselves behind the Iron Curtain instead of returning home.

- 1 Robert F. Wagner, Jr., becomes Mayor of New York.
- 4 Eisenhower pledges "every legitimate means" will be used to avert a depression.
- 6 2nd session of 83rd Congress convenes.
- 10 British jet Comet airliner crashes off Italy, killing 35; Britain grounds Comets pending technical examination.
- 12 Dulles says new U. S. defense policy is based on instant massive retaliation.
- 19 General Motors announces $1 billion expansion program.
- 20-21 India turns over to Allies over 21,000 Chinese and North Korean prisoners who spurn communism; they are released Jan. 23.
- 21 Eisenhower calls for $65.6 billion budget, cutting spending by $5.3 billion.

- 21 1st atomic-powered submarine, Nautilus, launched at Groton, Conn.
- 22 Russian veto in U. N. Security Council kills plan for settling Syrian-Israeli dispute.
- 23 Tariff cuts urged by Eisenhower's Foreign Economic Policy Commission.
- 23-24 Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hemingway survive 2 plane crashes in Africa.
- 25 Sen. McCarthy agrees to change committee rules; 3 Democrats resume membership Jan. 26.
- 26 Senate ratifies (81-6) mutual security treaty with Republic of Korea.
- 28 21 pro-Red American soldiers in Korea go into custody of Communists.

FEBRUARY 1954

AS THOUGH we didn't have enough worries already, stories kept popping into the papers suggesting a connection between lung cancer and cigarette smoking. A magazine pole of advertising executives indicated that 23% of them had quit smoking. Scared tobacco companies rushed into the market with new brands of filter-tip cigarettes, and people switched to them in droves—not knowing, of course, whether the filters filtered out the right thing. . . . For those who chose a different line of worrying, there was the slacking off of business, the rising unemployment. Were we going to fall on our economic face? Nope, said Eisenhower; Uncle Sam will step in if necessary. . . . Out in Los Angeles, Jimmy Roosevelt was busy apologizing to 9 women whom he had named as playmates in a letter to his wife, and darned if she didn't make it public when she sued him. "Twasn't true, Jimmy moaned. . . . The beauties of television were appreciated by a frozen-food company which put out a "TV Dinner"—turkey, sweet potatoes and peas already cooked on a little compartmented tray; warm it up, take it into the living room and wolf it off your lap while staring at the set.

MARCH 1954

THE MIGHTIEST explosion known to man rocked the islands of the far Pacific and sent a chill into hearts all over the world. American scientists who set off the great H-bomb were awed when the blast turned out to be far more powerful than they had predicted. Radioactive ash rained on a Japanese fishing boat 80 miles away; 23 men of the crew were hospitalized for burns. The Atomic Energy Commission gave us the grim news that the H-bomb now could wipe out a city—any city—and showed us color movies of the first one we set off in 1952. . . . Quite erroneously, some people took to blaming the H-bomb for a mysterious epidemic that hit automobile windshields. City after city in the United States and Canada reported that the windshields were suddenly pock-marked, as though hit by invisible, miniature flying saucers. Probable explanation: normal erosion, plus publicity, plus mass psychology. . . . No myth was that check Howard Hughes wrote in Hollywood for $23,489,478.

It didn't bounce (his personal fortune has been estimated at $500 million) and it made him the first individual ever to be sole owner of a major motion picture producing company—RKO Pictures. . . . Barbara Hutton's fifth marriage had lasted 73 days when she announced separation from Porfirio Rubirosa.

APRIL 1954

PEOPLE BEGAN yelling "Point of order!" at each other. They weren't really crazy—just groggy from listening to too much Sen. McCarthy on radio and TV. The cast of characters on this extraordinary morning-and-afternoon show also included a rubber-faced Tennessee homicide lawyer (Jenkins), a youth who looked as though he were perpetually pouting (Cohn), a sober-sided Secretary of the Army (Stevens) who appeared somewhat bewildered by it all, and his special counsel (Welch) who looked like a character out of Dickens and who solemnly informed McCarthy, in response to a question, that a pixie is a close relative to a fairy. . . . But there was a far more ominous cloud on the horizon. Would the United States plunge into another war in Asia? We came within a hair of sending our warplanes into action to fight Communist rebels in Indo-China, but were held back by a "No" from Prime Minister Churchill. . . . On the home front, there were a couple of firsts. The first RCA color TV sets rolled off the production line, to sell for a mere thousand bucks. Also rolling were the first traveling stockbroker's offices—busses sent out by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane to roam New York's suburbs and lure people in to listen to their radio telephones bringing the latest stock market quotations.

MAY 1954

WEIRD by-product of the atomic age: Some of the dumbest gambling in America's wild gambling history was sweeping the country. Millions of shares of uranium stock—wildcat ventures—were being snapped up at prices ranging from one cent to a couple of dollars. So intense was the fever that housewives shot the entire family savings in unknown companies that just might strike uranium. . . . Another weird phenomenon that flourished was the "bootlegging" of new automobiles. Panicky dealers, overstocked, would defy the rules of the manufacturers and sell off surplus new cars at the wholesale price in order to get back their cash, thus bringing anguish to the hearts of the dealers who stuck by the rules. . . . On firm financial ground was Charles A. Lindbergh. The movies paid him what was said to be the highest price Hollywood ever paid for a book—in the neighborhood of a million dollars—for his best-selling autobiography, The Spirit of St. Louis. . . . The good old term "home run" was disappearing from baseball; television announcers called it a "Ballantine blast" or a "White Owl wallop" . . . And a future televiewer was being born every minute; we were in the midst of a birth-rate boom. The nation's under-18 population was up to 53.6 million as compared to 40.3 million in 1940.

- 29 FBI arrests 7 top Connecticut Communist-party leaders.
- DIED: 29—Anne O'Hare McCormick, 72.

JUNE 1954

NOW HOUSEWIVES could get back to work, for the televised Army-McCarthy hearings were over—after 36 days and 2 million words. Among other things, the TV audience heard that McCarthy followed a maxim taught him by "an Indian named Charlie" with whom he once worked on a farm. If another person approaches you in a not completely friendly fashion—advised Indian Charlie—start kicking that person as fast as possible below the belt. . . . A famous Britisher named Charlie (last name Chaplin, age 65) received good news at his self-exile home in Switzerland; his devotion to the Communist party line won him a Stalin peace prize, value about $14,000. . . . In New York, a man named Bob (last name Young, age 57) won the greatest railroad battle of the century. Backed by two Texas oil millionaires, he seized control of the New York Central, the world's second biggest railroad. . . . Latest trend in industry: diversification. For example, the Stanley Warner Corp., operator of a big movie chain, began manufacturing girdles, baby pants and foam pillows. . . . A confession came from Proctor & Gamble, makers of Ivory Soap ("It Floats"). In the 75 years of this soap's existence, there have been seven scandalous and mysterious instances in which a bar sank to the bottom and stayed there.

- 1 Special AEC panel recommends Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer be dropped as atomic consultant and denied secrets, though he is called "loyal and discreet."
- 5 Greece, Yugoslavia and Turkey announce new Balkan military alliance.
- 8 Dulles announces U. S. will not intervene alone in Indo-China.
- 12 Premier Joseph Laniel resigns. His successor (June 18) is Pierre Mendès-France.
- 14 Revealed that late Harold G. Hoffman, former Governor of New Jersey, left letter confessing he embezzled $300,000.
- 15 Allies end negotiations for Korea peace at Geneva conference, blaming Communist intransigence.
- 17 Army-McCarthy inquiry ends.

- 22 Don Hollenbeck, 49, radio news commentator, kills himself.
- 28 Eisenhower-Churchill communique calls for Southeast Asian defense treaty like NATO.
- 29 Quentin Reynolds awarded $175,001 in libel suit against Westbrook Pegler.
- 29 AEC votes 4-1 that Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer is security risk.
- 29 Steel industry grants package wage rise equivalent to 12 cents.
- DIED: 6—Gabriel Pascal, 60; 19—Sen. Lester C. Hunt (Dem., Wyo.), 61.

JULY 1954

FOR TWENTY-TWO years—up until this month—the world had never been without a shooting war on some spot of the globe. (Remember the little wars that ushered in the big one—Japan vs. China, Italy vs. Ethiopia, the Spanish Civil War?) Now, at last, no man was officially assigned to kill a fellow man. A truce was reached in Indo-China after nearly eight dreary years of jungle-and-swamp warfare. But the cost of peace was ominous: France turned over 14 million people of northern Viet-Nam to Communist rule. . . . Here at home, a mean old professor at the University of Chicago complained in solemn print that the words of most of our popular songs are unspeakably bad. Fiddlesticks! Hadn't he heard the new song that went: "If a Hottentot taught a tot to talk ere the tot could totter . . ."? And didn't the professor know that "I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus" has now sold some 2 million copies? . . . At the movies, either we were getting nostalgic, or else a new generation was coming along, or both. That 17-year-old veteran, Gone With the Wind, was revived in its original three-hour version, and it went almost to the top of the money-maker list. (Top was The Caine Mutiny.) . . . As for parlor games, maybe we were a wee bit whacky. The Bingo boom took on such proportions that it became a political issue in New Jersey, and in Los Angeles a dog-food manufacturer put it on TV under the name of Marco.

- 1 French abandon 1,000 sq. mi. of Indo-China Red River delta area to Communists.
- 2 Guatemala revolt ends; Communists ousted from government and outlawed.
- 4 British meat rationing ends—last of wartime controls.

- 5 Russia has demanded recall of 2 U. S. diplomats in Moscow, apparently retaliating for our expulsion of 3 Soviet diplomats caught spying in U. S.
- 7 Eisenhower indicates he opposes Sen. Knowland's move to take U. S. out of U. N. if it admits Red China.
- 8 Col. Castillo Armas, who led Guatemala revolution, is head of ruling junta.
- 12 Eisenhower asks $50-billion highway program.
- 13 House kills health reinsurance plan.
- 20 Roy M. Cohn resigns as chief counsel to Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee.
- 21 Indo-China truce signed at Geneva conference; Reds get half of Viet-Nam.
- 22 Dr. Otto John, head of West German political secret service, defects to East Germany.
- 23 2 Red Chinese planes shoot down British airliner in South China Sea.
- 26 U. S. carrier-based planes shoot down 2 attacking Red Chinese planes off Hainan Island, where British airliner was downed July 23.
- 26 Pres. Rhee of Korea confers with Eisenhower in Washington; addresses joint session of Congress July 28; urges war on Red China.
- 27 Britain agrees to abandon Suez Canal Zone; promises Egypt to withdraw all troops in 20 months.
- 27 13-day filibuster in Senate ends; atomic-energy bill passed 57-28.
- 31 France proclaims internal autonomy for Tunisia; riots follow in Morocco.

AUGUST 1954

NOT CONTENT with all the gold pouring in from his magazines Time, Life and Fortune, Mr. Henry Luce put out a new one called Sports Illustrated. The heading on the advertisements for it was: "The Golden Age." Well, maybe it was. . . . At Reno, Barbara Sears Rockefeller, known as "Bobo," got a divorce from Winthrop Rockefeller. Her record settlement was $2 million in cash and $3.5 million in trust funds and allowances for herself and son Winnie, 5. The total fell short of the sum the United States paid Russia for Alaska. . . . At the White House, President Eisenhower felt confident enough to announce flatly: "The paramount fact about the economy at midyear is that the recent decline in economic activity has come to a halt." (He was in a good mood, too, about how well the 83rd Congress had behaved; according to his figures, it had passed 54 out of 64 measures in his Republican program.) . . . The Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, minister of the Marble Collegiate Church in New York City, must have felt that the age was fairly golden; his book, The Power of Positive Thinking, topped the nonfiction best-seller list on which it had happily roosted for 94 weeks. . . . And in a nonmercenary sense, a golden age had dawned in man's eternal footrace against time. Never before had man run a mile in less than four minutes. But now two men were doing it—Bannister of England and Landy of Australia.

- 4 Eisenhower outlines "good partner" philosophy for U. S. foreign relations.
- 5 3-year Anglo-Iranian oil dispute settled; Iran will pay $85 million for nationalizing British properties.
- 6 Emilie Dionne, 20, one of the quintuplets, dies after epileptic seizures.
- 10 Congress approves flexible farm-price supports.
- 10 Construction of St. Lawrence River power project inaugurated.
- 10 Studebaker workers vote to take wage cut rather than risk end of ailing auto company.
- 17 Herbert Hoover, Jr., named Under Secretary of State.
- 19 Congress passes bill outlawing Communist party.
- 20 Congress adjourns.
- 22 6-nation Brussels conference on revising European Defense Community ends in disagreement.
- 24 Pres. Getulio Vargas of Brazil kills himself after Army overthrows him.
- 27 Chinese Communists reveal they raided Nationalist island of Quemoy in Formosa Strait on Aug. 23.
- 30 French National Assembly kills European Defense Community treaty, 319-264.
- 31 Subcommittee reports on Army-McCarthy inquiry blame both sides.
- 31 Hurricane Carol rakes Long Island and New England; more than 50 dead.

SEPTEMBER 1954

'T WAS A GLOOMY month for the men. That old spoil-view, Christian Dior of Paris, was flattening down the female architecture at its most outstanding points. He tagged his new gowns the "H-line." Scoffed Jane Russell: "If a woman's got it, you can't do anything to suppress it." Retorted a Dior man: "She presents no problems we can't handle." Those in favor of the H-line argued that Dior was doing a favor to the vast majority of women by cutting down the advantages enjoyed by such persons as Jane Russell, Marilyn Monroe and Gina Lollobrigida. . . . Six of his colleagues solemnly ruled that Sen. McCarthy's conduct was unbecoming to a Senator, and that he should be censured. . . . The H-bomb claimed its first victim—a Japanese fisherman who died in Tokyo as the result of radioactive fall-out from the American test explosion in the Pacific six months previously. . . . Our own farsighted Railway Express Agency burrowed into Iron Mountain, near Hudson, N. Y., and hollowed out a huge ventilated cave containing concrete vaults. For a rental of $10 the first year, $5 thereafter, you could seal up your precious documents, safe from either A-bombs or H-bombs. Couldn't seal yourself up, though.

OCTOBER 1954

CONSTERNATION had filled the free nations of the West in the last days of August when France killed the European Defense Community—the project, two years in the making, for uniting the democracies against the menace in the East. Now, before our happily astonished eyes, a miracle took place. In the incredibly short time of 7 weeks, a new structure for Europe was built—the Western European Union. Germany, the bitter foe of 9 years ago, was invited into NATO as our new ally and urged to rearm. . . . At home, the voices of politicians filled the air, and their faces scowled at us on TV. The issue in this Congressional-election year was simple: Coattails. Could Republicans (even some who didn't love him) ride into the Senate and the House on the popularity of Ike? . . . Marilyn Monroe's skirt was sent flying high for the edification of photographers by a wind machine underneath a subway grating on a New York City sidewalk. Not many days later, the 9-month-old "romance of the century" busted up; she and Joe DiMaggio fanned out. . . . On the subject of romance, Liberace had this to say: He knew a girl he'd like to marry if she'd wait a year. . . . Great things were stirring in the doll industry. A New York firm manufactured a doll that could kneel as though praying. A jealous New Jersey firm created a doll that could acquire a sun-tan. But good old Gimbels claimed the championship with a double-action doll that could not only wet, but also blow its nose.

- 3 9 nations sign Protocol of London as substitute for EDC.
- 4 Marilyn Monroe to get divorce from Joe DiMaggio.
- 5 Italy and Yugoslavia agree to divide Trieste.
- 7 Owen Lattimore indicted again as perjurer on Communist sympathies.
- 9 Joseph S. Petersen, Jr., employee of Natl. Security Agency, accused of mis-handling classified documents.
- 11 Secy. of Defense Wilson says he likes bird dogs better than kennel-fed dogs; remark causes political furor throughout nation.
- 11 Russians give Port Arthur to Communist China.
- 16 Hurricane Hazel hits 8 states in Eastern U. S.
- 16 Rep. Douglas R. Stringfellow, Utah Republican, admits his story of war heroism was hoax; quits race Oct. 18.
- 17 Clifford P. Case, N. J. Senatorial candidate, calls attack on sister's loyalty false and "dirty."
- 18 Trial of Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, charged with bludgeoning wife to death, begins in Cleveland.
- 19 Sen. Irving M. Ives, N. Y., links gubernatorial opponent Averell Harriman to 1930 scandal.

- 20 Anthony Eden made Knight of Garter.
- 21 3 Americans share Nobel Prize for medicine and physiology for fight against polio: Dr. John F. Enders, Harvard; Dr. Thomas Weller, Harvard; Dr. Frederick Robbins, Western Reserve.
- 23 Protocols signed in Paris giving West Germany sovereignty and admitting it to NATO and Western European Union. France and Germany settle their Saar quarrel.
- 25 First televised Cabinet meeting; Dulles reports on new Western European Union.
- 26 Queen Mother Elizabeth of England reaches U. S. for 3-week visit.
- 26 U. S. Atomic Energy Commission confirms a new series of Russian nuclear tests.

28 Ernest Hemingway wins 1954 Nobel prize for literature.

REVIEWS OF THE YEAR

SPORTS

by RED SMITH

Sports Columnist, N.Y. Herald Tribune

IN 1954 a novel was published under the terse title, The Year the Yankees Lost the Pennant. In 1954 the Yankees lost it.

In the fictional account, a Washington fan sold his soul to the devil in order to accomplish New York's overthrow. In real life, the Yankees sold their pitcher, Vic Raschi, to Gussie Busch, a cherubic St. Louis brewer. Raschi had won 13 games toward New York's fifth successive championship in 1953. With Raschi pitching for the Cardinals, the Yankees lost the 1954 race to Cleveland by 8 games.

The 4-minute mile, unattainable goal of footracers since man learned to tell time, became a commonplace in 1954. But then, it was a year of haste all over, with owners of baseball teams in a frantic race to fire their managers and move their clubs out of town.

At the close of the 1953 season, the impoverished St. Louis Browns had jumped to Baltimore and become Orioles in the hope of duplicating the astonishing financial success enjoyed by the Boston Braves after shifting to Milwaukee in the spring. That was the start; here's what followed:

The Cincinnati Reds fired their manager, Rogers Hornsby, and hired Birdie Tebbetts. After leading the Dodgers to two consecutive pennants, Charley Dressen was eased out of Brooklyn because of his wife's inability to spell the term, "one year." He was replaced by Walter Alston, a schoolmaster from the minor leagues.

Jimmy Dykes was sacked by the Philadelphia Athletics, who promoted Eddie Joost to the vacancy. Baltimore dropped Marty Marion and picked up Dykes. The Chicago Cubs bounced Phil Cavarretta in favor of Stan Hack. The Philadelphia Phillies nudged Steve O'Neill aside and employed Terry Moore.

Paul Richards quit the Chicago White Sox to take Dykes' job in Baltimore and Marion inherited Richards' portfolio. The Washington Senators canned Bucky Harris and brought Dressen back. The Boston Red Sox streeted Lou Boudreau and called in Pinkey Higgins. The Detroit Tigers waved farewell to Freddy Hutchinson and welcomed Harris. The Phillies got rid of Moore and went to the bushes for Mayo Smith.

Joost waited to learn where the Athletics' franchise would go and whether he would accompany it. The merry-go-round whirled on.

The year began on a cultural note, with undergraduates furthering their education in football "bowl" games promoted to stimulate tourist business in Southern California, Florida, Louisiana, Texas and way-points. For the next two months, basketball players gangled across varnished floors, without a single betting scandal, and televised fist fighters punched each other's faces 4 or 5 nights a week for the benefit of the razor-blade and beer trade.

Then it was March, and the baseball teams were in training camps, and the sports year was really under way. In his first day in uniform, Ted Williams, the lean and hungry batsman of the Boston Red Sox, fell down and broke his collar bone. In his first exhibition game, Milwaukee's Bobby Thomson slid and broke an ankle.

Thomson, whose memorable home run against Brooklyn had won the 1951 pennant for the New York Giants, was to have performed a similar service for Milwaukee. Playing without him until August, the Braves finished third.

Williams got into the Boston batting order in May with a metal pin holding his shoulder together. In a double-header in Detroit he went to bat 9 times, made 8 hits including two home runs. "It hurt like hell," he said.

"When they take that pin out," said the Yankees' Casey Stengel, "I want it. Wanta stick it into a couple of my guys."

Though their pitching was a trifle thin and some of their key players were growing old, the Yankees won 103 games, 4 more than their best in 5 championship years under Stengel. Inasmuch as Cleveland won 111, this entitled them to go bird shooting the day after the season closed without tarrying for the World Series.

For that matter, the Indians didn't tarry long. They were widely favored to win the World Series from the New York Giants, even though the Giants had an implausible outfielder named Willie Mays who had won the National League batting championship in his first full season in the big league, and a remarkable young pitcher named Johnny Antonelli, obtained from Milwaukee in the trade for Bobby Thomson. Except for these two, the Giants were essentially the same team that had finished fifth in 1953; they were considered a lucky club.

They stayed lucky. A pinch-batter named Dusty Rhodes won the first World Series game for New York with a pop fly home run in the tenth inning. Rhodes tied the second game with a single and made victory secure with another home run. He won the third with a 2-run single.

The Giants completed Cleveland's destruction in the fourth game without even calling upon Rhodes. They were saving him in case they should need somebody to walk on water.

Two fights for the heavyweight championship of the world topped the year's operations in boxing. The same men engaged in both, with widely dissimilar effect.

In June Ezzard Charles, bull fiddle virtuoso, former champion and perennial challenger, faced up to Rocky Marciano for 15 rounds, scarcely finching from the champion's terrible fists. Though he lost the decision by an indisputable margin, Charles won wild applause for stoicism when he walked unaided from the ring, his face a gibbous bubble of pain.

In September, Charles was clubbed to the floor 3 times inside of 8 rounds. After the third fall he got up at the count of 10, a fraction of a second too late. Or, as some ringsiders reasoned, just late enough to avoid unnecessary additional punishment.

This time it was Marciano's face that looked like a detour on Highway 66. His nose was split lengthwise. Blood from a cut near his left eye impaired his vision. He needed only one eye, though, to survey the heavyweight picture, barren of qualified contenders.

In the divisions below the heavyweights, it was a relatively quiet year. Kid Gavilan, the welterweight champion, tried for Bobo Olson's middleweight title and missed by considerable. Before the bout Gavilan and his brain trust denied reports that he had an injured hand; afterwards they allowed that the hand might have been injured, after all.

Scheduled to defend his title against Philadelphia's Johnny Saxton, in September, Gavilan backed out for an unusual reason. He had the mumps. When the match was rescheduled, Saxton found an equally good reason for calling it off but didn't take advantage of it. He was under sentence to jail.

Fined $600 and given a 15-day sentence for ignoring a raft of traffic summonses, Saxton talked a New York court into leaving him at liberty until he could fight Gavilan on October 20. Since the time of Yankee Sullivan a century ago, plenty of jailbirds have fought for titles. Up to Saxton's time, the record books listed no instance of a jailbird-elect fighting for a championship. After winning the decision and title in a wretched exhibition, Saxton persuaded the judge to suspend the jail sentence.

As every year must, 1954 meant the last of some headlined sports figures. Ted Williams insisted it was his last season of baseball but some of the men who knew him best took the announcement with mental reservations. There was no doubt at all about Native Dancer, greatest race horse of his time and the most popular (because of television) of any day.

Suffering a recurrence of the sore foot that shortened his 1953 campaign, the glamorous gray was returned to stud on Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Sagamore Farm in Maryland. As though to balance the scales, Sugar Ray Robinson, the best fighter of his generation, announced his unretirement after two years as a song-and-dance man.

Among the 3-year-olds of 1954, there was no such standout as Native Dancer had been a year earlier. A little California horse, Determine, won the Kentucky Derby, and an hour or two later a stablemate won another $100,000 race on the Pacific Coast.

Possibly this unprecedented double persuaded Andy Crevolin, owner of the winners, that no metal could touch him. At any rate, he submitted to a tape-recorded interview in which he confessed, among other things, that his stable didn't try to win with a young horse the first 2 or 3 times out, preferring to educate the horse (and those who bet on him) in the facts of racing. Scandalized California racing authorities suspended Crevolin and his stable temporarily.

Determine passed up the Preakness, second item in the 3-year-olds' spring triple, and that stakes went to Hasty Road, the blaze-faced colt that was second in the Derby. Then the clever veteran among trainers, Max Hirsch, sent a newcomer named High Gun out to win the Belmont Stakes, and when autumn arrived High Gun still looked best of the lot.

Meanwhile a handsome bay 2-year-old was picking up some of the following Native Dancer left behind. This was Nashua, trained by 80-year-old Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons and ridden by Eddie Arcaro. In 60-odd years on the turf, Mr. Fitz had had winners of virtually every American race of note except Saratoga's Hopeful and Belmont's Futurity. Nashua expunged the exceptions, became the long-range pin-up colt of 1955.

College football lost a personage who occupied a position comparable with Native Dancer's on the track. Frank Leahy, coach of almost unbeatable Notre Dame, took heed when an abdominal spasm knocked him out during the Notre Dame-Georgia Tech game of 1953. He retired, succeeded by 26-year-old Terry Brennan, a Notre Dame halfback of recent vintage.

"Why did you pick Brennan as your successor?" Leahy was asked.

"I didn't," he said. "The priests at Notre Dame did. Every man on my staff was capable of handling a job as head coach for any college. I wrote a letter describing each man's qualifications as I saw them. Then the fathers made their own decision."

"You don't think for a moment," it was suggested, "that your letter conditioned their thinking?"

Mr. Leahy suddenly became interested in a picture on the wall.

In its first game under Brennan, Notre Dame polished off a powerful adversary, Texas. Then Notre Dame lost to Purdue, and the heat was off the young coach. From here on his teams would win or lose, same like anybody else's.

Vic Seixas, 31-year-old heir to a Philadelphia bathtub fortune, won the national tennis championship. Ed Furgol, a professional with a withered arm, took the National Open golf title. This was a great victory, encompassing the defeat of a genuinely great competitor—Ben Hogan. We may not see Ben's like again.

1954: THE YEAR OF NONFICTION

by JOSEPH HENRY JACKSON

Book Critic, San Francisco Chronicle

SIX OR EIGHT years ago it seemed that, with the war safely past, American fiction might well be in for a vigorous renewal. There was in fact a flurry; several new young novelists appeared, all notably articulate and all technically able, and it looked as though a fresh generation might have something important to say in fiction.

It did not happen. Too many of the new young men shot their bolt in their first novels. Too many of the older ones were bewildered by the rapidly changing world. As 1954 came to its close, the popular sport among critics was the holding of symposiums on such questions as "Is the novel dead?"

Laments are doubtless premature. The year saw such fine fiction as Harriette

Arnow's The Dollmaker and Wright Morris's The Huge Season. There was William Faulkner's uneven yet towering fiction-edifice, A Fable. A 35-year-old first novelist, Milton Lott, turned up with The Last Hunt, a tale of the last days of the buffalo, to which he brought a maturity seldom granted to first novelists and even more seldom applied to a theme so easily confused with the "Western." In spite of these and a few more, the fiction-level was mediocre-to-low.

Various reasons have been assigned for this. Book publishing is not actually big business; its annual take is something like half of that of the dog-food industry, for instance. But it is big enough so that, when economic pressures tend to make mediocrity the safest commodity, publishers' selections can affect American reading to a considerable degree. In 1954, partly due to the mushrooming growth of soft-cover book publishing, the regular publishers by and large plumped for formula-fiction as at least a fairly sure bet—and the safest in that field is the standard "historical" costume-piece, which reached a kind of costumed (and uncostumed) peak. For this and other reasons—chiefly perhaps a generalized public uneasiness about today's world which was translated into the desire to know more about it—nonfiction found a new and surprisingly large body of readers.

A good deal was frankly of the escape sort. There was the exciting and very well done Of Whales and Men by R. B. Robertson. There were the mountain-climbing books, headed by Sir John Hunt's Conquest of Everest, and there was a parallel upturn in books about far places; Heinrich Harrer's Seven Years in Tibet was one of the really good ones. There were a dozen or so now-it-can-be-told narratives concerning war adventures; here the best came out of England, with Ewen Montagu's The Man Who Never Was a prime example. And there was a sound literary-historical performance of an exceptionally high order, The Reason Why, in which an English-woman, Cecil Woodham-Smith, examined in fascinating detail the background of the disastrous charge of the Light Brigade in the Crimean War.

But it was serious nonfiction, informative, sometimes hortatory, always purporting to answer the reader's questions about his world, that led the lists.

Elmer Davis's But We Were Born Free remained a country-wide best-seller for months. Among several thoughtful analyses of modern man and where he seems to be going, The Measure of Man by Joseph Wood Krutch was least dogmatic, best written, and best calculated to help bridge the gap between the social philosopher and the lay reader. Two men, both widely influential among American opinion makers, published books made up of lectures they had delivered to university audiences. One was Adlai Stevenson's nonpartisan Call to Greatness, the other was George F. Kennan's Realities of American Foreign Policy; both urged a more honest facing of world situations, greater awareness that the idea of world-without-conflict may remain long unattained, and especially an intelligent humility as the basis of any American approach in dealings with other nations, particularly our potential friends.

The last four volumes of Arnold Toynbee's massive Study of History appeared late but reached an audience far larger than the most sanguine publisher of such a work could have hoped for, even a few years ago. Pearl Buck's autobiographical My Several Worlds was expected to reach the large body of her admirers; but it found many more who read it because they were troubled about Asia and hoped to make contact through a writer who knew that continent at first hand. This was true also of The Memoirs of Aga Khan, even after it became clear that the book was no gossipy chitchat by a rich man who liked horse-racing, but a serious commentary on Far Eastern politics from the viewpoint of one who took part in large affairs for more than half a century as leader of some 70 million Ismaili Muslims.

Americans, moreover, wanted to understand more of the less familiar parts of their own country, not only politically but physically, wherefore they read (to note only two among many) such outstandingly well done books as Wallace Stegner's Beyond the 100th Meridian and Paul Horgan's poetically written and richly informed Great River: The Rio Grande, both of which related regional understanding to the whole American scene.

In sum, then, the swing to nonfiction in 1954, although partly due to publishing economics and lessened confidence in our novelists, also derived from the phenomenally larger number of Americans who wanted to form opinions (and perhaps relieve their fears) and so needed background information to help them. The eager reception accorded books about The Bomb and several discussions of global strategy—Thomas Finletter's Power and Policy, for example—confirms this belief.

Yet it is plain that in the public's judgment, expressed in what it actually read in 1954, the novel is running weakly. Barring a powerful reorientation, which can come only through the presence on publishers' lists of novels with something serious to say, the present trend may well continue in 1955, and fiction will find itself again in a poor second place.

TELEVISION-RADIO

by MERRILL PANITT

Managing Editor, TV Guide

IN THE AVERAGE home, surveys reported, Americans spent more time sleeping or working than they did watching television—but not much more. The exact figures were 5 hours a day during peak winter viewing months and 3 hours and 40 minutes a day during the summer ebb.

They watched I Love Lucy and Dragnet, The Lone Ranger and Comedy Hour, Superman and Howdy Doody and Arthur Godfrey. They also watched what proved to be a combination of these—the Mundt Committee Hearings on Senator Joseph R. McCarthy and Army Secretary Stevens.

While the television industry busied itself with plans for adding color to the sight-and-sound medium and producing elaborate star-studded "spectaculars" and "extravaganzas," housewives parked in front of their television sets for weeks to follow the big soap opera from Washington. When it finally ended, the ladies went back to their housework, each of them happily convinced that the men they had picked as heroes were still heroes and the ones they had labeled villains were still villains.

To the public, the introduction of color television was interesting, the way a chinchilla coat is interesting. Demand from consumers was practically nonexistent, for the first sets introduced bore a $1,000 price tag and boasted a 12-inch picture—about half the size of the average black-and-white picture.

So, partly to arouse more excitement over color, and partly to add some variety to television entertainment, NBC's president, Sylvester (Pat) Weaver, announced that his network would colorcast a series of once-a-month "spectacular" programs featuring movie and stage stars in their TV debuts. CBS promptly grabbed the ball by announcing a series of color "extravaganzas" and ABC hired Walt Disney as an antidote.

Some of the first spectaculars and extravaganzas were, at least, artistic successes. All but the few industry executives who had color sets in their homes, and the few thousand curious viewers who watched color sets in dealers' showrooms, saw the programs in black and white. But newspaper critics weren't always too kind, and most viewers considered each $250,000 production another show, to be dialed in only if it promised to be better than what was on competing stations.

There was no doubt about it, though.

Color was definitely on its way. Two companies began manufacturing 21-inch color tubes, and before too long, they promised, sets would sell for $500. The networks continued their spectaculars and extravaganzas, and telecast more and more of their regular shows in compatible color.

Meanwhile, back in the living room, the ladies were "oh'ing and 'ah'ing over Liberace, a chubby, toothy, wavy-haired piano player whose virtuosity at winking into a camera, some thought, exceeded his piano technique. That other great favorite of the ladies, Arthur Godfrey, made headlines by conducting the most public firing since Lincoln dismissed McClellan.

One of Godfrey's male vocalists, Julius LaRosa, had hired himself an agent. He also was in love with one of Godfrey's female vocalists—who happened to be married. Godfrey fired LaRosa in full view of his television audience and within earshot of his radio audience. A few months later Godfrey, flying his own plane, buzzed an airport tower in New Jersey. For this he got more headlines and suspension of his pilot's license.

Betty Hutton did one television show, her debut in the medium, and promptly announced she was retiring not only from television, but from all of show business. Jackie Gleason slipped during a comedy skit and broke a leg—on the air. During a rehearsal Red Skelton ran head-on into a trick door that was supposed to fall apart. It didn't and he went to the hospital with a concussion. Mario Lanza sang beautifully during an extravaganza but it turned out that he was merely moving his lips in time to recordings made several years earlier. Wally Cox got married—on and off the air—so that now there is a Mrs. Peepers and a Mrs. Cox.

Television shows covered life—real and fictional—literally from the womb to the tomb. Medic (so closely patterned after the realistic Dragnet that wags promptly labeled it "Drugnet") presented a Caesarian birth. Dr. Francis Horwich's Ding Dong School, Howdy Doody, Pinky Lee and others acted as TV baby sitters. There were educational programs on local stations and networks for school-age children, and TV covered the adventures of teen-agers in Meet Corliss Archer, Father Knows Best and a slew of others. For those who were engaged to marry, there was Two in Love ("Tell all about how he proposed and win prizes"); and for those who favored a wedding on TV, Bride and Groom was at hand. When you had children but couldn't afford them, succor was offered by Strike It Rich. If you needed appliances or a nest egg for middle age, On Your Account, Dollar a Second, Beat the Clock, Stop the Music and Break the Bank came to the rescue. Life Begins at Eighty was for oldsters; and for those interested in funny adventures even after death, Topper starred ghosts.

The dramatic programs already had skimmed through most plays in the public domain, from Aeschylus to Ibsen, but they found some more and could always repeat Shakespeare. Then they did Broadway hits, Broadway flops and some plays that couldn't have reached Broadway by any stretch of even a TV producer's imagination. Robert Sherwood, Ben Hecht, William Faulkner and other literary lights tried writing TV plays but flopped. Yet unknowns like Paddy Chayevsky, Robert Alan Aurthur and Horton Foote ground out TV play after TV play and scored with critics. New books, old books, books that hadn't been published yet were adapted for the medium—and still the problem was material. The gaping entertainment maw could not be satisfied—but the schedule read 8 hour-long dramas a week and the shows had to go on. Sometimes one wondered why.

There really were no startlingly new ideas. Dragnet had been a success showing Los Angeles detectives at work, so the new shows included Medic (Los Angeles doctors at work), Alarm (Los Angeles firemen at work) and Lineup (a switch—San Francisco detectives at work). I Love Lucy, already imitated, copied and rewritten for other situation comedies, turned up in still more guises.

Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca, successful

comics together, fell prey to declining ratings and split up. Caesar got a show of his own. So did Miss Coca. Critics agreed there was something lacking in their new programs—each other. Bob Hope's contribution to TV comedy was chiefly osculatory (his writers kept him busy bussing his pretty guest stars when they ran out of jokes), and Milton Berle continued to offer the new, humble Berle.

One bright new comic stood out like a thoroughbred in a glue factory corral—George Gobel. Without slapstick or fanfare, he was funny.

As usual, home television had 39 weeks of good entertainment during the cool months and 13 weeks of repeats, quizzes and other time-fillers during the summer. The industry simply couldn't forget its background—radio and its yearly summer hiatus—and no one was daring enough to offer a really good summer schedule to attract viewers.

As for radio, its summer entertainment hiatus was stretching into fall, winter and spring. Disc jockeys and soap operas filled the air during the days, warmed over dramas and whodunits during the nights—until the disc jockeys took over again. There was even room for some fine (unsponsored) music.

But many radio stations were making more money than ever before. No broadcaster looks forward to great profit from network shows, and the number of network shows was steadily decreasing. The more time spent on local disc jockeys and local advertising, the more money flows into a station's coffers. So in 1954, radio was a profitable business indeed. Not too entertaining for the listener, of course, but business is, after all, business.

THEATER

by LOUIS KRONENBERGER

Drama Critic, Time Magazine

WHATEVER VERDICT the history books may bestow upon the past year on Broadway, there is no doubt of its almost spectacular superiority over the year that preceded it. During that deplorable earlier period, it proved something of an achievement for a show not to be downright bad; during the more glowing stretch of which I write some twenty-odd productions have, at the very least, been easy to sit through. Recently, indeed, there has been an absolute spate of adequacy, an over-abundance of slightly-better-than-average. Play after play has at any rate been good enough to start an argument.

But the striking and encouraging fact is less how superior the past year seems in relation to its predecessor than how different. The difference, in the future perspective of history, may well seem a matter of geography. For what broke down last year was happily not Broadway itself, but the rigid and rather comically snobbish distinction between Broadway and Off-Broadway. Where a show lived ceased to be the key to what it was: the Lower East Side suddenly had a certain dash, Greenwich Village a certain propriety. Much the most encouraging single event in the recent theater is the founding of the Phoenix on lower Second Avenue—an organization that, even in its upsy-downsy first year, was always plainly working with something, and toward something. There were vital flaws in its production of, say, Coriolanus, but the important thing was that Coriolanus got produced. And at least once, with a musical that went on to Broadway—with The Golden Apple—the Phoenix offered something very successfully individual.

And other Off-Broadway productions—Calder Willingham's End as a Man, Alfred Hayes' Girl on the Via Flaminia—not only got to Broadway but also contributed something alive and refreshing. And on Broadway or off, it became a year of promising newcomers and of interesting first plays: not only End as a Man and The Girl on the Via Flaminia, but Jane Bowles' brilliantly imperfect In the Summerhouse, Louis Peterson's chronicle of a young Negro's growing up, Take a Giant Step, Julian Foss' spotlighting of "Madison Avenue" careerism, The Magic and the Loss; and most successfully in box-office terms, Robert Anderson's tale of a prep-school boy unjustly accused of homosexuality, Tea and Sympathy. These newcomers proved a very saving thing, for virtually none of Broadway's better-known old-timers—whether Robert Sherwood or Arthur Miller or John van Druten or Moss Hart or Lillian Hellman or Tennessee Williams or Thornton Wilder or George Kelly or Mary Chase—so much as put in an appearance. Among all the hits of '53-'54, about the only old-timer to be represented was George S. Kaufman with The Solid Gold Cadillac; and even he collaborated with Howard Teichmann.

The odd thing about such a better-than-average period is the number of things it didn't feature or even include. Besides the dearth of name playwrights, there was a decided dearth of musicals, there was an almost total lack of thrillers, and—on Broadway itself—a complete lack of revivals. But if neither Hamlets nor whodunits, there has yet been a fair enough showing in terms of comedy and of drama alike—with the newcomers forming the backbone of the drama squad. If the biggest smash of all, John Patrick's Teahouse of the August Moon, is a comedy, the next biggest, The Caine Mutiny Court Martial, is a piece of excellent theater. Comedy has turned up in a great variety of forms—not only the usual domestic and farcical trifles, but philosophical comedy in T. S. Eliot's Confidential Clerk, psychoanalytical comedy in Edward Chodorov's Oh Men, Oh Women, the comedy of manners in Samuel Taylor's Sabrina Fair, and in Liam O'Brien's bigamistic The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker, a sort of Double-Life with Father. And if comedy, in Teahouse, gave Broadway its biggest popular lift, it also in Kind Str (with Mary Martin and Charles Boyer) gave it its biggest letdown.

Kind Str is one of several events that have made for an era of mild surprises. Quite as unforeseen was the triumph, on the last night of the '53-'54 season, of the musical Pajama Game; and the success, very early in '54-'55, of the British spoof of musicals in the '20s, The Boy Friend. Nor could even his warmest night-club admirers have supposed that Victor Borge's one-man show would still be flourishing a year after it opened. Surprising, too, was the fate of Kismet, a lush fandango that was never reviewed because of the newspaper strike, and that, in defiance not so much of the critics as of commonsense, became a tremendous smash. Not so surprising is the success of a tinny trifle called Dear Charles, since it provides a field day for Tallulah Bankhead. And leading ladies have generally enriched the scene—whether Audrey Hepburn in Ondine, Deborah Kerr in Tea and Sympathy, Ina Claire in The Confidential Clerk or Shirley Booth in By The Beautiful Sea.

The season now advancing got off to nothing vast in the way of trends or triumphs. Having established itself as a place worth visiting, Off-Broadway was full of plans for soirees. Having enjoyed a period of relative privacy, musical comedy was very much back in the public eye: among its major events were Fanny, with an S. N. Behrman-Joshua Logan book and a Harold Rome score; Silk Stockings, with a book by Mr. & Mrs. George S. Kaufman and a Cole Porter score; and The House of Flowers, with a book by Truman Capote and music by Harold Arlen. And several oldtime playwrights—Maxwell Anderson, Clifford Odets, Noel Coward and Sidney Kingsley among others—had also arranged to be seen in public.

As for the prevailing somewhat-better-than-average level of achievement, it perhaps signifies that any number of plays have good writing in them, and any number of others have good playwrighting, but that extremely few have both. Too many effective theater pieces, like Tea and Sympathy, quite lack distinction; too many talented performances with language, like In the Summerhouse, aren't really plays. This glaring division plainly suggests that the "natural" playwrights have too much of the mere carpenter about them, while the natural writers—many of them primarily fiction writers—have a great deal to learn about the theater. As between the two, if producers really seek quality, it is the born writers who deserve particular help. For the skill they need to become good playwrights can be acquired, where the talent needed to become a good writer cannot.

MOVIES

by T. H. WENNING

Movie Critic, Newsweek

BACK IN 1950, producers and exhibitors joined forces to ballyhoo pictures under the rousing slogan, "Movies Are Better Than Ever." They weren't, and the campaign didn't fool anybody. The industry had to wait almost until 1954 before it could start pointing with legitimate pride, and by that time Hollywood didn't need any catch phrase to market its product. Making fewer films, and making them with more attention to story and quality, producers found that TV competition was more of a spur than a threat; that the choice fewer pictures commanded larger grosses than twice as many of the wholesale harvest.

The chances are that the potential movie public was a little sated with TV and just about ready to return to its former loyalty. But perhaps the biggest factor in luring the customers out of their parlors was CinemaScope, 20th Century-Fox's clamorously publicized parlay of the wide screen and the anamorphic lens. It came at the psychological moment. Three-D had caused a flutter of excitement, and a few 3-D pictures made money on their novelty value. But the public didn't take to wearing uncomfortable polaroid glasses, and the general story level of 3-D films was so primitive that this particular form of projection in depth disappeared unmourned.

In contrast, CinemaScope's first offering, The Robe, promised to become one of the greatest box-office attractions of all time; and since that auspicious start, the anamorphic lens has taken a firm hold on film exhibition throughout the world.

In October of 1954, Paramount, with White Christmas, introduced another process called VistaVision, which gave the wide screen added height, clarity of color and a sharper definition of image. With the release of The Big Rainbow, RKO offered another technique, Superscope, which proved to be compatible with both wide screen and CinemaScope's projection equipment. Meanwhile Cinerama, the first in the field, wound up its second year as a box-office bonanza. Although This Is Cinerama has been exhibited in only 13 major cities, it drew more than 9,000,000 customers for a tariff of over $17,000,000.

The stuff that the year's celluloid dreams were made of didn't show any notable trends beyond the aforementioned attention to quality, increased footage and an understandable weakness for the kind of story material that could fill up the wide screen with spectacle and scenery. And Gone With the Wind took to the wide screen for its fourth tour of the country, and promised to add another 6 or 7 million dollars to its record-breaking gross of $26,000,000.

Two of the year's truly notable films were On the Waterfront and The Caine Mutiny. The first starred Marlon Brando in what is probably the best performance of his career, and introduced Eva Marie Saint, a talented newcomer from TV. Directed by Elia Kazan and written by Budd Schulberg, this realistic and absorbing exposé of gangsterism along the New York waterfront looks like a ripe field for Academy Awards. Similarly The Caine Mutiny, produced by Stanley Kramer, was a shrewd job of shaping Herman Wouk's fully-packed best-seller to the exigencies of the screen without losing any of the novel's drama and fine sense of characterization.

Alfred Hitchcock was represented by two slick melodramas—Dial M for Murder, and Rear Window—this last measuring up to the best exercise in suspense the Old Master has ever turned out. (Both films co-starred Grace Kelly, who, along with Audrey Hepburn, is one of the few new players Hollywood has found with the talent and the personal magnetism to rate genuine stardom.)

Of other first rate dramas and comedies there were plenty: Executive Suite, Beat the Devil, Broken Lance, and Suddenly!, a taut little melodrama in which Frankie Sinatra demonstrates that his fine performance in From Here to Eternity was no flash in the pan.

Billy Wilder improved on the stage hit, Sabrina, with a large assist from Audrey Hepburn. Danny Kaye's Knock on Wood was his funniest comedy to date, and It Should Happen to You not only gave Judy Holliday a calculated field day but, in Jack Lemmon, discovered a young actor with an infinite capacity for being amusing. Riding high in the documentary field, Walt Disney released The Vanishing Prairie, the second in his remarkable series of full-length nature studies.

The foreign invasion maintained a steady pressure, adding to the gaiety of the nation without threatening any dangerous competition. Italy's Bread, Love and Dreams increased the prestige of Gina Lollobrigida as a glamor girl and a box-office attraction. France, while not matching its previous years, was able to send such worthy emissaries as The Earrings of Madame De, Mr. Hulot's Holiday and The French Touch. England came off cheerfully with the delightful Genevieve, Hobson's Choice, The Pickwick Papers, The Little Kidnappers, High and Dry, and an extraordinarily handsome Italian-made version of Romeo and Juliet. Ugetsu, Japan's single entry, attracted the same people who were impressed with the brilliant Roshomon of 1952.

The problem of censorship within and without the movie industry presented an apparently insoluble problem. The Supreme Court upset state bans on the films La Ronde and M, but a half dozen censor boards announced their determination "to continue to bar objectionable films in terms of our respective state laws." In a letter to Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, Samuel Goldwyn sought to have the film industry liberalize its own self-imposed code of morality: "Unless the code is brought reasonably up to date, the tendency to by-pass it, which has already begun, will increase." Late in the year the MPAA came up with what it undoubtedly regarded as a big step in the right direction. New amendments permitted the treatment of miscegenation and the use of hard liquor on the screen—"within the limits of good taste." The board also removed the ban against the use in dialogue of such basic words as "hell," "damn," "fanny," and "nerts," and, as a greater concession, permitted jokes about traveling salesmen and farmers' daughters.

HEADLINE STORIES OF 1954

EISENHOWER RECORD

In August 1954, soon after the 83rd Congress adjourned, President Eisenhower made a radio-television speech saying every American "can be proud" of its record. According to his figures, the Administration program was embodied in 64 legislative projects, and 54 of them were enacted into law. The President said that made the batting average .830.

In some instances, however, the bills as passed did not fully correspond to what the Administration had requested. Following is the record on major legislation:

SUBSTANTIAL ADMINISTRATION VICTORIES

St. Lawrence Seaway—Participation with Canada in development of the waterway was authorized.

Tax reform—Tax laws were extensively revised, with $1.3 billion in relief granted to corporations and individuals.

Farm price supports—Instead of a rigid 90% price support for 5 major crops, the support level was made flexible at 82½% to 90%. The Administration had asked for 75% as the minimum.

Social Security—The system was expanded to give old-age pensions to 10 million more, mostly farmers.

Atomic energy—The law was revised to allow exchange of data with friendly nations, and to permit private industry to develop atomic power.

Antisubversive measures—Peacetime espionage was made punishable by death.

Witnesses can be forced to testify under certain conditions by granting them immunity. Citizenship is to be revoked for those convicted of conspiracy to overthrow the government. Communist-infiltrated labor unions are to be deprived of government protection of their rights. The Administration failed to get a law to permit wire-tap evidence in espionage cases. The Administration did not request, but did get, a law depriving the Communist party of all legal rights.

Housing—Congress authorized 35,000 public housing units in one year, but hedged about with restrictions. The President had asked for 140,000 units in the next 4 years.

Foreign trade—The Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act was extended for one year instead of 3; the President failed to get authority to make additional tariff cuts.

Mutual aid—Requested funds were cut to $5.2 billion.

ADMINISTRATION DEFEATS

Labor—Revision of the Taft-Hartley law was pigeonholed in the Senate.

Voting age—A Constitutional amendment to give the vote to 18-year-olds failed in the Senate.

Statehood—Granting statehood to Hawaii failed in the House.

Health—Congress refused a $25-million Federal fund for a health reinsurance program to extend private systems.

INDO-CHINA STORY

THE FRENCH won control of Indo-China in the 19th century, and lost it to the Japanese in World War II. The native peoples had resented French exploitation, and when Japan surrendered, they proclaimed independence. Since no French troops were available, British forces moved into Indo-China, restored order and handed it back to French authorities early in 1946.

Late in 1946, the native nationalists started the warfare against the French which was to continue until 1954. In the beginning there were relatively few Communists, but with techniques taught by Moscow they wormed their way into the native nationalist movements. The leader was Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh.

The war dragged on in a weary stalemate over the years. The great difficulty of the French was that they did not have the support of the population as a whole. In an effort to win the people, the French reluctantly, bit by bit, granted more self-government. The U. S. kept urging France to do so. By 1954, the 3 Associated States of Indo-China—Viêt-Nam, Laos and Cambodia—were technically independent states within the French Union. But France supervised their foreign and military affairs. The nominal chief of state of Viêt-Nam was former Emperor Bao Dai, who was installed by the French in 1949. He did not succeed in arousing the enthusiasm of the people.

In 1950, both the Soviet Union and Communist China accorded diplomatic recognition to Ho Chi Minh and his rebel Vietminh regime. He then controlled substantial areas of Viêt-Nam; but there was no organized rebel movement in the two smaller states of Laos and Cambodia. Soon after Russia's recognition, the State Department announced that U. S. aid would be sent to Indo-China to develop "genuine nationalism." However, the Korean War broke out, and American aid started out as just a trickle. By 1954, the U. S. was ready to spend $785 million to help France and Viêt-Nam in their losing fight against the Communist rebels. The American contribution had risen to approximately two-thirds of the cost of the warfare.

Despite American aid, the drain on France was terrific. Nearly one-third of the total French officer corps was involved. The combined French Union military forces in the field were estimated at 460,000, of whom 260,000 were Viêt-Nam soldiers. The rest were French regulars, units of the Foreign Legion, Senegalese and Moroccans.

Up until almost the end, the fighting was mainly guerrilla warfare in mountains, jungles and rice paddies, with no fixed lines of battle. In 1954, the largest single battle was fought for Dien Bien Phu, an isolated fortress which the French had created in northwest Viêt-Nam. At Dien Bien Phu it became evident that Red China was supplying massive aid in military equipment to the Communist rebels—heavy artillery, antiaircraft guns and trucks of Russian make. On May 7, Dien Bien Phu and its garrison of at least 10,000 French Union forces fell to the Communists.

Shortly before that disaster, a conference had been convened in Geneva, Switzerland, on April 26, 1954, to seek peace in the Far East. Participants were the U. S., Britain, France, Russia, Communist China and the 3 states of Indo-China.

The conference bogged down until June, when France got a new Premier, Pierre Mendes-France; and he announced his determination to get peace in Indo-China by July 20 or else resign. The armistice agreements were signed on July 21, only a few hours after his deadline.

Under the truce terms, France surrendered to the Communist Vietminh the northern half of Viêt-Nam from the 17th parallel up to the border of Red China. This lost area of about 60,000 square miles had a population of 14 million. It included Hanoi, largest city of northern Indo-China, and the seaport of Haiphong. The agreement called for holding elections throughout all of Viêt-Nam in 1956. The two smaller states of Laos and Cambodia were left virtually intact, free of Communist rule.

The U. S. declined to sign the truce terms on the ground that we would not be a party to handing people over to Communist control. However, we announced that we would respect the agreement and not try to upset it.

Trieste

The map on page 417 went to press before the settlement of the Trieste dispute was reached. However, it illustrates approximately the division of the territory which was agreed upon. Italy received control over Zone A, which includes the city of Trieste and a coastal strip stretching north to the Italian border. Yugoslavia received Zone B (with a small addition from Zone A), which constitutes the hinterland south of the seaport. The withdrawal of American and British occupation troops was conducted in October. The Trieste settlement also came too late for notation under "Significant Changes in Political Status Since 1945" on page 427.

MCCARTHY STORY

THE ARMY-MCCARTHY inquiry began on April 22, 1954, and ended on June 17 after more than two million words of testimony. It was televised in full across the nation for 187 hours, which set a record for Congressional hearings visible to millions.

The clash between Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Republican of Wisconsin, and civilian leaders of the Department of the Army arose out of the case of Dr. Irving Peress, an Army dentist who, on Jan. 30, 1954, appeared before the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee headed by McCarthy and refused on grounds of possible self-incrimination, pleading the Fifth Amendment, to answer questions about Communist connections.

Peress had been drafted into the Army as a captain, and had been stepped up to the rank of major; an order for his honorable discharge had been issued Jan. 18, and the discharge was made effective Feb. 2. McCarthy regarded this as indication that the Army was "coddling" Communists, and sought to find out who was responsible. Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, on the witness stand, refused to name Army officers involved in the promotion and discharge of Peress. McCarthy told Zwicker that he "should be removed from any command," and that he was "not fit to wear that uniform."

Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens interposed with a statement that he would never allow Army personnel to be "brow-beaten or humiliated." He ignored McCarthy's demand for names of officers in the Peress case. Shortly afterward, however, he was persuaded by Republican members of the investigating subcommittee to promise to supply the names.

On March 11, it became known that the Department of the Army had prepared a detailed and explosive report charging that McCarthy and Roy M. Cohn, chief counsel of his subcommittee staff, had exerted pressure on the Army over the course of 8 months to get favored treatment for G. David Schine, a former unpaid subcommittee consultant and close friend of Cohn. Schine failed to get a commission and was drafted.

McCarthy promptly struck back with accusations that the Department of the Army had attempted to blackmail him into halting investigation of the Army by threatening to make public the Schine report. He also said the Army used Schine as a "hostage."

After considerable Congressional discussion, it was decided that the charges and countercharges would be the subject of an inquiry by the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee itself. But for the duration of these hearings, Sen. McCarthy would step off the committee. Sen. Karl E. Mundt, South Dakota Republican, would be acting chairman. Other subcommittee members were Republican Senators Dirksen, Potter and Dworshak (the latter substituting temporarily for McCarthy) and Democratic Senators McClellan, Symington and Jackson.

The subcommittee employed as its special impartial counsel Ray H. Jenkins, of Knoxville, Tenn. The Army employed as its special counsel Joseph N. Welch, of Boston.

When the hearings began on April 22, Secretary of the Army Stevens was on the witness stand for the first 14 days. He said that since July 1953 there had been 19 conferences and 65 telephone calls between Army personnel and McCarthy or his aides regarding Schine. First the effort had been to get Schine a commission; later to get him passes to be absent from Fort Dix, N. J., ostensibly to do subcommittee work; and to get him assigned to New York. Stevens said: "The Schine case is only an example of the wrongful seeking of privilege, of the perversion of power."

Stevens denied under oath that he had at any time suggested that the subcommittee investigate the Navy or Air Force. Counselor Adams later made the same denial on the witness stand. Adams also testified that Cohn exploded with wrath when it was suggested that Schine might be sent overseas. Adams quoted Cohn as saying: "Stevens is through as Secretary of the Army. . . . We will wreck the Army."

It was not until late in May that Roy M. Cohn went on the witness stand, followed by Sen. McCarthy. They had developed their case against the Department of the Army to a considerable extent through questioning earlier in the inquiry, and as witnesses they stood by their allegations of an Army "blackmail attempt" to curb the subcommittee investigation.

A Constitutional issue was raised in the course of the hearings. The Constitution gives separate but equal powers to the Executive, Legislative and Judicial branches. The question—a perennial one—was: When does one branch encroach on the powers of another?

The issue arose following the introduction of a document by Sen. McCarthy, which purported to be a carbon copy of a letter written by J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director. It developed that Hoover had not written such a letter, but that McCarthy's document did contain 7 paragraphs identical with a section of a classified confidential memorandum which the FBI sent to the Army in 1951, dealing with persons who were possible subversives.

McCarthy said he got the "letter" from a young intelligence officer whom he refused to name. Attorney General Brownell ruled that the Senator was not authorized to have possession of the classified information therein. McCarthy challenged the Executive branch by saying he would not be bound by their secrecy decisions. The Senator later expanded his position by saying he would continue to get information from within the Executive department whenever he could, and would protect his sources of the information. In effect, he invited Federal employees of the Executive branch to divulge to him any indications of wrongdoing, even though that might entail violation of law or Presidential directive.

With the support of President Eisenhower, a statement was issued by Attorney General Brownell, which said: "The Executive branch of the government has the sole and fundamental responsibility under the Constitution for the enforcement of our laws and Presidential orders. That responsibility cannot be usurped by any individual who may seek to set himself above the laws of our land or to override orders of the President of the United States to Federal employees of the Executive branch of the government."

On Aug. 3, the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee under the chairmanship of Sen. Mundt issued two reports—one by the 4 Republican members, the other by the 3 Democrats.

The 4 Republicans held that Sen. McCarthy was not shown to have been personally guilty of exercising improper influence on the Army in behalf of Pvt. Schine; but that Roy Cohn was "unduly aggressive and persistent" in behalf of Schine. Secretary of the Army Stevens was held not to have been guilty of bad faith, but to have "followed a course of placation, appeasement and vacillation . . . when he should have asserted himself" in resisting Cohn's efforts.

The Democratic report held that both McCarthy and Cohn "merit severe criticism"—McCarthy because he "fully acquiesced in and condoned" the "improper actions" of Cohn. Secretary Stevens was held to be not guilty of attempted blackmail, was severely criticized for "inexcusable indecisiveness and lack of sound administrative judgment" in his handling of the Cohn-Schine case.

Cohn had resigned as chief counsel to the investigating subcommittee on July 20. There were indications that a majority of the subcommittee would have voted to dismiss him had he not quit.

Meanwhile, in July, Sen. Ralph E. Flanders, Republican of Vermont, had made a series of charges against McCarthy on the Senate floor and had introduced a resolution to censure him. Instead, the Senate voted in August to create a select committee of 3 Republicans and 3 Democrats to weigh the charges. Named to the committee were Republican Sens. Arthur V. Watkins, Utah, chairman; Frank Carlson, Kans.; Francis Case, S. Dak. Democratic Sens. were Edwin C. Johnson, Colo.; John C. Stennis, Miss.; Sam J. Ervin, N. C.

Public hearings were held by the committee Aug. 31-Sept. 13.

The committee issued its unanimous report on Sept. 27, and recommended that the Senate censure McCarthy for conduct unbecoming a Senator on two counts. The first count pertained to his refusal to testify before a Senate investigating committee in 1952. The verdict of the Watkins committee was that he should in 1952 have explained whether funds collected to fight communism were diverted to "other purposes inuring to his personal advantage"; whether "certain of his official activities were motivated by self-interest"; and whether "certain of his activities in Senatorial campaigns involved violations of the law." McCarthy's conduct was held to be "conduct contumacious toward the Senate and injurious to its effectiveness, dignity, responsibilities, processes and prestige."

The other count on which censure was recommended pertained to McCarthy's treatment of Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker when questioning him. The committee said McCarthy's conduct "in reprimanding and ridiculing him, in holding him up to public scorn and contumely was inexcusable."

On 3 other counts the committee criticized McCarthy, but did not recommend censure. His invitation to Federal employees to give him confidential documents was "deemed improper." McCarthy was held to have "committed grave error" in offering to make public confidential FBI information at the Army-McCarthy hearings. And he was held to have made "highly improper" remarks about Sen. Flanders.

The Senate was called into special session November 8 to act on the Watkins committee report; that is, to vote censure or clear McCarthy. McCarthy predicted in advance that the Senate would vote to censure him. "I don't expect more than a very few Senators to go in there with an open mind," he said.

It was the old Senate of the 83rd Congress, not the new Senate, and therefore it contained Senators who were temporary appointees and others who would not sit in the new Senate by reason of defeat in the November 2 election.

THE WESTERN EUROPEAN UNION

The European Defense Community treaty was signed in Paris in May 1952. It provided for a merger of the armed forces of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxemburg. The parliaments of 4 of the countries had ratified it by mid-1954. Ratification by France and Italy was lacking, but the Italian parliament was considered sure to ratify. On Aug. 30, 1954, France effectively killed the EDC by voting to break off indefinitely the debate on ratification.

A substitute for EDC was urgently sought by European diplomats. The objective was to find a formula by which the West German Federal Republic could rearm, subject to controls, and join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, sponsored a plan to revise the Brussels Treaty of 1948 and invite West Germany and Italy into it. The original treaty bound 5 nations—Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxemburg—to go automatically to the aid of any signatory nation that might be attacked.

Eden's plan was adopted in substance at a conference of 9 nations which signed (subject to parliamentary ratification) the Protocol of London on Oct. 3, 1954. The U. S. and Canada participated in the conference along with the 7 aforementioned European nations.

The Protocol of London provided that West Germany was to receive sovereignty, join NATO and the Brussels Treaty Organization, and create an armed force of 500,000 men. Germany agreed not to manufacture atomic, chemical or biological weapons; or guided missiles, warships larger than 3,000 tons or bomber aircraft for strategic purposes. Britain agreed to maintain part of its armed forces on the European Continent as long as a majority of the Brussels Treaty powers deemed it advisable. Secretary of State Dulles promised that he would recommend continuing maintenance of American troops on the Continent.

The principles agreed upon at London were put into precise diplomatic language in the form of a 57-page set of agreements, schedules, protocols and exchange of letter, all of which were signed in Paris on Oct. 23. The name of the Brussels Treaty Organization was changed to the Western European Union.

On the same day, Premier Mendés-France and Chancellor Adenauer reached a settlement of the controversy between West Germany and France over the status of the Saar. The coal-rich Saar is to remain tied economically to France. Politically, it is to be autonomous, subject to the supervision of the Western European Union.

For more details about the Saar, see page 638.

HURRICANES

THE NAME "hurricane" is derived from the West Indian term for "big wind," and is most frequently applied to massive storms that arise in the region of the Caribbean Sea. Pacific typhoons and Indian Ocean cyclones are related phenomena, according to the National Geographic Society. A hurricane is a whirlpool of air with winds from 75 to 150 miles an hour; in the center is a calm spot, or "eye." The hurricane season is from June through November.

A quarter of a century ago, the hurricane was most frequently associated with Florida and other parts of the southern sea frontier of the U. S. In 1938, a hurricane struck New England, taking about 500 lives. In 1954, no less than 3 hurricanes swept through states on and near the Eastern Seaboard.

Since 1953, the hurricanes have been called by names of girls in alphabetical order. Originally, they were called Storm One, Storm Two, etc., by the meteorologists. The names of girls proved to be more convenient in radio transmission from the Navy and Air Force planes that explored their courses in order to alert people to their paths. As many as 21 hurricanes have been known in a June-November season; the names of Una, Vicky and Wallis have not yet been called into use.

There were the following hurricanes in the 1954 season:

1. Alice. Hit Mexico near the Texas border June 25.
2. Barbara. Blew out in the Caribbean July 28-30.
3. Carol. Hit Long Island and New England Aug. 31, causing 68 deaths and doing damage estimated at $500 million.
4. Dolly. Went past New England, far out at sea Sept. 1-2. No damage.
5. Edna. Hit New England on Sept. 11. Estimated deaths: 11.
6. Florence. Blew out in the Gulf of Mexico Sept. 12.
7. Gilda. Like Florence, Sept. 26-27.
8. Hazel. Discovered near the island of Grenada off the top of South America on Oct. 5. Hit Haiti Oct. 12, causing an estimated 98 deaths. Hit the U. S. Oct. 15, moving from South and North Carolina up through Virginia, Maryland, the District of Columbia, Pennsylvania, New York and Canada, where it died out Oct. 16. Caused deaths in the U. S. estimated at 98 in 10 states and the District of Columbia. Deaths in Canada were estimated at 79.

UNITED NATIONS GENERAL ASSEMBLY

THE NINTH annual session of the United Nations General Assembly opened in New York on Sept. 21, 1954. The first meeting had barely started when Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, introduced his familiar motion to admit Communist China to the U. N. and oust the Nationalist government on Formosa headed by Chiang Kai-shek. The U. S. moved to postpone any action on China until the following year. The postponement was voted, 43-11, with 6 nations abstaining.

Secretary of State Dulles, in his address at the beginning of the General Assembly session, invited the U. N. to sponsor a scientific conference in the spring of 1955 to consider how best to spread knowledge of the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes. He said the U. S. program of pooling atoms-for-peace information included setting up an international agency open to all nations; also the U. S. would open an atomic reactor training school for scientists from friendly nations abroad. He noted that Russia has not indicated willingness to join an atoms-for-peace pool arrangement.

Vishinsky, in his opening address, laid before the U. N. a proposal for international reduction of armaments. His formula appeared to be a little nearer the point of view of the West than it was in earlier versions. He proposed a two-stage program of arms reduction, in which the first stage would be a lowering of the amount of military budgets and of the number of persons under arms. The second stage would include a ban on atomic and hydrogen bombs, with an international commission empowered to make inspections.

The disarmament topic was debated for nearly two weeks, and then it was decided that a subcommittee which failed to get any agreement last summer would be reactivated and resume talk of arms reduction behind closed doors. Members: U. S., Britain, France, Canada and Russia.

Most of the items on the General Assembly agenda were familiar ones which had been discussed before. Among the new items were two territorial disputes.

1. Greece wanted possession of the island of Cyprus, which the British have made their foremost military base in the Mediterranean. Cyprus is a British crown colony. The population is Grecian, and Greece hoped for a plebiscite of the people of Cyprus to determine whether they wished to remain under British rule or rejoin Greece.

2. Indonesia demanded possession of West Irian, which is the western part of the island of New Guinea in Dutch possession.

Russia introduced two new items which apparently were designated for Soviet propaganda purposes. They were:

1. A charge that Nationalist China, with the support of the U. S., is committing piracy along the China coast by seizing foreign freighters, including one Russian vessel.

2. A charge that the U. S. has forcibly seized and occupied Formosa and is taking part in Chinese Nationalist raids against the Red China mainland.

ELECTIONS OF 1954

THE Nov. 2 elections afforded some of the closest contests in many years. The Democrats captured control of the House of Representatives in the 84th Congress convening Jan. 3, 1955. Unofficial returns, subject to later recount, indicated that the Democrats might be able to take control of the Senate if they chose to do so. However, in the opinion of the President the elections did not signify a popular repudiation of his Administration, and he planned to press his program.

The Republicans lost 5 Senate seats and gained 3 on the basis of unofficial returns. That would make the standing in the new Senate: 48 Democrats, 47 Republicans and 1 independent, Wayne Morse, who had said he would vote with the Democrats on organizing the Senate.

In the House, the Democrats won control by a margin of 29 seats. That would enable them to name the chairmen of all House committees in the new Congress. The veteran Sam Rayburn, D., Texas, was in line to resume the Speakership which he lost two years ago to Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts.

In the gubernatorial elections, the New York race between Averell Harriman, D., and Sen. Irving M. Ives, R., was the closest ever. Harriman apparently won by an unofficial margin of 9,657, subject to official canvas. His victory failed to carry into office the Democratic candidate for State Attorney General, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., who lost to Jacob K. Javits, R. (Roosevelt's brother, James, won a seat in Congress in California.) Close Senatorial elections occurred in the states of New Jersey and Oregon.

SPECULATION ON THE CAREER OF THE 84TH CONGRESS

POPULAR BELIEF to the contrary, the party in power, at least since 1900, has not been turned out very frequently in between-terms elections. The fact is, in the past half century, in only 3 elections out of 13 did the ruling party lose control of one or both houses of Congress. In 1908, with a ticket headed by William Howard Taft of Ohio, the Republicans swept the Presidency, the lower house, and the Senate. In the between-terms elections of 1910, however, the Democrats were able to triumph in the lower house. In the 62nd Congress, elected in 1910, there were seated 228 Democrats and 162 Republicans; the Republicans, however, retained control over the Senate, their seats being 49 against 42 Democrats. Insurgency was notably strong in the Senate, and on many issues insurgent Republicans combined with the Democrats to frustrate the program of President Taft.

In 1918, after the Democrats had swept the Presidency and both houses in the previous election of 1916, and largely because of the unpopularity of President Wilson's plans for a world peace, the Republicans succeeded in winning both houses. To the 66th Congress the Republicans elected 237 members against 191 Democrats in the lower house. The Senate was also organized by the Republicans but by a narrow margin of one, for the Republicans had 48 Senators against 47 for the Democrats.

It was not until 1946 that again the party in power was repudiated as far as the Congress was concerned. President Franklin D. Roosevelt had died in April 1945, and he had been succeeded by Vice President Truman. Because of dissatisfaction with the continued existence of wartime controls, the Republicans succeeded in capturing both houses. In the Congress elected in 1946, the 80th Congress, there sat 246 Republicans to 188 Democrats in the lower house and 51 Republicans to 45 Democrats in the upper house.

Following the election of 1910, there was no significant legislation that could be carried by both houses, and indeed no efforts were made to do so because the Presidential veto would have been significant in overriding any such bills. But, the Democrats, by organizing the lower house and appointing powerful members at the head of committees, did yeoman work in preparing for the election of 1912 through public hearings and the preparation of those bills which were enacted so quickly by Woodrow Wilson under the general banner of the New Freedom. It may be said, therefore, that one of the results of the capture of a between-terms elections is that through control over committees new legislative programs may be explored. This opportunity, obviously, will help the Democratic party in preparing for 1956.

The pattern was somewhat different following the election of 1918. In the 66th Congress that was returned, the chief center of interest was the nature of the peace and more particularly the Covenant of the League of Nations that Woodrow Wilson had brought back with him from Versailles.

In consequence, the Senate spent its time debating the character of the peace treaty and the Covenant for the League incorporated in it, and it ended up by rejecting both. In the area of domestic legislation, the Republicans also made ready for the victory of 1920. The House Ways and Means Committee sat down to prepare tariff legislation and in fact as soon as the Congress assembled following the election of 1920 (67th Congress) the Emergency Tariff Law of 1921 was passed.

In 1946, the Republicans captured both houses of the 80th Congress. It is interesting to observe that the legislation enacted by it was much more significant than had been that of other Congresses of this nature. This was largely due to the fact that Republicans, by combination with conservative Southern Democrats, were able to draw up bills which, while they were vetoed by President Truman, nevertheless were carried over his veto. This was notably true of the elimination of wartime controls and the passage of the Taft-Hartley Act. This Republican Congress also fulfilled many of its campaign promises of economy, and cut appropriations for the Agriculture and Interior Departments.

Certain general conclusions, therefore, may be drawn from these experiences. In the new 84th Congress, one may anticipate that the Democrats will introduce and possibly carry legislation in those areas which have attracted popular attention.

In the area of foreign policy, Democrats and liberal Republicans are more likely to uphold the hand of the President than was the case when the Congress was wholly Republican.

In any case, the Democrats are likely to use their victory to get ready for the contest of 1956.

CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES

The day we went to press, it was still not certain which party would organize the Senate. We are, therefore, playing safe and listing the Republican Senators who served as Committee chairmen of the 83rd Congress and the Democratic Senators whom their party has named as probable committee chairmen of the 84th Congress, if the Democrats control the Senate.<sup>1</sup>

Since it was certain that the Democrats would organize the House, we list only the senior Democratic members of the House committees on the assumption that they are most likely to be chairmen of the committees.<sup>1</sup>

New and Newly Important Words and Meanings

Note: This is a selected list of words, from a wide variety of subject areas, that have become of fairly recent general interest. Many, as radar, colorcast, and dynel, are new in the sense that they were recently introduced into the language. Some, as omnibus, libretto, and alligator, are recently acquired new or extended senses of well-established terms. Others, as rocket ship, snollygoster and fission, are terms that have been in limited use within certain circles for a considerable time but have only recently become generally used and known. It would be out of keeping with the spirit of a list like this and beyond the space available to treat the entries in formal dictionary fashion. In general, only the commonest spellings and the most basic and important of the new senses have been given.

ZOOT SUIT: A flashy suit of extreme cut, usually having a long jacket with broad shoulders, and high-waisted peg-top trousers.

Troublesome Pronunciations

These transcriptions indicate, as closely as possible in a system lacking symbols with clearly defined values, the pronunciations that we believe to be now most widely used in everyday speech in the United States. We do not imply that any pronunciation not shown here is unacceptable.

A syllable printed in capitals has heavy stress, a syllable printed in italics has light stress (stress intermediate between heavy and none at all). Example AL-ba-kurr-kee (Albuquerque). The symbol ÷ preceding a few pronunciations means "widespread but its acceptability is contested by many."

RECIPES of FAMOUS RESTAURANTS

Edited by

Maxwell A. Kriendler

President, Jack & Charlie's "21"

Clementine Paddleford

Food Editor, This Week Magazine

THE PLAN to include a recipe section in our Almanac has intrigued our editorial staff for many years. It didn't come to life until this edition because we were searching for an idea that would not follow the pattern of standard recipe books but would present something unusual. We found the answer when we hit upon the idea of collecting recipes from the famous dining places throughout the world. It's a sort of gourmet's travelogue which includes the masterpieces of the world's great kitchens from Milwaukee to Madrid.

To the best of our knowledge, such recipes of world-famous restaurants have never before been available in one volume. We enlisted two outstanding food experts—Mr. Maxwell Kriendler and Miss Clementine Paddleford—as our mentors.

Maxwell Kriendler is president of Jack & Charlie's "21," which is universally considered the outstanding institution of its kind, famous for its food, its clientele and its superb management. Mr. Kriendler is more than a restaurateur. He has been host to famous people from all over the world. He is on intimate terms with the owners of the finest hotels and restaurants in Europe. It was because of this that we asked him to select our European restaurants and their recipes.

For the United States, we logically turned to Miss Clementine Paddleford, food editor for the New York Herald Tribune and This Week magazine. Miss Paddleford is no rocking-chair food expert. She has done it with knife and fork in hand, zig-zagging the U. S. Last year, for instance, she traveled 50,000 miles visiting restaurants in major cities, not only the glamour spots but out-of-the-way places.

Miss Paddleford is as enthusiastic about Poppy's hot rolls, which she found in Memphis, Tennessee, as she is about the wonderful Lobster Savannah from Locke-Ober's in Boston or a famous sauce from the Pump Room in Chicago or Grenadine of Beef from Chasen's celebrated restaurant in Hollywood.

All the recipes selected by Miss Paddleford from the U. S. and Mr. Kriendler from Europe have been set down in a form that can be followed by any housewife who is adventurous with a mixing bowl and skillet.

The list of restaurants represented in this section include the finest of the world. Many people have visited them in their travels—more have not. That is why we thought it would be a good idea to open the doors of these restaurants to you by bringing their famous recipes into your home.

Have fun as you eat your way around the world. Bon appétit!—The Editor.

RESTAURANTS OF THE U. S.

Curried Cream of Chicken Soup

("21," New York)

- |                          |  |
|--------------------------|--|
| 2 tablespoons butter     | 1 cup cream                              |
| 2 tablespoons flour      | 2 tablespoons chicken breast, finely cut |
| 2 teaspoons curry powder | Salt and pepper                          |
| 3 cups chicken stock     | 2 teaspoons chives, minced               |

Melt butter, add flour and curry powder and stir until well blended. Slowly add chicken stock, bring to a boil and simmer, stirring occasionally until mixture thickens. Add cream and cook until heated through. Do not allow to boil. Stir in chicken and chill. Season to taste. Serve each cup of soup garnished with one-half teaspoon chives. Approximate yield: one quart.

Scallopine of Veal al Marsala

(Sardi's, New York)

- |                          |                                       |
|--------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 2 pounds veal cutlet     | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup broth or water      |
| Salt and pepper          | $\frac{1}{2}$ glass Marsala or medium |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup flour  | Sherry wine                           |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter |                                       |

Cut veal in small slices, pound very thin (about 6 inches square) and sprinkle pepper and salt on both sides. Dip lightly in flour. Put butter in large frying pan. As soon as it sizzles, lay each slice of veal individually in pan. Allow to brown on both sides. Add broth, and allow to cook for 3 minutes. Add Marsala and cook one more minute on high heat. Serve. Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

Chicken in Pineapple

(Trader Vic's, San Francisco)

- |  |                                  |
|--|----------------------------------|
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup curry sauce              | 1 teaspoon chopped onion         |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup medium white sauce       | $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon A-1 Sauce |
| 1 cup chicken meat, coarsely diced         | Salt                             |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup hard cooked egg, chopped | Dash monosodium glutamate        |
| 2 teaspoons crushed pineapple              | Whipped cream                    |
| 1 teaspoon chopped green pepper            | Duchess potatoes                 |

Combine all ingredients except cream and potatoes; let simmer slowly over heat 20 minutes. Serve in halves of hollowed pineapple shells, green spike left on. Cover with whipped cream and broil until lightly browned. Border edge of pineapple with Duchess potatoes. Yield: 2 portions. Note: Mixture may be placed in casserole, topped with cream and broiled.

Poached Columbia River Salmon Bordelaise

(Chasen's, Hollywood)

- |                               |                            |
|-------------------------------|----------------------------|
| 1 10-pound fresh salmon       | 1 sprig fresh tarragon     |
| 4 tablespoons butter, melted  | 1 bay leaf                 |
| 4 shallots, chopped fine      | 3 cups Burgundy wine       |
| 1 clove garlic, chopped       | Salt and pepper            |
| 2 tablespoons chopped parsley | 2 cups brown gravy         |
|                               | $\frac{1}{4}$ pound butter |

Fillet the salmon, cutting four steaks from each fillet. Add to butter in sauté pan, along with shallots, garlic, parsley, tarragon, bay leaf, wine, salt and pepper. Let poach very slowly for 10 minutes; remove salmon steaks from pan; keep warm. Let the stock reduce to about one pint; strain, return to pan. Add gravy and boil for 2 minutes. Take off heat. Slowly stir in butter. (Do not put back on heat.) Pour sauce on top of salmon steak. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve. Yield: 8 large portions.

Hollandaise Sauce

(Antoine's, New Orleans)

- |                                |                              |
|--------------------------------|------------------------------|
| 1 cup clarified butter         | 1 tablespoon minced onion    |
| 2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar | 3 peppercorns                |
| 1 tablespoon water             | 4 egg yolks                  |
|                                | Juice of $\frac{1}{4}$ lemon |

To clarify butter: slowly melt butter, let stand until clear part can be skimmed off easily. In saucepan place vinegar, water, onion and peppercorns. Cook over very low heat to reduce liquid to one teaspoon. Remove peppercorns. Cool. Add egg yolks; beat slightly. Gradually add melted butter, beating constantly. Add lemon juice. Serve immediately. Yield: 4 portions.

Caesar Salad

(Gourmet Room, Terrace Plaza Hotel, Cincinnati)

Salt	4 drops Worcestershire
1 clove garlic, cut in half	Black pepper to taste
3 heads washed and dried romaine	3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
5 fillets of anchovies, reduced to paste	1 2-minute cooked egg
4 tablespoons garlic flavored oil	Juice of 2 lemons
	2 slices white sandwich bread

Sprinkle salt with a generous hand over inside of wooden bowl. Rub well with cut clove of garlic. Break romaine into 2-inch pieces and drop in bowl. Add anchovies to greens with garlic flavored oil and toss well. Add Worcestershire, pepper and Parmesan. Toss. Break egg over greens, squeeze lemon juice directly over egg. Toss salad lightly and thoroughly. Remove crust from bread and cut each slice into 16 cubes; fry golden in oil well scented with garlic. Drop into salad; toss again and serve. This provides 4 large portions if used as main dish, 6 portions as a first course salad.

Sauerbraten

(Mader's, Milwaukee)

4 pounds beef round, chuck or sirloin	2½ tablespoons flour
1½ tablespoons salt	2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 onion, sliced	5 to 6 small gingersnaps, crushed
10 peppercorns	Salt and pepper to taste
3 bay leaves	½ cup red wine
3 cloves	Sweet or sour cream
1 cup vinegar
½ pound unsmoked bacon
2 tablespoons drippings or lard

Wipe meat with damp cloth and trim off gristle; rub with salt, place in earthenware crock or a glass bowl. Pour over a pickling brine made with the onions, spices, vinegar and enough water to cover meat. Allow to marinate 48 hours, turning the meat twice daily. Remove meat from liquid reserving 2 cups of brine. Cut bacon into strips one-third inch thick and 2½ to four inches long. Pierce meat with a pointed knife and insert bacon. Heat drippings in skillet and lightly brown meat on all sides. Remove from skillet and place in roasting pan. Prepare the following sauce. Brown flour in the skillet with the drippings, add sugar, gingersnaps, salt and pepper to taste and 2 cups brine; boil until smooth and creamy. Pour over the meat and roast in a 400° F. oven, allowing 20 to 30 minutes per pound. Baste frequently during the roasting. Add the red wine ½ hour before end of roasting time. Strain gravy; if too thick or sour, add water, or, if not sour enough, add vinegar to taste. Sweet or sour cream may be added to gravy before serving. Yield: 8 portions.

Chicken Mascotte

("21," New York)

1 chicken about 2½ pounds, quartered	3 ozs. of white wine
Salt and pepper to taste	2 cooked artichoke hearts, quartered
4 tablespoons butter	4 or 5 mushrooms, quartered

Season chicken. Place in hot butter in a pan and brown on both sides (about 20 minutes). Add wine, artichokes and mushrooms. Simmer 8 to 9 minutes until mushrooms are done. Serve with sautéed potatoes. Serves 2.

Pompano en Papillote

(Antoine's, New Orleans)

3 medium sized pompano	½ clove garlic, minced
3 cups water	8 chopped onions, (1½ cups)
1 chopped shallot, or 2 tablespoons chopped onion	Pinch thyme
6 tablespoons butter	1 bay leaf
2¼ cups white wine	2 cups fish stock
1 cup crabmeat	2 tablespoons flour
1 cup diced cooked shrimp	2 egg yolks
	Salt
	Pepper

Clean pompano; cut into six fillets, removing head and backbone. Combine head, bones and water; simmer until there are 2 cups stock. Sauté shallot and fillets in 2 tablespoons butter; add 2 cups wine. Cover; simmer gently until fillets are tender, about 5 to 8 minutes. Sauté crabmeat, shrimp and  $\frac{1}{4}$  garlic clove in 1 tablespoon butter. Add onion, remaining  $\frac{1}{4}$  garlic clove; cook 10 minutes. Add thyme, bay leaf and  $1\frac{1}{4}$  cups of the fish stock; simmer 10 minutes. Blend together 2 tablespoons butter and flour, gradually add remaining  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup fish stock. Add to crabmeat mixture with wine stock drained from fillets. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Beat egg yolks; add hot sauce and  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup wine. Mix thoroughly. Place in refrigerator to chill until firm. Cut six parchment-paper hearts 8 inches long, 12 inches wide. Oil well, place spoonfuls of sauce on one side of heart; lay poached fillet on sauce; fold over. Hand-seal edges. Lay sealed heart on an oiled baking sheet. Bake in 450° F. oven 15 minutes, or until paper hearts are browned. Serve immediately in paper. Yield: 6 portions.

Note: Fresh salmon, sea trout or striped bass may be used in this recipe instead of pompano.

Wild Rice Stuffing

(Pump Room, Chicago)

1 cup wild rice	$\frac{1}{2}$ pound fresh
1 teaspoon salt	mushrooms,
4 cups boiling water	chopped
	3 tablespoons
2 egg yolks	butter or mar-
$\frac{1}{4}$ cup Sherry wine	garline
1 pound chicken	1 tablespoon flour
livers, cut into	$\frac{1}{2}$ cup chicken
small squares	stock
2 medium-sized	Salt to taste
onions, minced

Wash rice thoroughly. Add salt to boiling water, then add rice slowly so water continues to boil. Do not stir; shake pot to prevent rice from sticking. Cook until tender, about 25 to 45 minutes. Beat egg yolks with Sherry and add. Fry chicken livers in small amount of fat until done and add to rice. In separate pan sauté onions and mushrooms in butter. Add flour blend; add chicken stock and bring to boil, stirring constantly. Add to rice mixture with salt. Cut squabs down back; remove all bones and stuff. Yield:  $5\frac{1}{2}$  cups stuffing (enough for 4 small pigeons) or 4 portions.

Edelweiss Torte

(Swiss Chalet, Bismark Hotel, Chicago)

Prepare puff paste from a recipe using 2 cups of flour. Divide dough into 3 parts and roll each piece into a 10-inch round; prick with a fork. Bake at 450° F. for 10 minutes; reduce heat to 350° F. and bake about 10 minutes longer, or until browned. Cool. Spread Pastry Cream on bottom layer of puff paste. Add another layer of puff paste and spread with 2 cups sweetened whipped cream. Cover with third layer of puff paste and pour Icing over top and sides. Let cake dry. Decorate with edelweiss flowers made from Butter Cream Frosting. Yield: 8 to 10 portions.

Pastry Cream

2 cups milk	$\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons	extract
butter	2 tablespoons
$\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar	cornstarch
Pinch of salt	3 egg yolks, slightly beaten

Bring  $1\frac{1}{2}$  cups milk to boiling. Stir in butter, sugar, salt and vanilla. Mix remaining milk with cornstarch; add egg yolks and pour into boiling milk, stirring constantly. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Chill.

Icing

12 tablespoons	1 drop red colorconfectioners'	ing
sugar	1 drop yellow col-
2 tablespoons wa-	ing
ter

Mix all of the ingredients to make a smooth paste.

Butter Cream Frosting (for edelweiss flowers)

$\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter	9 tablespoons
2 tablespoons	confectioners'
shortening	sugar
	2 drops vanilla
	extract

Cream ingredients thoroughly until well blended. Place in pastry bag.

Pappy's Southern Rolls

(Pappy & Jimmie's Lobster Shack, Memphis)

- |  |  |
|--|--|
| 1 yeast cake orone envelope ofgranular yeast | $\frac{1}{3}$ cup milk (roomtemperature) |
| $\frac{1}{3}$ cup lukewarmwater                  | 1 tablespoon su-gar                      |
| 3 eggs   | 1 teaspoon salt                              |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup shortening,melted              | 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour          |
|  | $\frac{1}{4}$ pound butter ormargarine   |

Dissolve yeast in water for 10 minutes. Drop eggs into mixing bowl, add melted shortening, milk, dissolved yeast, sugar and salt. Beat well and begin working in the flour. Knead continuously in the bowl until it's a good dough, smooth and elastic. Cover and let rise in warm place 45 minutes or until double in bulk. Punch down dough. Cut off small pieces about the size of a walnut. Place in greased muffin pans. Let rise in a warm place until roll is high as the pan. Then bake in a hot oven (400° F.) for 8 to 12 minutes. Hot from the oven brush over butter or margarine to give extra flavor. Yield: 2 dozen rolls.

Lindy's Cheesecake

(Lindy's, New York)

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ pounds creamcheese | Pinch of vanillabean (insidepulp) or $\frac{1}{4}$teaspoon va-nilla extract |
| 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ cups sugar             |   |
| 3 tablespoonsflour                 |   |
| 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons              | 5 eggs  |
| grated orangerind                  | 2 egg yolks   |
| 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons              | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup heavycream  |
| grated lemonrind                   |   |

Combine cheese, sugar, flour, grated orange and lemon rind, and vanilla. Add eggs and egg yolks, one at a time, stirring lightly after each addition. Stir in cream.

Cookie Dough Mixture

- |                                    |                                     |
|------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour | Pinch vanilla bean(inside pulp) |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar            | 1 egg yolk                          |
| 1 teaspoon gratedlemon rind    | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter            |

Combine flour, sugar, lemon rind and vanilla. Make a well in center and add egg yolk and butter. Work together quickly with hands until well bended. Wrap in wax paper and chill thoroughly in refrigerator, about one hour. Roll out  $\frac{1}{4}$  inch thick and place over oiled bottom of 9-inch spring-form cake pan. Trim off the dough by running a rolling pin over sharp edge. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) 20 minutes or until a light gold. Cool. Butter sides of cake form and place over base. Roll remaining dough  $\frac{1}{8}$  inch thick and cut to fit the sides of the oiled band. Fill form with cheese mixture and bake in very hot oven (550° F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Reduce temperature to slow (200° F.) and continue baking one hour. Let the cake cool for at least two hours before cutting. Yield: 12 portions.

Cherry Cheese Pie: Using pie pastry roll it out  $\frac{1}{8}$  inch thick and line an 11-inch oiled pan. Bake in a hot oven (400° F.) 20 minutes. Add half cheese filling recipe, bake 10 to 12 minutes longer at 450° F. Remove pie from oven and when cold add fruit mixture made by combining 2 cups of sour cherries with  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup of sugar, a pinch of cinnamon and  $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon lemon juice. Bring fruit to boil and add 2 teaspoons of cornstarch blended with 2 tablespoons of cherry syrup. Again bring to a boil and immediately remove from heat. Cool. Cover pie with strips of the pastry laid lattice-wise and into a very hot oven (555° F.) for 10 minutes or until the strips are brown. Yield: 10 servings.

Shrimp Clemenceau

(Brennan's, New Orleans)

- |                             |                    |
|-----------------------------|--------------------|
| 2 pounds freshshrimp    | enne pepper        |
| 2 quarts boilingwater   | 2 tablespoons salt |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon cay- | 2 bay leaves       |
|                             | 1 sprig of thyme   |
|                             | 6 to 8 pepper pods |

Drop shrimp into seasoned boiling water and let come to a rolling boil; cook for 5 minutes. Drain, peel and de-vein shrimp.

Sauce

- |                                    |                                    |
|------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 2 large potatoes,diced         | 4 cloves garlic,chopped fine   |
| 8 large mushrooms,sliced       | 2 tablespoons but-ter          |
| 2 sprigs finelychopped parsley | 8 to 10 ouncessmall green peas |

Deep fry potatoes. Sauté shrimp, mushrooms, parsley and potatoes together in garlic butter. When ready to serve add green peas. Yield: 8 to 10 portions.

Shashlick Caucasian

(Old Warsaw, Dallas)

4 pounds boneless young lamb (leg or loin)	1 leaf laurel
Juice of 3 small lemons	$\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
1 cup olive oil	16 bacon strips, cut in fourths
Few grains black pepper	10-12 medium onions, cut in $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch slices
	Boiled rice

Cut lamb into one-inch pieces. Combine lemon juice, oil, pepper, laurel and salt and pour over meat in a stone crock. Cover. Keep in cool place for two days stirring occasionally. Lace meat chunks on long skewers alternately with onion slices and bacon folded in half. Broil over charcoal or under a broiler. Serve on bed of hot rice. Yield: 8 portions.

Rognons de Veau a la Liégeoise

(Brussels, New York)

2 small veal kidneys	2 tablespoons crushed juniper berries
Salt and pepper to taste	3 tablespoons melted meat glaze
2 tablespoons butter	Chopped parsley
1 small wine glass, burned gin

Trim kidneys leaving a slight coating of fat all around them and slice in two or three. Season with salt and pepper. Toss in butter over a high heat until kidneys are brown on both sides; transfer to a casserole. Swirl into the saucepan gin, berries and meat glaze; heat. Pour over kidneys. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. Serve very hot in casserole. Yield: 1 portion.

Black Bean Soup With Red Wine and Frankfurters

(Menger Hotel, San Antonio)

1 pound black beans	2 teaspoons salt
3 medium sized potatoes, diced	$\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper
$\frac{1}{4}$ cup diced celery	2 garlic cloves, chopped
1 medium-sized onion, chopped	$\frac{1}{2}$ pound frankfurters, diced
2 small carrots, chopped	1 pint Burgundy
	Tabasco to taste

Pick over beans carefully and wash; soak overnight. The following morning wash again and cook in just enough water to cover, for  $1\frac{1}{2}$  hours. Add vegetables, seasonings and garlic. Add water to cover and cook until vegetables and beans are tender. Put through sieve. Add frankfurters, wine and Tabasco. Simmer until frankfurters are heated through. Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

Sweetbreads

(Flame Restaurant, Phoenix)

4 pairs sweetbreads	$\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper
2 quarts water	$\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter or margarine
2 teaspoons salt	1 cup fresh mushroom buttons
2 tablespoons vinegar	1 cup Sherry wine
1 bay leaf	$\frac{1}{2}$ cup stock or consommé
Pinch of rosemary	8 thin slices Virginia ham
Pinch of thyme
$\frac{1}{4}$ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt

Cover sweetbreads with water, adding salt, vinegar and herbs. Bring to a boil and simmer 20 minutes; drain and cover with cold water. When cool, remove membrane and split sweetbreads in half. Dredge in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Heat butter in skillet, add sweetbreads, mushrooms and fry until golden. Add sherry and stock; cover and cook 30 minutes. Place thin slice of ham on toast; add sweetbreads and sauce. Yield: 8 portions.

Bigarade Sauce

(Pump Room, Chicago)

3 cups thin brown drippings from roasting pan	3 oranges
1 cup currant jelly	2 lemons
	1 jigger Burgundy
	1 jigger Madeira
	$\frac{1}{2}$ jigger Cointreau

Mix drippings with jelly and simmer slowly for  $1\frac{1}{2}$  hours. If necessary skim from time to time. Peel rind from oranges and lemons without disturbing white pulp. Cut into fine strips; squeeze juice of fruit into separate pan; add strips. Simmer 15 to 20 minutes. Add fruit juice, strips, wines and Cointreau to beef-jelly mixture and simmer 10 minutes. Strain through fine cheesecloth. Dip slices of bird into sauce prior to serving. Approximate yield: 2 cups sauce. Note: 2 cans condensed bouillon plus enough water to make 3 cups can be substituted for drippings.

Haigayan Kebab

(Omar Khayyam's, San Francisco)

- |  |                             |
|--|-----------------------------|
| 4 squares parchment paper                    | 1 medium onion, quartered   |
| 2 pounds lamb shoulder, cut into four pieces | 1 small eggplant, quartered |
| 2 green peppers, halved                      | 1 potato, quartered         |
| 2 tomatoes, halved                           | Salt and pepper to taste    |

Place in center of each square of paper one piece of lamb, half a pepper, half a tomato, one-fourth onion, one-fourth eggplant, one-fourth potato, salt and pepper. Wrap each unit into a compact package and place side by side in a roasting pan. Bake in a 350° F. oven 2½ to 3 hours. Do not turn packages; do not use water, as there will be enough moisture in the vegetables to make a delicious natural gravy. To serve, leave in the individual packages. The aroma, as the meat is unwrapped, is a great stimulant to appetite. Guests are intrigued, wondering what in tunket waits inside. Let it be a surprise! Yield: 4 portions.

Green Goddess Dressing

(Palace Hotel, San Francisco)

- |                               |                             |
|-------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 1 clove garlic                | 1 teaspoon                  |
| 4 anchovy fillets, finely cut | chopped tarragon            |
| 2 tablespoons chopped onion   | 2 teaspoons chopped chives  |
| 1 teaspoon chopped parsley    | 1 teaspoon tarragon vinegar |
|                               | 1½ cups mayonnaise          |

Cut garlic clove in half; rub cut sides over salad bowl. Add anchovy, onion, parsley, chopped tarragon, chives and vinegar. Add mayonnaise; gently mix until thoroughly blended. Yield: 1¼ cups. Serve over romaine, escarole and chicory.

Congressional Apple Pie

(U.S. Congress dining room, Washington, D. C.)

- |                                |                          |
|--------------------------------|--------------------------|
| 1 standard recipe plain pastry | ½ teaspoon cinnamon      |
| 8 large tart apples            | ¾ teaspoon salt          |
| ½ cup sugar                    | 1 tablespoon lemon juice |
| ¼ cup brown sugar or honey     | 1 tablespoon margarine   |

Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry. Peel apples, thinly slice. Combine the sugars

(or sugar and honey) with cinnamon, salt and lemon juice. Add fruit and toss lightly to mix. Arrange in pastry-lined plate. Dot with margarine. Moisten edges of crust and cover with top crust which is then gashed to allow escape of steam. Fold upper crust under lower crust and seal edges with fork. Bake in a very hot oven (450° F.) 10 minutes; reduce heat to 350° F. and bake 40 to 50 minutes longer, or until apples are tender. Yield: 6 portions.

Steak and Kidney Pudding

(Colony, New York)

- |                         |                       |
|-------------------------|-----------------------|
| ½ lb. chopped suet      | 1 veal kidney, cubed  |
| 3 cups flour            | 2 teaspoons salt      |
| 1½ tablespoons salt     | ¼ teaspoon pepper     |
| 1¼ cup water            | ½ teaspoon nutmeg     |
| 3 lbs. lean beef, cubed | 2 tablespoons onion   |
| 1 beef kidney, cubed    | 2 tablespoons parsley |

Put suet through fine blade of meat chopper. Combine flour, suet and salt; add water to hold ingredients together. Roll ¾ pastry as thin as possible and line 3-quart casserole, moistening edge with water. Trim excess fat off meat and kidneys and place in casserole. Season with salt and pepper. Add nutmeg, onion and parsley. Roll out remaining pastry, place over meat, Trim edges and pinch edges together. Wrap casserole in cloth; set on rack in kettle; add boiling water to come one-half way up side of casserole. Boil slowly 5 hours, adding more water as needed. Yield: 8 to 10 servings.

Grand Central Oyster Bar Stew

(Family Style)

(New York)

- |                                    |                        |
|------------------------------------|------------------------|
| 28 oysters                         | ½ teaspoon celery salt |
| 1 cup oyster juice                 | 1 teaspoon paprika     |
| 6 tablespoons butter or margarine  | 1 cup light cream      |
| 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce | 1 pint milk            |
|                                    | Salt to taste          |

Pick over oysters removing bits of shell. Reserve liquid. Put four tablespoons butter or margarine into saucepan. Add Worcestershire, celery salt and paprika.

Add oysters; bring to a simmer; add oyster juice, bring to a boil. Add milk and cream. Stir once or twice. Bring almost to a boil; salt to taste and turn into bowls. Add to each portion  $\frac{1}{2}$  tablespoon butter or margarine. Yield: 4 servings.

Crabmeat Tetrazzini

(Cape Cod Room, Hotel Drake, Chicago)

4 shallots, chopped	$\frac{1}{2}$ cup heavy cream
$\frac{3}{4}$ cup butter	Salt and pepper
2 pounds lump crabmeat	2 pounds spa- ghetti, cooked
Pinch of paprika	3 ounces Parme- san cheese, grated
$\frac{1}{2}$ cup Sherry wine
Cream sauce (see below)

Simmer shallots in butter for 3 minutes. Add crabmeat and paprika. Flame with Sherry wine. Add cream sauce and cream. Season to taste. Bring to a boil and remove from heat. Serve with buttered spaghetti on side dish; sprinkle with cheese. Yield: 8 to 10 portions.

Cream Sauce

6 tablespoons but- ter	2 cups hot milk
6 tablespoons flour	Salt and pepper

Melt butter in saucepan and stir in flour to make a smooth paste. Add milk gradually and stir constantly until smooth and thickened. Season to taste. Simmer and stir for 15 minutes.

Old-Fashioned Pound Cake

(Sautter's, Philadelphia)

1 pound butter	1 tablespoon va- nilla extract
1 pound sugar	2 teaspoons orange extract
1 pound shelled eggs, separated (about 10 eggs)	1 pound all-pur- pose flour, sifted

Cream butter and beat in sugar gradually. Cream together well. Add the egg yolks bit by bit and continue beating until thoroughly blended. Add flavorings; lightly fold in flour. Beat egg whites until just barely stiff; fold in, oh so gently. Pour into two loaf pans (8 x 4 x 3) lined with heavy waxed paper and buttered. Bake  $1\frac{1}{2}$  hours in a 325° F. oven.

Grenadine of Beef, Béarnaise

(Chasen's, Hollywood)

1 whole 8-pound beef tenderloin (fat and sin- ews removed)	2 tablespoons flour
24 3 by $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch strips of salt pork	$\frac{1}{2}$ cup Sherry wine
Salt and pepper	1 cup water or stock
$1\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour	$\frac{1}{2}$ cup Béarnaise sauce (See p. 73.)
$\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter

Cut beef tenderloin into 24 slices. Pound slices to  $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch thickness. Insert a strip of salt pork in each piece of tenderloin. Season with salt and pepper; dip in  $1\frac{1}{2}$  cups flour. Sauté in butter to desired doneness; remove from pan and keep warm. Add 2 tablespoons of flour in pan, let brown. Add wine and water or stock; heat. Pour sauce into platter; arrange the grenadines of beef interlocking. Put Béarnaise sauce on each slice of beef. Yield: 12 portions.

Omelet Espagnole

(Antoine's, New Orleans)

1 No. 2 can to- matoes	6 chopped shal- lots, or $\frac{1}{2}$ cup minced onion
3 tablespoons butter	5 tablespoons chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon salt	$\frac{1}{2}$ cup white wine
Few grains pepper	$\frac{1}{2}$ cup canned button mush- rooms
Few grains Cay- enne	$\frac{1}{2}$ cup cooked peas
1 sprig thyme	4 eggs
1 tablespoon minced parsley	1 tablespoon olive oil
1 bay leaf
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 tablespoon flour

Combine tomatoes and 1 tablespoon butter; simmer ten minutes stirring occasionally. Add salt, pepper and Cayenne; cook 10 minutes. Add thyme, parsley, bay leaf and garlic. Cook 15 minutes, or until sauce is thick. Melt one tablespoon butter, blend in flour; cook until brown. Add shallots, green pepper, brown slightly. Add wine stirring constantly until slightly thickened. Add mushrooms and peas. Beat eggs until well blended; add tomato mixture. Heat remaining butter and olive oil in skillet, pour in egg mixture. Shake skillet until eggs begin to set, lifting edges of omelet to allow uncooked mixture to flow under omelet. When cooked fold over. If desired, garnish with chopped parsley. Yield: 4 portions.

Mincemeat Muffins

(Camelback Inn, Phoenix)

- |                               |                                 |
|-------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup shortening  | 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour |
| $\frac{1}{3}$ cup sugar       | 1 tablespoon                    |
| $1\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons salt | baking powder                   |
| 1 egg, beaten                 | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup mincemeat     |
| 1 cup milk                    |                                 |

Cream together shortening, sugar and salt. Combine egg and milk; add to creamed mixture. Mix in sifted flour and baking powder. Fold in mincemeat. Pour into greased muffin pans. Bake at 400° F. for 20 to 25 minutes. Approximate yield: 1 dozen medium sized muffins.

Locke-Ober's Baked Lobster Savannah (Locke-Ober's, Boston)

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| 1 3-pound live lobster  | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup diced green pepper     |
| Boiling water   | 1 red pimento, sliced                    |
| 1 tablespoon butter, melted                                   | 1 teaspoon paprika                       |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt                                   | Salt and pepper to taste                 |
| 1 cup standard Newburg sauce, using 2 tablespoons Sherry wine | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup fresh bread crumbs     |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped, fresh mushrooms                    | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup grated Parmesan cheese |
|   | Sherry wine                              |
|   | Lemon wedges                             |

Plunge lobster into boiling salted water, cover and boil for thirty minutes. Remove lobster and cool. Cut off claws and legs so that only the body is left. Hold lobster with its top side up and using kitchen shears, cut an oval opening in the top of the shell from the base of the head to the tail. Remove all the meat from the body and the claws (the legs are discarded). Cut the lobster meat in cubes and place in a buttered baking pan along with butter and salt. Bake at 375° F. for 20 minutes. Remove pan from oven and drain off accumulated liquid. Add lobster to Newburg sauce along with mushrooms and green pepper. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, for 15 minutes. Remove the pan from the heat and stir in pimento and paprika. Taste and add as much salt and pepper as you like. Pile the filling into the lobster shell. Mix together bread crumbs and cheese and sprinkle over top of filling. Transfer lobster to a shallow pan. Bake at 375° F. for 15 minutes or until topping is golden brown. Remove from oven and place on hot serving dish. Sprinkle the top with several tablespoonsful Sherry. Serve with lemon wedges. Yield: 1 generous serving, or 2 medium portions.

Arroz Con Pollo

(Columbia, Ybor City, Fla.)

- |                             |                                |
|-----------------------------|--------------------------------|
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup oil       | 3 cups water                   |
| 1 frying chicken, quartered | 1 bay leaf                     |
| 1 onion, chopped            | 1 tablespoon salt              |
| 2 cloves garlic, minced     | Pinch of saffron               |
| 1 green pepper, chopped     | 1 cup raw rice                 |
| $\frac{3}{4}$ cup tomatoes  | 1 2-ounce can small green peas |
|                             | 2 pimentos, cut into strips    |

Heat oil in frying pan. Add chicken and brown well on both sides. Add onion, garlic and green pepper; cook 5 minutes. Add tomatoes and water; cook for 5 minutes. Stir in bay leaf, salt, saffron and rice. Cover and bake in a 350° F. oven for 20 minutes or until tender. Garnish with peas and pimentos. Yield: 4 servings.

Crêpes Louise

(Imperial House, Chicago)

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup thick cream sauce         | 4 crêpes, about 5 inches                               |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon chopped parsley      | 4 whole mushroom caps                                  |
| 1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar               | 1 tablespoon (rounded) stiffly whipped cream           |
| 1 tablespoon chopped tarragon leaves        | 1 tablespoon (heaping) Hollandaise sauce. (See p. 64.) |
| Salt and pepper to taste                    | 1 cup thin cream sauce                                 |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce | Grated Parmesan cheese (optional)                      |
| 1 cup fresh lump crabmeat                   |  |

Bring thick cream sauce to a boil in saucepan; add parsley, vinegar, tarragon, salt, pepper and Worcestershire. Add crabmeat, being careful not to mash it too much. Prepare crêpes. Place spoonful of the fish mixture in center of each crepe, roll up and place in a casserole with a mushroom cap on top of each. Fold cream and Hollandaise into the thin cream sauce and pour over the pancakes. Sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese, if desired. Brown under broiler and serve very hot. Yield: 2 portions.

Béarnaise Sauce (Arnaud's, New Orleans)

- |                     |                            |
|---------------------|----------------------------|
| 1 cup butter        | 1 teaspoon                 |
| 4 tablespoons flour | chopped chives             |
| 2 cups hot milk     | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup capers   |
| Salt and pepper     | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup tarragon |
| 1 teaspoon          | vinegar                    |
| chopped parsley     | 2 egg yolks,               |
|                     | slightly beaten            |

Melt  $\frac{3}{4}$  cup of the butter and stir in flour to make a smooth paste. Add milk gradually and stir constantly until smooth and thickened. Season to taste. Add parsley, chives, capers and vinegar. Simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Stir in egg yolks slowly along with remaining butter. Yield: about  $3\frac{1}{2}$  cups sauce.

Brown Derby Black Bottom Pie (Brown Derby, Hollywood)

- |                                 |                                 |
|---------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| 1 envelope unflavored gelatin   | 1 cup evaporated milk, whipped* |
| $\frac{3}{4}$ cup sugar         | 1 teaspoon vanilla              |
| $\frac{1}{8}$ teaspoon salt     | 1 9-inch baked pie shell        |
| 1 egg yolk                      | 1 cup whipping cream            |
| $\frac{3}{4}$ cup milk          |                                 |
| 4 squares unsweetened chocolate |                                 |

Mix gelatin, sugar, salt, egg yolk and milk in top of double boiler; add three squares of the chocolate. Cook over hot water until chocolate is melted, stirring occasionally; remove from heat. If necessary, beat with egg beater until smooth. Chill. Fold in whipped evaporated milk and vanilla. Pile into cooled pie shell. Chill.

Whip cream, sweetened to taste, and spread over top of pie. Shave remaining chocolate into curls. Sprinkle over topping. Yield: 1 9-inch pie.

\*To whip evaporated milk pour one cup into freezer tray. Chill in freezing compartment until tiny ice crystals form at edges (about  $\frac{1}{2}$  hour). Pour into cold bowl; whip rapidly with a cold beater until stiff.

Canlis' Salad (Canlis', Seattle)

- |  |  |
|--|--|
| 2 tablespoons olive oil                        | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped green onion              |
| Salt   | 6 tablespoons olive oil                            |
| 3 cloves garlic                                | Juice of 1 lemon                                   |
| 2 peeled tomatoes                              | $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper |
| 2 heads romaine lettuce                        | 1 soft-coddled egg                                 |
| 1 pound bacon, finely chopped and fried        | 1 cup croutons                                     |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup freshly grated Romano cheese |  |

Pour 2 tablespoons olive oil into salad bowl. Sprinkle generously with salt. Using 3 fingers, press garlic and rub the bowl with it. (The oil will act as a lubricant and the salt as an abrasive.) Cut tomatoes into quarters or eighths and put in bottom of bowl. Cut romaine into 1-inch strips and put on top of tomatoes. (Other salad vegetables may be used but always put heavy vegetables on bottom of bowl and romaine on top.) Sprinkle bacon, cheese and onion over greens. In a separate bowl, combine 6 tablespoons olive oil, lemon juice, pepper and egg; beat well. Add dressing to greens only when ready to serve. Add croutons, toss and serve. Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

Homard aux Aromates (Brussels, New York)

- |                                   |                                     |
|-----------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 3 large lobsters, split           | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup brandy            |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter          | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup white wine        |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon thyme      | $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups fish stock      |
| 2 bay leaves                      | 1 cup heavy cream                   |
| 1 cup chopped celery              | 1 cup julienne celery, cooked       |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped parsley | 1 cup julienne string beans, cooked |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped onions  | 1 cup julienne carrots, cooked      |
| 1 garlic clove, chopped           |                                     |

Split lobster lengthwise, crack claws. Remove any coral; chop. Brush lobster with butter, broil 5-10 minutes. Remove lobster meat from shell. Sauté lobster in butter; add thyme, bay leaf, celery, parsley, onion and garlic. Pour brandy and white wine over all; flame it. Add fish stock; cook 15 minutes; strain. Reduce sauce to one cup. To the stock add cream, coral, cooked vegetables and lobsters. Heat; season with salt and pepper. Yield: 4 servings.

Trifle Pudding

(Cock 'n Bull, Los Angeles)

2 tablespoons cornstarch	¼ pound almond macaroons
2 cups milk	¼ pound ladyfin- gers
3 tablespoons sugar	½ cup raspberry jam
3 egg yolks	Whipped cream
3 tablespoons wa- ter	Maraschino cher- ries
¼ cup Sherry wine
¼ cup Brandy

Dissolve cornstarch in ¼ cup of the milk. Heat remaining milk in double boiler over hot water; stir in cornstarch paste. Beat together sugar, egg yolks and water; stir gradually into hot milk. Cook until thickened, about 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Cool; add Sherry and Brandy. Crumble macaroons and ladyfingers, mixing the two together. Line a 1½-quart dish with part of the jam; sprinkle with crumb mixture. Combine remaining jam, crumbs and custard sauce. Pour into crumb-lined dish. Chill for several hours or overnight. Just before serving, cover thickly with whipped cream and decorate with cherries or other fruit. Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

Long Island Bay Scallops, Provençale

("21," New York)

1 pound scallops	3 tablespoons of stewed tomatoes
Salt and pepper to taste	2 cloves garlic
Flour for dredging	Juice of ½ lemon
1 tablespoon but- ter	Parsley to sprinkle

Season scallops with salt and pepper and dredge in flour. Brown half of butter in frying pan. Put scallops in pan and cook about 2 minutes on each side until golden brown. Place scallops on serving dish. Brown rest of butter and add finely chopped garlic. Put 1 tablespoon of stewed tomatoes on each portion of scallops. First pour lemon juice over scallops and tomatoes and then butter with garlic. Serves 2 to 3.

Cherry Torte, Black Forest Style

(Luchow's, New York)

1 quart large black Bing cherries, washed	3 egg yolks ½ cup light cream
½ cup Kirsch	2 8-inch sponge layers, one inch thick
1½ pounds confec- tioners' sugar	1 cup finely shaved bitter- sweet chocolate
3 tablespoons cornstarch
½ pound butter

Remove stems and pits from cherries. Mix Kirsch and one cup sugar; pour over fruit in a bowl; let stand two hours; heat to boiling. Mix cornstarch with about 2 tablespoons cherry juice and stir into cherries. Cook and stir until thickened. Remove from heat and cool. Beat butter and remaining sugar; cream together until smooth and well blended. Beat egg yolks into this and continue beating until mixture is light and fluffy. Place layer of cake on serving plate. Make a border around edge with butter mixture and spread butter cream in circle in center of cake. Spread cooled, thickened cherry mixture over layer. Place second layer on top. Make border around edge of top layer with butter cream. Heap center with remaining cherry mixture. Coat sides with butter cream. Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

Chicken Victoria

(Arnaud's, New Orleans)

4 chickens, 1½ pounds dressed, boned	cut in ½-inch cubes
Seasoned flour	½ pound bacon, finely chopped
½ cup butter	½ cup Sherry wine
2 medium onions, chopped	Salt and pepper
6 fresh mush- rooms, chopped	8 toast rounds
6 large potatoes,	½ cup Béarnaise sauce (See p. 73.)

Cut chickens in half. Coat with flour. Fry in butter until golden brown and partially tender. Add onions, mushrooms and potatoes. Sauté together with chicken. Add bacon and cook until chicken and potatoes are done, about 15 minutes. Add wine and heat. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Place chicken on toast round in center of plate. Arrange vegetable mixture around the chicken. Top chicken with Béarnaise sauce. Yield: 8 portions.

| 1 tablespoon shortening                  | Salt and pepper to taste     |
| 1½ pounds raw shrimp, peeled and cleaned | 1 cup rice, boiled and dried |
| ¼ pound ham                              | 2 tablespoons butter         |
| 3 pork sausages                          | Chopped parsley              |
| 1 6-ounce can tomato paste               | Pimento strips               |

Brown onion, garlic and flour in shortening. Add shrimp, cut into medium-size pieces. Cook, stirring for several minutes, until shrimp are slightly pink. Cut ham and sausages into mouth-size pieces and fry in separate skillet until light brown. Add to shrimp with tomato paste, parsley and thyme. Stir in 2 cups hot water; season with salt and pepper. Cook until shrimp are tender and gravy is the consistency of a stew, about 1 hour. Add rice to shrimp mixture and stir well but gently to prevent mashing. Put into double boiler, add butter, cover and let steam slowly for about ½ hour, stirring carefully to prevent sticking. When rice is dry and flaky, the Jambalaya is cooked. Serve on a large platter garnished with chopped parsley and pimento strips. Yield: 8 to 10 portions.

Holiday Eggnog Pie

(Camelback Inn, Phoenix)

- |                               |                            |
|-------------------------------|----------------------------|
| 1 envelope unflavored gelatin | ⅓ teaspoon nutmeg          |
| ¼ cup cold water              | ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar |
| ½ cup sugar                   | ½ cup sugar                |
| ½ teaspoon salt               | Rum flavoring              |
| ¾ cup milk                    | 1 9-inch baked pie shell   |
| ½ cup light cream             | Whipped cream              |
| 3 eggs, separated             |                            |
| 1 teaspoon vanilla            |                            |

Dissolve gelatin in cold water. Combine ½ cup sugar, salt, milk, cream and beaten egg yolks in a double boiler. Cook over hot water until mixture thickens. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add vanilla and nutmeg. Pour into a bowl and place in a pan of ice cubes.

Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until foamy; gradually beat in ½ cup sugar until stiff. Fold into cooled mixture. Add rum flavoring to taste. Pour into cooled pie shell. Chill and top with whipped cream. Sprinkle with more nutmeg if desired. Approximate yield: 6 portions.

Crab Imperial

(Chesapeake, Baltimore)

- |                              |                        |
|------------------------------|------------------------|
| 1 green pepper, finely diced | 2 eggs                 |
| 2 pimentos, finely diced     | 1 cup mayonnaise       |
| 1 tablespoon English mustard | 3 pounds lump crabmeat |
| 1 tablespoon salt            | Mayonnaise for topping |
| ½ teaspoon white pepper      | Paprika                |

Mix pepper and pimento. Add mustard, salt, pepper, eggs and mayonnaise and mix well. Add crabmeat and mix in with fingers so lumps are not broken. Divide mixture into eight crab shells or casseroles, heaping it in lightly. Top with a light coating of mayonnaise and sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 350° F. for 15 minutes. Serve hot or cold. The traditional Baltimore garnish is a creamy cole slaw, tomato slices, crisp lettuce and French-fried potatoes. Yield: 8 portions.

Vanilla Soufflé (Voisin, New York)

2 cups milk	1 teaspoon vanilla
3 egg yolks	extract
6 tablespoons sugar	4 egg whites, stiffly beaten
6 tablespoons flour

Boil milk. While it is boiling, mix egg yolks and sugar. Add flour; mix well. Stir in milk and vanilla; place in a saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Let cool thoroughly. Fold in egg whites and pour into a soufflé dish which has been buttered and sugared on the bottom. Place in a pan of hot water. Bake at 350° F. for 50 to 60 minutes, or until firm. Serve at once with Vanilla Custard Sauce. Yield: 6 portions.

Vanilla Custard Sauce (Voisin, New York)

4 egg yolks	1 cup boiling milk
6 tablespoons sugar	½ teaspoon vanilla or Kirsch
1 teaspoon cornstarch	to taste

Mix yolks and sugar; add cornstarch and pour in the milk. Mix thoroughly and place in a saucepan. Add vanilla. Cook stirring constantly until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. If you prefer Kirsch sauce, eliminate vanilla and add liqueur after custard has been cooked.

FOREIGN RESTAURANTS

Fish Soufflé (Croustade de Barbue Lagrene) (La Tour d'Argent, Paris)

2 filets of sole, about 4 ozs. each	2 eggs separated
4 ozs. white Bordeaux wine	Salt and pepper
2 cups mashed potatoes	Ingredients for white sauce (Béchamel):
1 tablespoon bread crumbs	2 tablespoons of melted butter
1 tablespoon melted butter	1½ tablespoons of flour
6 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese	1 cup milk

To prepare white sauce: Add flour to 2 tablespoons of melted butter. Mix well. Bring milk to a boil and add to butter and flour mixture allowing it to cook for about 10 minutes and stirring frequently. Remove from fire.

Simmer fish in wine 8 to 10 minutes. Add 4 tablespoons of cheese, egg yolks, salt and pepper to white sauce. Mix well. Mash fish in its own stock and add to sauce. Beat egg white until stiff and fold into the fish mixture with a wooden spoon. Place mashed potatoes in a buttered baking dish. Scoop out a hollow in the middle and pour in the fish mixture. Bring edges of potatoes up so that the mixture doesn't spill over the sides. Mix bread crumbs with remainder of cheese (2 tablespoons) and scatter over the whole thing. Sprinkle with the rest (1 tablespoon) of the melted butter. Place in a medium oven for 30 to 35 minutes.

Beef Filet Excelsior Style (Hotel Excelsior, Rome)

1 beef filet, about 4 pounds	6 ozs. Madeira wine
¼ cup of good olive oil	½ pound each
2 ozs. foie gras	carrots, lima beans, peas, asparagus and squash
2 heads of truffle, sliced	1 pound potatoes

Slit filet lengthwise to a depth of a little over half the thickness. Fill with foie gras and truffle slices, distributing both evenly throughout the length. Close up and tie with string. Heat oil in shallow pan and in it brown meat on both sides. When brown place in medium hot oven for 20 to 25 minutes. Cook vegetables separately. When beef is done remove to large serving platter. Discard grease from pan but do not wash.

To prepare Madeira sauce:

Pour 6 ozs. of Madeira wine in pan and add about 2 cups of brown gravy. Bring to a boil and strain over the beef. Garnish with vegetables. Serves 6 to 7.

Rognons Flambés

(Alex Humbert, Paris)

3 veal kidneys, trimmed and cut cross-wise into 4 slices	1½ tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper to taste	1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
2 tablespoons butter	½ cup brown gravy
2 ozs. brandy	Chopped parsley to sprinkle

Season kidneys. Heat 2 tablespoons of butter until golden brown in saucepan. Add kidney slices and cook for 1 to 2 minutes. Pour on brandy and tip the pan so that it flames up. Put kidneys on a platter. Mix 1½ tablespoons butter with Dijon mustard. Add gravy and pour this mixture into the kidney stock. Cook on a slow fire from 5 to 6 minutes and pour over kidneys. Sprinkle with parsley and serve. Serves 3.

Potatoes Taillevent

(Taillevent, Paris)

4 tablespoons butter	6 eggs
½ cup water	3 large potatoes, cooked or baked
½ cup milk	1 quart oil
1 cup flour

In a large pan pour milk, water and butter and bring to a boil. Add 1 cup of flour slowly, beating constantly. Cook 4-5 minutes. Remove from fire. Add 6 eggs one by one, mixing with wooden spoon. Pass potatoes through a ricer and stir into mixture. Heat to medium hot about 1 quart of oil (deep enough to submerge potato balls). Drop in 1 tablespoon at a time by using 2 tablespoons, one to shape the balls, the other to push off into the oil. Cook until golden brown.

Sole au Sherry Wine

(L'Escargot, Paris)

2 filets of sole	minced mushrooms
Salt and pepper	1 egg yolk
2 ozs. Sherry	1 tablespoon cream
½ cup cream
2 tablespoons

Into a lightly buttered shallow pan place filets. Add salt and pepper, minced mushrooms over the top and pour in wine. Place on a slow fire, well covered, steaming for 10 minutes. In the meantime, simmer the cream until it thickens. Remove stock from fish and pour slowly into thickened cream, stirring constantly. Mix egg yolk with tablespoon of cream and add to sauce slowly. Now pour sauce over the fish and place under broiler until brown.

Albufera Chicken

(Hotel Ritz, Madrid)

1 chicken about 2½ lbs.	either Malaga or Port
Salt and pepper to taste	1 pt. cream
A little oil or butter	Chicken liver, cooked and chopped (about 2 ozs.)
4 ozs. of wine,

Season chicken with salt and pepper. Rub butter or oil over skin and roast either whole or in quarters slowly so that it doesn't get too brown. After about 40 or more minutes, when chicken is done, place in a serving dish, and keep warm. Heat wine in the same roasting pan for a few minutes. Add cream, simmer slowly 10 to 15 minutes. Then mix in chopped liver. Pour over chicken. This is to be served with rice prepared as follows:

½ onion, chopped fine	A few cooked peas
a little oil	1 tablespoon of chopped ham
½ cup rice	Sprinkle of chopped saffron
2 cups water
1 whole pimento, diced

Heat oil in pan, put in onion and let cook until golden brown. Add rice. When brown add salt and pepper. Add water, pimento. Sprinkle with peas, ham and saffron. Bring to a boil. Simmer slowly, about 20 minutes until water has been absorbed.

Caneton Soufflé à la Châtelaine de Tourbillon

(The Dorchester, London)

1 duckling, about 5 lbs., boned	$\frac{1}{2}$ pint heavy cream
1 lb. fresh, ground pork	Salt and pepper to taste
$\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoon but- ter	4 ozs. Madiera
1 large onion, chopped fine	1 cup brown gravy
6 mushrooms, chopped	Seedless grapes and chopped walnuts
1 clove garlic, crushed

To bone duckling, lay it breast-side down. Slit down the back and with a knife carefully cut bone away from meat. Melt butter in a skillet and simmer onion, mushrooms and garlic for 2-3 minutes. Add to pork. Stir in cream little by little until mixture becomes a paste. Stuff duck through the back so that duck retains its original shape. Sew up opening. Rub a little melted butter over skin and place in oven. Cook slowly for 1 to  $1\frac{1}{2}$  hours, basting often. When duck is done, place on a serving platter and keep hot. Discard grease but do not wash pan. Put Madiera in pan and add gravy. Simmer for 5-6 minutes and strain. Add a few grapes and walnuts. Pour over duckling.

Spaghetti with Sea Food

(San Francisco Restaurant, Paris)

1 pound thin spa- ghetti	$\frac{1}{2}$ pound scallops
4 quarts water	$\frac{1}{2}$ pound mussels or oysters, chopped or cut in 4
1 small onion, cut fine	$\frac{1}{4}$ cup dry white wine plus 1 tablespoon
1 small clove gar- lic	1 tablespoon purée of to- mato
$\frac{1}{2}$ small carrot, cut fine	Salt and pepper to taste
1 tablespoon diced celery	Pinch powdered red pepper
2 tablespoons olive oil
Meat of 1 lobster cut into pieces or 1 pound shrimps

Heat oil. Add onions, garlic, carrot and celery and cook until golden brown. In the meantime, steam mussels in 1 tablespoon of white wine. Remove mussels from shells, reserving the liquid in the pot. Add lobster to cooking vegetables. After about 3 minutes add wine, tomato and seasonings. Add scallops, mussels and liquid from steaming pot. Simmer not more than 8 to 10 minutes. Serves 8 to 10.

Boil spaghetti in salted water 10 to 12 minutes. Drain well and serve with sauce.

"The Joppe" Shrimp Salad

(Restaurant Riche, Stockholm)

8 shrimps cooked and de-veined	2 slices of toma- to
6 asparagus tips	Lettuce, shredded
1 egg, hard-cooked, quartered

Dressing:

2 small mush- rooms (cooked or raw) chopped	Pinch of fresh dill, chopped
	2-3 tablespoons mayonnaise

Place bed of lettuce in center of dish. Place 3 asparagus tips at either side and a slice of tomato at the top and bottom. Put an egg quarter between each slice of tomato and asparagus. Place shrimps on the lettuce. Mix mushrooms, parsley, dill and mayonnaise together and pour on shrimp.

Breast of Chicken Carignano Style

(Hotel Excelsior, Rome)

2 chicken breasts	4 ozs. cream
Salt and pepper to taste	1 large mushroom, quartered
2 ozs. brandy

Cut each breast through the breastbone to make two halves. Remove breast meat from bone, keeping upper half of wing with bone. Season chicken. Melt butter in skillet and place chicken in it, skin-side down. Brown slowly. Then brown the other side. Cook mushroom in same pan for the last few minutes. When chicken is brown add brandy and simmer (covered) for 10 minutes. Remove breasts and mushroom. Pour cream into the same pan, cooking for a few minutes until it begins to thicken. Add a pat of butter agitating the pan so that it mixes. Remove from fire. Pour over the chicken breasts and serve very hot, using the mushroom to garnish.

Tenderloin of Veal Passetto Style

(Ristorante "Passetto," Rome)

2 veal tenderloins	Little garlic juice
Salt and pepper to taste	or garlic salt
1 tablespoon butter	1 slice of cooked ham (about 1 oz.) cut into small pieces
White wine to sprinkle	1 tablespoon capers
3 mushrooms, chopped fine	1 fresh, diced, peeled tomato

Season tenderloins. Place them in hot butter in saucepan. Sprinkle with wine and cook for 10 to 15 minutes on a hot stove. Add mushrooms, garlic, ham, capers and tomato. Cook together for 10 to 15 minutes so that the meat becomes well flavored. Remove the meat and continue simmering sauce until it is only moist. Pour over the meat and serve.

Steak Pudding

(made preferably with venison)
(Buck's Club, London)

2 pounds venison (or beef), cut into cubes; save bones	Salt and pepper to taste
1 large onion, chopped fine	A little powdered clove
	18 oysters
	1 tablespoon butter

Thin brown gravy:

Venison (or beef) bones	chopped
A little flour	Water
1 fresh tomato, peeled and	Salt and pepper to taste

Crust:

¾ pound beef suet, chopped fine	1 pound plain flour
	Cold water

Brown venison (or beef) bones in a skillet, sprinkle with flour and add tomato and enough water to cover. Simmer covered for 2 to 3 hours. Strain and season. Brown venison (or beef) and onion in butter in large pan. Add salt, pepper and clove. Add gravy and simmer slowly for 5 hours. In the meantime, mix suet and flour. Add enough cold water to make a bread-like dough. Roll out and line a casserole. Be sure to reserve enough dough for the top crust. Add meat mixture and cover with top crust. Put pudding in oven and cook for 1 hour slowly so that the top crust does not burn. In the meantime, simmer oysters in a little water about 10 minutes. When pudding is done, remove from oven, lift top crust and place oysters over the meat mixture. Replace crust and serve with:

Hot Port wine sauce:

3 cloves	2 tablespoons red currant jelly
1 clove garlic	4 tablespoons Port wine
3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon thin strips orange rind

Boil cloves, garlic, and orange rind in Worcestershire sauce. Add jelly and wine. Heat thoroughly.

Gazpacho a la Andaluza

(Hotel Ritz, Madrid)

1 clove garlic	a little cumin
½ teaspoon of olive oil	a little red pepper
1 small cucumber with peel (center containing seeds removed)	a dash Worcestershire sauce
4 tomatoes	1 water roll (or a slice of bread) soaked in 2 cups of water
1 small green sweet pepper	1 teaspoon of wine vinegar
a pinch of salt	1 pt. light cream

Pass garlic, oil, cucumber, tomatoes and green pepper 4 or 5 times through a grinder until it becomes a paste. Add salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Then add bread and water, beating with a rotary beater. Mix in wine vinegar, then cream. Serve very cold.

Gratin of French Lobster "Georgette"

(Restaurant Lapérouse, Paris)

1 lobster, about 1½ pounds	¾ cup cream sauce (for preparation see recipe for Fish Soufflé, page 78.)
Salt and pepper to taste	Grated Parmesan cheese
4 mushrooms, cut in quarters
1 teaspoon butter
1 oz. brandy

Cook lobster 8 minutes in a little seasoned water in a covered pot. Drain and remove meat from shell. In the meantime cook mushrooms over a low fire. Now add the lobster meat and about 1 teaspoon butter. Sauté 8 to 9 minutes. Add brandy and cream sauce. Bring to a simmer. Then remove from fire to platter. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and place under broiler or in oven until brown.

| 1 banana                        | ½ cup rice                                   |
|                                 | 2 cups cold water                            |

Piquant sauce:

- |                                    |                 |
|------------------------------------|-----------------|
| Dash of sherry (orlemon juice) | Salt to taste   |
|                                    | 1 pinch saffron |

Flatten veal cutlets until very thin. Season with salt and pepper and dredge in flour. Heat butter in skillet. Fry cutlets and banana, cut lengthwise, until golden brown. Place meat on serving platter with half banana on each slice. To prepare piquant sauce pour cream into saucepan, and heat until it begins to thicken. Add sherry, orange and figs, stirring constantly. Bring to a boil and pour over veal.

To cook the rice put the saffron into the water in a saucepan. Add the rice, bring to a boil. Remove from the fire. Cover and allow it to stand in a warm place on the stove or in the oven for 20 minutes, when the water should be absorbed. Serve together.

| 1 clove garlic                              | Sliced truffles(optional) |

Cut capon into quarters and season with salt and pepper. Dredge in flour. Melt the butter in a shallow pan and add capon, carrots and onion. Cook for 15 minutes, browning capon on both sides. Add wine, water, garlic and herbs. Cook slowly about 40 minutes.

In the meantime, cook cut-up mushrooms in a very little butter for 7 to 8 minutes. Add lemon juice.

Put chicken into another metal pan and cover to keep it hot. Skim off fat from gravy and strain. Beat cream with egg yolks until thick. Mix in gravy slowly. Add mushroom mixture. Pour over chicken and warm slowly, taking care that it doesn't boil.

Breast of Chicken San Francisco

(San Francisco Restaurant, Paris)

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 1 breast of chicken(for preparationsee recipe forBreast ofChicken Carli-gnano, page78) | 1 egg, beatenFlour to dredgeBread crumbs2 tablespoons but-ter2 slices of foie grasMadiera sauce (forpreparation seerecipe for BeefFilet Excelsior,page 76.) |
| Salt and pepper totaste  |   |
| 2 slices of cookedham  |   |

When chicken has been prepared, pound the breast meat between 2 pieces of waxed paper until very thin. Season lightly. Dip one side of each ham slice in the beaten egg and place one on each half of the chicken breast so that it adheres. Dredge in flour, egg and bread crumbs on both sides. Heat butter in shallow pan until golden brown. Then put the chicken in and cook until brown on both sides. Place in a medium hot oven for 10 minutes. Serve with Madeira sauce and garnish with slices of foie gras. Serves 2.

Shrimps Excelsior Style

(Hotel Excelsior, Rome)

- |                             |  |

| ¼ cup of goodolive oil  | 2 tablespoonsfinely choppedparsley |

Clean shrimp. Put them in heated oil in a large saucepan. Add pepper, salt and onions. Fry for 5 minutes on a fairly high flame. Add wine and parsley. Remove shrimp and place on a serving dish. Pour over the sauce. Serve with slices of French bread, fried or toasted.

Waterzoi

(Caprice Restaurant, London)

- |                            |                      |
|----------------------------|----------------------|
| 1 young chicken            | cream                |
| 2 leeks                    | Salt and pepper      |
| 1 head celery              | to taste             |
| 2 medium sized onions      | 3 tablespoons butter |
| 2 egg yolks                | 2½ tablespoons flour |
| 1 tablespoon or more heavy |                      |

Clean and cut the vegetables into fine strips. Slice the onions. Boil the chicken and vegetables in enough salted water to cover for 45 minutes. Remove the chicken; discard skin and cut into serving portions. Place on serving platter and keep hot. Strain off stock and reduce to 1½ pints. Melt butter, mix in flour, add the stock gradually and cook slowly for 10 to 15 minutes stirring constantly. Strain. Mix cream and egg yolks and add to sauce. Season to taste (add more cream or broth if sauce becomes too thick). Pour sauce over chicken and garnish with vegetables.

Filet of Turkey Alfredo Style

(Ristorante "Alfredo," Rome)

- |   |                      |
|---|----------------------|
| 1 turkey breast cut lengthwise making 3 filets out of each half | 3 tablespoons butter |
| Salt and pepper to taste  | Flour to dredge      |
|   | 1 egg, well beaten   |

Season filets. Dip in flour, then in egg. Heat butter in frying pan. Place filets in pan, cooking very slowly (10 to 12 minutes on each side) until golden brown. Serves 3.

Baby Chicken "Doctor"

(Restaurant Lapérouse, Paris)

- |                                     |                                    |
|-------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1 chicken, about 2½ pounds          | (or veal or beef stock)            |
| Salt and pepper to taste            | 4 ozs. of red Port wine            |
| 2 tablespoons and 1 teaspoon butter | 4 thin, small slices of veal       |
| 1 pint veal gravy                   | ¼ teaspoon chopped, fresh tarragon |

Season chicken. Heat butter on stove and brown the chicken slowly on all sides. When brown place in a medium-hot oven. When about ¾ cooked, add wine and cook until it has been absorbed. Add gravy (or stock) and continue cooking until done, basting when necessary so that the chicken doesn't get dry.

Cook chicken liver in 1 teaspoon butter. When it is still partly rare, cut in quarters and wrap a slice of veal around each segment. Fasten with toothpicks. Put back in pan, sprinkle with tarragon and continue cooking until veal is golden brown. Place chicken in a serving dish. Pour sauce over the chicken and garnish with veal and liver. Serves 2.

Filet of Sole Elisabeth

(Restaurant Riche, Stockholm)

- |                          |                               |
|--------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 2 filets of sole         | 1 tomato                      |
| Salt and pepper to taste | 1 small clove garlic, crushed |
| Little flour             | ½ cup bread crumbs            |
| 2 tablespoons mayonnaise | 2 lemon slices                |
| 1 egg yolk               | Little chopped parsley        |
| 3 tablespoons oil        |                               |

Salt and pepper filets; dip lightly in flour. Combine egg yolk and mayonnaise. Mix well. Dip filets in mayonnaise mixture. Cook quickly in hot oil until golden brown. In the meantime, cut off ends of tomato. Cut into 3 thick slices. Mix crushed garlic and parsley with bread crumbs. Roll tomato slices in bread crumb mixture and sauté in a little butter. Serve with filets garnished with lemon slices. Serves 1.

La Sole de Ma Tante "Marie"

(Restaurant Lucas Carton, Paris)

- |                                       |   |
|---------------------------------------|---|
| 8 medium filets of sole               | 8 or 9 mushrooms, chopped fine            |
| Salt and pepper to taste              | 1 pint cream                              |
| 8 ozs. of white wine                  | 1 tablespoon butter                       |
| Butter to thickly cover bottom of pan | 1 tablespoon of unsweetened whipped cream |

Season sole. Place in buttered pan. Pour in wine and cook until done. Remove filets and place on a serving dish. Continue cooking stock until it thickens. Add cream and simmer until it thickens again. Remove from fire. Add 1 tablespoon butter and whipped cream. In the meantime, cook mushrooms 5 to 8 minutes in a teaspoon of butter. Put on top of each filet a tablespoon of mushrooms. Pour sauce over the whole and place under broiler to brown. Serves 6.

Crusted Lobster "Jockey"

(Jockey Restaurant, Madrid)

- |   |                            |
|---|----------------------------|
| 1 lobster, about1½ pounds, splitlengthwise. | 1 small onion, cutfine |
| Salt and pepper totaste                         | 1 tablespoon but-ter   |
| 2 tablespoons goodolive oil                     | 2 ozs. brandy              |
|   | 8 ozs. cream               |
|   | Grated Parmesancheese  |

Cut lobster lengthwise into two pieces. Season with salt and pepper. Heat olive oil in a shallow pan and sauté lobster in the oil 5 to 6 minutes. Place in a medium hot oven for 5 minutes. In the meantime cook onion in butter until half done. Remove lobster from shell and cut up meat into large pieces. Add lobster meat to the onion on the fire. Sprinkle with brandy and add cream. Boil until sauce is reduced to one-half, adding seasoning if necessary. Place in a glass baking dish. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and brown in oven or under broiler. Serves 2.

Volaille à la Façon du Chef

(Hotel Canterbury, Brussels)

- |  |                                   |
|--|-----------------------------------|
| 2 breasts ofchicken (forpreparation seerecipe forBreast ofChicken Carli-gnano, page78) | 2 fresh tomatoes                  |
| Salt and pepperto taste  | Asparagus tips—enough for 4   |
| 4 teaspoons foiegras   | 4 slices of truffle(optional) |
| Flour to dredge  | Red wine sauce:            |
| 2 tablespoonsbutter  | 4 shallots, cutfine           |
|  | 1 tablespoonbutter            |
|  | 4½ ozs. red wine                  |
|  | ½ cup browngravy              |

When chicken has been prepared stuff 1 teaspoon of foie gras in hollow space between the meat in each half of breast. Season and dredge lightly in flour. Place chicken in heated butter in pan, allowing it to cook slowly until brown on both sides. To prepare wine sauce, simmer shallots in butter 4 to 5 minutes. Add wine and allow to simmer until it is reduced to about half. Add brown gravy and continue cooking for 8 to 9 minutes. In the meantime, cook asparagus tips and broil halved tomatoes. Place chicken breasts on serving dish. Pour over red wine sauce. Garnish with sliced truffles. Serve with broiled tomatoes and asparagus tips with 1 tablespoon of white sauce mixed with 1 tablespoon of unsweetened cream. Serves 2.

Lobster Lammenais

(Taillevent, Paris)

- |  |                                |
|--|--------------------------------|
| 1 lobster, about1½ pounds,split lengthwise | 3 ozs. Madeirawine         |
| 4 tablespoonsbutter                            | ½ pint cream                   |
|  | ¼ pound mush-rooms, cut up |

Split lobster lengthwise. Remove gravel and set coral aside. Crack claws. Brown butter in frying pan. Into this place lobster and cook it until it turns red (8 to 9 minutes). Add wine and simmer for about 2 minutes. Pour in cream and cook for 15 minutes more. Remove lobster to a platter. Reduce stock until it becomes thick enough to stick to the spoon. In the meantime, cook mushrooms slowly in a covered pan with a pat of butter until they are almost dry. Add coral and mushrooms to the strained lobster stock. Simmer until it thickens. Remove meat from shell and claws and add to sauce. Serve in the half shell. Serves 2.

Omelette Flambée "O Sole Mio"

(Ristorante "Alfredo," Rome)

- |                                |                  |
|--------------------------------|------------------|
| 5 eggs                         | Granulated sugar |
| 2 pats butter                  | to sprinkle      |
| 2 tablespoons ap-ricot jam | 1 oz. rum        |

Beat eggs until fluffy. Heat butter in frying pan over a fairly high flame. Pour in eggs. When creamy on top spread jam in the middle. Fold from 2 opposite edges of the omelette so that they meet in the middle. Turn onto a serving dish. Sprinkle with sugar and decorate by making a design with a hot metal bar. At the table pour the rum over the omelette and strike a match to it. A darkened room and a musical accompaniment of "O Sole Mio" are recommended. Serves 3.

INCOME TAX HELP

In this section we cover the Federal income tax law as well as gift and estate taxes and social security. We give the greatest emphasis to income tax help because it is in this area that everybody is affected.

We included this section because we felt that having this information around the house or office months in advance of the fateful due date will give you plenty of time to study it carefully.

We couldn't possibly answer every question or cover every situation in these few pages. But we do think that you will find most of the answers you need spelled out so that you will be able to tackle your return with understanding and confidence. If this section leaves some of your questions unanswered, we suggest that you consult your District Director of Internal Revenue, who is prepared to help you at no cost. In view of the pressure of work in that office around tax time, it would be wise to bring your problems there well ahead of time.

WHO MUST FILE A RETURN?

If you are a citizen or a resident of the United States, and if your gross income for a year amounts to $600 or more, you are required to file a return. This requirement applies to minors, as well as adults.

If you are more than 65 years old, you are required to file only if your gross income is $1,200 or more.

MUST I FILE A RETURN EVEN IF I DO NOT OWE ANY TAX?

Yes, if your income meets the foregoing requirements. In fact, some people required to file a return will be entitled to a tax refund.

WHEN AND WHERE MUST INCOME TAX RETURNS BE FILED?

By April 15 of the year following that covered by the return, with the District Director of Internal Revenue, whose address is shown on the instruction sheet which you receive with your blank forms.

WHAT FORM DO I USE?

There are two forms—Form 1040 and Form 1040A.

Form 1040 is the basic form, and every taxpayer is allowed to use it.

Form 1040A is a simpler form but only certain wage-earners are entitled to use it. Form 1040A is easier to use because the government computes your deductions and tax for you. All you do is provide the information about your income and exemptions. However, you may use this form only if your gross income is less than $5,000 and only if it consists of wages and not more than $100 in dividends and interest.

In computing your deductions under Form 1040A, the government will allow you only deductions for your dependents plus a "standard deduction" equal to approximately 10% of your income. If you are entitled to larger deductions than this, you can obtain them only by filing Form 1040.

WHEN MUST I PAY MY TAX?

You must pay part of your tax in installments in the year in which you earn the income. This is the "pay-as-you-go" system. You are generally required to pay the rest of your tax when you file your return. It may turn out that you don't owe any additional tax when you file your return, or you may even be entitled to a refund, in which case the refund will be paid to you automatically after your return is filed.

HOW DOES THE "PAY-AS-YOU-GO" SYSTEM WORK?

The "pay-as-you-go" system works in two ways, through withholding and declaration of estimated tax. You may be subject to either or both of these requirements.

(a) Withholding. Each time your employer pays you wages or salary, he is required to withhold and pay over to the government an amount which represents your income tax on the payment. The amount which he is required to withhold is set by law and varies with the number of dependents you have. At the end of each year, your employer will give you a form showing the amount of taxes withheld from your pay during the year. See table pages 89-90.

(b) Declaration of estimated tax. The declaration of estimated tax is a device whereby taxpayers are required to estimate their income for the current year and to pay the tax on this income in advance in quarterly installments during that year. Generally, the declaration of estimated tax must be filed and the first installment must be paid on April 15th, the same day on which the income tax return for the previous year is due.

Whether you are required to file such a declaration depends on how much gross income you expect to earn during the year. You are required to file a declaration if you expect your gross income to exceed $5,000. This $5,000 is increased to $10,000

(joint income) if you are eligible to file a joint return. If you qualify as the head of a household, the $10,000 figure also applies.

However, if you receive gross income of $100 or more from sources other than wages, you may have to file a declaration even though your total earnings come to less than $5,000 (or $10,000 as the case may be). The test is as follows:

First, multiply $600 by the number of exemptions you are entitled to and then add $400. If you expect your gross income to be more than this sum, you are required to file a declaration. Example: You are married and have no children. You expect your income for 1955 to consist of $200 in interest and $2,500 in salary:

$ 600
× 2 Number of exemptions
1,200
+ 400
$1,600

Since your expected income will be more than $1,600, you are required to file a declaration.

Declarations are filed on Form 1040ES, which can be obtained from your District Director of Internal Revenue. Declarations can be amended if your financial circumstances change. If you file a declaration, you must make quarterly payments which together equal the amount of income tax which you expect to owe (on the basis of your estimated income) minus amounts you expect to be withheld by your employer.

WHAT IS A JOINT RETURN AND WHAT ARE ITS ADVANTAGES?

If you are married, you and your wife are allowed to report your combined income and your combined deductions on a single return. This is called a joint return. Your combined income is then taxed as though half were yours and half hers. This will usually result in a lower tax. The table on pages 91-92 will tell you what your tax will be if you file a joint return.

Sometimes, in unusual cases, a joint return will result in a higher tax. In such a case you may file separate returns.

You are permitted to file a joint return for the year in which your husband or wife dies. This privilege is extended for 2 additional years, provided you maintain a household, and a child for whom you are entitled to an exemption lives with you.

WHAT TAX PRIVILEGES ARE ACCORDED TO THE "HEAD OF A HOUSEHOLD"?

An unmarried person who pays more than half of the cost of maintaining a household will qualify as the "head of a household," but only if all of the following conditions are met:

1. The taxpayer cannot be a person who is allowed to file a joint return.

2. There must reside in the household either an unmarried child or grandchild of the taxpayer or a relative for whom the taxpayer is entitled to an exemption. (See page 86).

3. Either the taxpayer himself or a parent for whom the taxpayer is entitled to an exemption must reside in the household.

The "head of a household" is taxed at lower rates than apply to other unmarried persons. The tax savings available to the "head of a household" are about one-half of those available to persons filing joint returns.

WHAT IS INCOME?

Income, for purposes of determining how much income tax you must pay, includes money and property which you receive for certain things, and excludes money and property which you receive for other things. To figure out how much tax you owe, you must first add up all of the items you receive which are subject to income tax. (See below.) You then subtract the deductions which you are allowed. (See page 86.) The amount which remains is known as your "taxable income," and you can figure your tax by applying the rate table to it.

WHAT ARE THE TAX RATES?

The income tax rates are printed in the tables on pages 91-92. You will see that income tax rates are not equal to a fixed percentage of your income, but that the percentage increases as your income increases.

WHICH ITEMS ARE SUBJECT TO TAX?

1. Wages, salary, commissions and other pay for services which you perform.

2. Income which you receive from a business which you operate.

3. Your share of the income of partnerships in which you are a partner. The income of a partnership is considered to be taxable income to the partners and they are taxed on it directly, whether it is paid as salary or profits or left in the business.

4. Interest which you receive on bonds (except state and municipal bonds) or interest which you receive on debts owed to you. Interest on bank accounts must be included in the year credited by the bank, even if you do not withdraw it until later.

5. Dividends received from corporations whose stock you own. (See page 88 for fuller discussion.)

6. Rents which you receive on property owned by you.

7. Royalties which you receive.

8. Gains from sales and exchanges of property. (See page 88 for discussion of capital gains.)

9. Alimony which anyone receives periodically. This does not include lump-sum settlements or payments for the support of minor children.

Examples:

(a) In 1954 you receive $4,000 in alimony from a former husband, plus $2,000 for the support of his minor children who are in your custody. The $4,000 is subject to income tax, but the $2,000 is not.

(b) In 1954 you receive $25,000 in a lump-sum in satisfaction of all your claims against your divorced husband, including his obligation to support you. This sum is not subject to income tax.

10. Prizes and awards where you take an action to enter the contest or where you are required to perform future services. All prizes not given for "religious, charitable, scientific, educational, artistic, literary or civic achievement" are also subject to income tax.

Examples:

(a) In 1954 you won a prize of $250 in a beauty contest. In order to obtain the money, you had to pose for pictures after the contest. The $250 must be included by you as subject to income tax.

(b) In 1954 you won a Nobel Prize for literature. In order to obtain the prize money, it was not necessary for you to take any steps to enter the contest or to perform any future services. The prize money is, therefore, not subject to income tax.

WHICH ITEMS ARE NOT SUBJECT TO TAX?

1. Gifts which you receive.

Example:

In 1954 you receive $1,000 as a gift from your father and $500 called a gift, but intended as a bonus, from your employer. The $1,000 is not subject to income tax. However, the $500 really constitutes additional compensation, and is therefore subject to income tax.

2. Amounts which you inherit after an estate is settled.

3. Life insurance paid to you on the death of the insured person.

4. Death benefits, up to $5,000, paid by the employer of a person who has died.

5. Interest which you receive on state and municipal bonds.

6. Repayments of money which you have loaned to others.

7. Amounts received for injury or sickness (your own or your family's) such as workmen's compensation or accident or health insurance. This includes amounts (up to $100 a week) paid in lieu of salary under a wage continuation plan. If you are sick but not hospitalized, this exemption does not apply to the first week's payment. If you are injured, it applies to the first week even if you are not hospitalized. However, if any part of this income reimburses you for expenses which you have previously claimed as a deduction that part becomes subject to tax.

Example: In 1954, you contracted influenza and were required to remain at home for 2 weeks. Because of this illness you received health insurance of $75 under a policy which you paid for, and an additional $40 under a policy your employer paid for to reimburse you for medical expenses. While you were ill at home, your employer continued to pay you your regular salary of $110 per week.

Items subject to tax

$110	first week's pay
10	part of second week's pay in excess of $100
$120

Items not subject to tax

$100	exempt part of second week's pay
75	insurance
40	insurance

Note: Of the salary paid to you by your employer, the first week's pay is fully subject to tax because you were not hospitalized; and only $100 of the second week's pay may be excluded.

8. Amounts received on a scholarship or fellowship, but only that portion which is not payment for teaching or other services. Undergraduate scholarships usually meet this requirement. If you are not a candidate for a degree, this provision applies only to the first $300 per month received, and only for a period of 36 months.

9. Meals and lodgings furnished to you on your employer's premises for his convenience.

10. Combat pay received by members of the U. S. Armed Forces but, in the case of commissioned officers, only up to $200 a month. Combat pay includes all pay for service in Korea, as long as it continues to be designated a "combat zone," and all pay received while hospitalized as a result of service in Korea.

11. Mustering-out payments received by members of the U. S. Armed Forces.

12. A profit made on the sale of your home provided the entire proceeds are used in the purchase of a new home within a year before or after the sale.

WHICH ITEMS CAN BE DEDUCTED IN COMPUTING TAXABLE INCOME?

1. A $600 "exemption" for the taxpayer, and

(a) An additional $600 exemption for the taxpayer's wife if joint returns are filed (see above) or if she has no income of her own.

(b) An additional $600 exemption for the taxpayer and his wife as each reaches the age of 65.

(c) An additional $600 exemption for the taxpayer and/or his wife if either is blind.

(d) An additional $600 exemption for each child who is under 19 years old or a full-time student. If the child is married and files a joint income tax return, the parent may not claim this deduction.

Where no one taxpayer furnishes more than half of the support of such a person, but two or more together furnish such support, they may agree on which one is entitled to the $600 exemption, if certain forms are filed. However, the taxpayer who claims this exemption must furnish more than 10% of the support. Note: An exemption obtained in this manner does not qualify the taxpayer for status as the head of a household.

2. Expenses of a trade or business which you own, including salaries paid to other persons and rent for your office or factory. Travel and entertainment expenses in connection with your business are also deductible, but, as with all other deductions, you should be able to prove the amount spent.

3. The cost of an employee's travel, meals and lodgings while away from home in connection with his job.

4. The expenses of a salesman (who sells at places other than his employer's place of business) in connection with his job.

5. Losses from the sale or exchange of property originally purchased for profit. This does not include your home or other property of a personal nature. (See Page 88 for discussion of capital losses.)

6. Expenses of employees (other than those already covered) in connection with their jobs. This does not include the cost of transportation between your home and your office or other place of business.

7. Expenses which you incur in an activity which you engage in for the production of income even if it is not your trade or business.

8. Interest which you pay on mortgages, bank loans and other loans.

Installment purchases will often entitle you to a deduction for interest:

(a) Any interest which is stated separately on your bill of sale, is deductible in full.

(b) If your bill of sale shows only a carrying charge with no interest specified, you may claim 6% of the average unpaid balance as interest, and deduct it accordingly.

Example: On July 10, 1954 you bought a washing machine on the installment plan for $240 plus carrying charges (separately stated on your bill) of $30. You paid $50 down, and agreed to pay the balance of $220 at the rate of $20 on Aug. 10th and each month thereafter until June 10, 1955.

To compute your interest deduction for 1954, you must first find your average unpaid balance for that year. You do this by adding together what you still owe on the first of every month following the purchase.

You still owe

Aug. 1, 1954	$220
Sept. 1, 1954	200
Oct. 1, 1954	180
Nov. 1, 1954	160
Dec. 1, 1954	140
Total	$900

To find the average you divide this total by 12.

$12 / $900$

$$75$  average unpaid balance for 1954

multiply by .06

you get  $$4.50$ , the interest which you may deduct

(c) If neither interest nor carrying charges are stated separately on your bill of sale, no deduction is allowed.

9. Real estate taxes (except assessments for improvements such as streets or sewers), sales taxes, state or local gasoline taxes, state stock transfer taxes and state income taxes are deductible. The following taxes are not deductible: federal income taxes, federal excise taxes, import duties, gift taxes and federal and state death taxes.

10. Losses which you sustain in any transaction entered into for profit, except losses already deducted under paragraph 5.

11. Losses from storms, floods, explosions, automobile collisions (except those caused by your own gross negligence) and thefts. However, you must subtract the amount of any insurance which you receive to compensate you for the loss.

12. Debts owed to you which become worthless during the year. Personal bad debts are treated as short-term capital losses. (See Page 88.)

13. Depreciation of buildings, machinery, furniture and vehicles used in your business or for the production of income.

14. Contributions to: the United States; a state, county or city; a religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational organization; or a war veteran's organization. Any such contributions which you have made are deductible up to 20% of your adjusted gross income*. In addition, you can deduct another 10% to cover your contributions to churches, schools and hospitals.

Example: In 1954 you contribute $1,100 to a cancer research foundation and $600 to your church. If your adjusted gross income* is $5,000 you are entitled to deduct up to $1,500 (20% of $5,000, or $1,000 for the first type of contribution plus 10% of $5,000, or $500 for the second type of contribution). The remaining $200 is not deductible.

15. You can deduct a part of your medical expenses. To determine how much is deductible, you should list all of the medical expenses of yourself and your dependents for which you have not been reimbursed. These include payments to doctors, dentists, hospitals and nurses as well as premiums for medical or health insurance. To these items you may add the cost of medicine and drugs, but only as much of the cost as exceeds 1% of your adjusted gross income*. To arrive at the amount deductible you add these items together and subtract 3% of your adjusted gross income*.

Example: In 1954 your medical expenses consist of the following: Doctor's bills, $1,100; Hospital bills, $475; Drugs, $160. Let us suppose that your adjusted gross income* is $9,000:

Add:	Doctors' bills	.....	$1,100
	Hospital bills	.....	475
	Drugs	.....	$160
	Minus 1% adjusted gross
	income*	.....	90	70
				$1,645

Now subtract 3% of adjusted gross income*..... 270

The remainder is deductible.. $1,375

* This means your total income subject to tax minus the deductions described in paragraphs 2-6, 12 and 13.

Note: If you or your wife is 65 or older, your combined medical expenses may be deducted in full.

However, there are limits to the amount you may deduct. You may not deduct more than (a) $5,000 if you do not file a joint return, or (b) $10,000 if you file a joint return or if you qualify as the head of a household. In any case you may not deduct more than $2,500 multiplied by the number of exemptions which you are entitled to, except exemptions for age and blindness. (See paragraph 1.)

16. Amounts paid by a woman or widower for the care of a child under 12 years of age (or any other dependent who is mentally or physically incapable of taking care of himself) so that the taxpayer can work. The amount cannot be paid to a person for whom the taxpayer is entitled to an exemption. This deduction cannot exceed $600 in any event. In the case of a woman married to a man who can support himself, two additional limitations apply. First, a deduction is allowed only if they file joint returns. Second, if their joint adjusted gross income* comes to more than $4,500, the excess must be subtracted from the $600 maximum deduction and only what is left may be claimed as a deduction.

Examples:

(a) You are a widow. In 1954 you pay $800 for the care of your one-year-old son so that you can work. You are allowed the $600 maximum deduction.

(b) You are married and file a joint return with your husband. In 1954 you pay $800 for the care of your one-year-old son so that you can work. Your joint adjusted gross income* is $4,800.

From	$4,800	joint adjusted gross income*
you subtract	4,500
this leaves	$ 300

This must be subtracted from the $600 maximum deduction, leaving $300, which you may deduct.

(c) You are married, but do not file a joint return. You are not allowed any deduction under this provision.

17. Alimony paid by a husband, to the extent that it is included in his wife's gross income. (See above.)

18. The proportionate share of interest and real estate taxes paid by a tenant of a cooperative apartment or housing project.

19. You may be entitled to a larger deduction by claiming a "standard deduction" instead of deductions 6-11 and 14-18. The standard deduction is 10% of your adjusted gross income*. But in no case can it be more than $1,000.

In order to claim the standard deduc-tion, you must give up the right to deductions 6-11 and 14-18. Before claiming the standard deduction, you should make sure that it would be larger than the other deductions that you would thereby lose.

If a husband and wife do not file a joint return there are two limitations on the standard deduction. Both of them must claim the standard deduction or neither of them will be entitled to it. In addition, the standard deduction cannot be more than $500 for either husband or wife.

If you use Form 1040 and your adjusted gross income* is less than $5,000, you do not actually compute the 10% standard deduction. If you wish to claim this deduction, you must instead find your tax on the rate chart on the back of the form. The standard deduction has been included in making up that chart. If you wish, instead, to "itemize" the deductions described in paragraphs 6-11 and 14-18, you may do so.

If you use form 1040A (see page 83), the government automatically allows the standard deduction in computing your tax.

HOW ARE DIVIDENDS TREATED FOR INCOME TAX PURPOSES?

Dividends which you receive on corporate stock generally constitute a type of income which is subject to tax. However, there are two ways in which dividends are specially treated. The first $50 of dividends which you receive during the year is tax-free. In addition, you are entitled to a credit against your income tax equal to 4% of all dividends above $50 received during the year; but this credit cannot be more than 2% of your taxable income for 1954, or more than 4% of your taxable income for any later year. Another limitation on this credit is that it applies only to dividends received after July 31, 1954.

Example: On December 1, 1954, you receive dividends of $1,000 on stock of the XYZ Corporation. If this is the only dividend which you received during 1954, $950 of it ($1,000 minus $50) is subject to tax. In addition, you are entitled to a credit against your tax equal to 4% of the dividend above $50, or 4% of $950, which is $38. However, this $38 is allowed only if it comes to not more than 2% of your taxable income for 1954. Therefore, if your taxable income were only $1,500, this credit would be reduced to $30 (2% of $1,500). However, if your taxable income were $1,900 or more, you would be entitled to the full $38 credit.

Dividends paid by a corporation are, under special circumstances, not subject to income tax at all. If any dividends which you receive are of this type, the corporation should so advise you. Because such dividends are not subject to income tax, you are not entitled to take them into account in determining your 4% credit.

WHAT IS MEANT BY "CAPITAL GAINS" AND "CAPITAL LOSSES"?

When you sell stock, securities or many other types of property, the profit which you make is known as a "capital gain" and any loss which you sustain is known as a "capital loss." This rule does not apply, however, if you operate as a dealer in the property which you have sold.

Capital gains and capital losses are broken down, for income tax purposes, according to the length of time you owned the property. In the case of property which you owned for more than 6 months, they are known as long-term capital gains or long-term capital losses. Where you held the property for 6 months or less, they are known as short-term capital gains or short-term capital losses.

HOW ARE CAPITAL GAINS AND CAPITAL LOSSES TREATED FOR INCOME TAX PURPOSES?

If you have capital gains you must first separate them into short-term and long-term capital gains. Short-term capital gains are fully subject to income tax. On the other hand, only one-half of your long-term capital gains are subject to income tax. There is a further tax privilege on long-term capital gains of benefit only to taxpayers whose taxable income is at least $18,000 ($36,000 for joint returns and $24,000 for head of household). No matter how high your income tax rate, your tax on long-term capital gains is never more than 25%.

Capital losses, whether long-term or short-term, are deductible, but only up to $1,000 in a year. If your capital losses exceed $1,000 in a year, the balance can be used to offset capital gains over the next five years; and it can also be used during the five-year period as a deduction at the rate of $1,000 a year until it is used up. The way in which capital gains and capital losses offset each other is clearly indicated on the form.

Income Taxes of Taxpayers Other than Individuals

1. Corporations are required to file returns and pay income taxes on their "taxable income." The taxable income of a corporation is determined in much the same manner as the taxable income of individuals. There are, however, a number of differences in computing the taxable income of individuals and corporations. The present rate of tax is 30% of the first $25,000 of taxable income, plus 52% of taxable income in excess of $25,000. Corporations whose taxes are expected to be more than $100,000 are also required to file declarations of estimated tax.

2. Partnerships are required to file re-

* This means your total income subject to tax minus the deductions described in paragraphs 2-5, 12 and 13.

turns, but are not required to pay income taxes. (See paragraph 3 under "Which items are subject to tax?" above.)

3. Trusts and estates are required to file returns and to pay taxes on their income which is not distributed to beneficiaries. If income is distributed, the beneficiary, rather than the trust or estate, is required to pay taxes on it.

Estate Taxes

The Internal Revenue Code levies an estate tax upon the "taxable estate" of persons who die. Included in a person's taxable estate is all of the property which he owned at the time of his death, his life insurance, and certain other items. Debts owed by the person and amounts left to charitable, educational and religious organizations are deductible. A deduction is also permitted for property left outright to the husband or wife of the person who has died, or amounts left in certain types of trusts for such a person, but only up to half of the taxable estate. No tax is levied on the first $60,000 of a person's taxable estate. (This means that no estate tax will be payable on the death of a person whose estate amounts to $120,000, if he leaves at least half to his widow.)

Gift Taxes

The Internal Revenue Code imposes a tax on gifts. The tax is levied upon the person who makes the gift. However, the first $3,000 which you give outright to any one person during a year is exempt. In addition, each person is entitled to an additional exemption of $30,000 which he can claim any time during his life. Gifts to charitable, educational and religious organizations are exempt from the tax. One-half of any outright gift to your wife or husband is also tax free. In addition, married persons can treat gifts actually made by one of them as being made half by one and half by the other. Gift tax returns must be filed by April 15. Forms can be obtained from your local District Director of Internal Revenue.

SOCIAL SECURITY

The Social Security Act was passed in 1935 and amended in 1939, 1950, 1952 and 1954. Of its 11 programs, 2 are insurance systems financed by payroll taxes: federal old-age and survivors' insurance and federal-state unemployment insurance. The other 9 provide federal grants-in-aid to the states for needy persons who are aged, blind, or permanently disabled, for dependent children, and for services in behalf of maternal health, child health, crippled children, child welfare, public health and vocational rehabilitation.

The administration of the Act is the responsibility of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Within the Department, the Social Security Administration, headed by the Commissioner, conducts most of the program.

Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance

WHO IS COVERED?

In addition to the people previously covered, the new law of 1954 provides coverage for about 10 million more people. Among these are owners and operators of farms, clergymen (treated as self-employed under the law), professional engineers, architects, accountants and funeral directors. It includes many more hired farm workers, household workers, state and local government workers, even if they are under a retirement system, and federal employees not covered by any other retirement system. The law extends coverage to American citizens working abroad for American firms. This includes Americans working on vessels or aircraft even of foreign registry. The new law liberalizes the coverage for fishermen and "home-workers"—people who do piece work at home.

In the self-employed category, about the only people not subject to the social security old-age tax are lawyers, doctors, dentists, osteopaths, veterinarians, chiropractors, naturopaths and optometrists.

If you are eligible for coverage under the old-age insurance provisions of the social security system and you do not have a social security card, you may apply for one at the nearest social security office. Also the officials will be able to clear up any questions you have about the new law.

WHO PAYS FOR THE INSURANCE AND HOW MUCH?

The social security tax will increase gradually from the present 2% to 4% in 1975. The following table gives the schedule:

Calendar Year	Workers and Employers Each to Pay	Self-Employed to Pay
1954-59.....	2%	3%
1960-64.....	2½%	3½%
1965-69.....	3%	4½%
1970-74.....	3½%	5½%
1975 & after.....	4%	6%

HOW MUCH DO YOU OR YOUR SURVIVORS GET?

The regular payments to persons already retired have been increased by the new law by $5.00 or more a month. Similar increases will go to the worker and his wife (over 65) and to widows (of any age) with dependent children. The table on page 93 summarizes the amounts payable in Sept. 1954 to persons already on the rolls prior to August 1954.

A worker will not be fully covered by the new law, that is, he will not be entitled to all of its benefits until his security taxes have been paid for at least 6 quarters (1½ years) after 1954.

The amount you get depends on your average monthly earnings. The new law allows you to bring your average up by omitting about 5 years of low or no earnings in figuring your average earnings. If a worker is totally disabled for a relatively long period (more than 6 months) before he reaches 65, his wages can be "frozen" at the level just before his disability. Under the old law, average wage for retirement purposes was determined by counting all the months before retirement, whether a man was idle or not. The new law allows the dropping out of years of no earnings or very low earnings, or periods of total disability. Payments would begin only at age 65, as with regular retirement. Applications for the total disability freeze will be accepted by the nearest social security office after Jan. 1, 1955. Under an older law veterans are permitted to count service time at the rate of $160 per month in computing average wage.

The maximum yearly earnings subject to tax has been raised to $4,200 (in place of $3,600) and the benefits have been increased accordingly.

The benefits paid to the retired worker at 65, or to his survivors, are shown on the table on page 94.

A retired worker may be fully covered and still not receive the full benefits of his insurance. He loses his benefit checks for any month in which he renders substantial services in self-employment. He also loses some benefits if he earns more than $1,200 during the year. This applies only to money earned, not to other sources of income such as other pension payments, gifts or dividends. From 65 to 72, he cannot earn more than $1,200 without losing at least one month's payment. If he earns more than $1,280, he loses a second month's payment. If he earns more than $1,360, he loses a third month's payment, and so on for each additional $80 earned. If his annual earnings exceed $2,080, he loses all the monthly payments. However, there is an important qualification to this rule. No matter how high his total earnings for the year, he does not lose the payments for any month in which he earns only $80 or less. Thus, if a retired worker earns $200 every month of the year, he loses his retirement benefits for all 12 months, but if he earns the entire $2,400 in a single month, he loses only one month's benefits.

After he has reached the age of 72, the insured worker receives his full pension no matter how much he earns.

In addition to retirement benefits at 65, this insurance also pays a lump-sum death benefit to survivors of at least $90 to $225, or three times the worker's monthly retirement benefit. If you are covered by social security and die leaving dependent children under 18, with or without a widow, those dependents will receive substantial monthly payments until all the children have passed 18. Under the 1954 law, these payments will range from $30 monthly for one child to $200 maximum for widow and 2 or more children, according to your average monthly wage, as shown in the table on page 94.

The law provides benefits to certain other survivors under conditions too complicated for our limited space.

Public Assistance

The original Social Security Act provided for needy persons not covered by the old-age pension system. Eventually the number of needy persons requiring public assistance should diminish, since they will be getting old-age pensions and survivors' insurance under the new provisions of the law.

Aid to the needy is conducted jointly by the states and the federal government. The federal contribution to the states for assistance to the needy aged and blind per month is: $20 of the first $25 and 50% of any amount between $25 and $55. The blind are permitted to earn up to $50 a month and still get full assistance. For dependent children, the federal government pays $12 of the first $15 and one-half the remainder up to $30 per month. To be eligible the child must be under 16 (or under 18 if still at school), without parental support or care and living with a member of the family.

Unemployment Insurance

Unlike the old-age pension law, which is completely run by the federal government, unemployment insurance is managed jointly by the states and the national government. Wisconsin had its own law in 1934; most other states began paying benefits in 1938 and 1939.

UNDER WHAT CONDITIONS CAN THE WORKER COLLECT?

The laws vary from state to state. In general, a waiting period of one week is required before collecting unemployment insurance; the worker must be able to work, must not have quit without good cause or have been discharged for misconduct; he must not be involved in a labor dispute; above all, he must be willing to take a job in his field at prevailing wage rates. Other restrictions on payments involve leaving for marriage, pregnancy or further education. Also, workers receiving vacation or dismissal pay, workmen's compensation or veteran's allowances are considered ineligible.

The unemployed worker must go to the local state unemployment office to register his claim for unemployment benefits and must register for work. If a suitable opening is available in his field, he must accept it or lose his unemployment payments. If a worker moves out of his own state, he can still collect at his new residence; the state where he is now located will act as agent for the other state, which pays his benefits.

WHO PAYS FOR THE INSURANCE AND HOW MUCH?

The unemployment tax maximum is 3% of payroll; of this 0.3% must go to the federal government to pay for administering the law in the states; the remaining 2.7% or less is used solely for benefit payments by the state. The employer pays the complete tax in all states except in Alabama and New Jersey; in Alabama the employee pays from 0.1% to 1.0%; in New Jersey the employee pays  $\frac{1}{4}$  of 1%. Tax payments are payable on only the first \$3,000 of a worker's pay, except in Nevada where the limit was set at \$3,600 in 1954.

Under the "merit-rating" system, used in most states, employers with records of steady employment (that is, few layoffs) are rewarded with rates lower than the standard 2.7%. This system rewards the employers in industries with little or no seasonal fluctuation, or where the employers have been able to eliminate seasonal ups and downs. Highly seasonal businesses are penalized by this device. The average tax rate in states with "merit-rating" is approximately 1.4%.

WHO IS COVERED AND WHO IS NOT?

Unemployment insurance must be paid by an employer having eight or more employees over 20 weeks in a year. Exempt workers include self-employed farm workers, domestic workers or members of the employer's family, railroad workers, insurance agents, workers in non-profit organizations, student nurses, internes and casual labor. Maritime workers have been included in most states since 1946.

Railroad Workers

These are covered by the Railroad Retirement Act, passed in 1935 and amended in 1937 and 1946. The social security provisions of this act are administered by the Railroad Retirement Board. It is paid for by taxing both employer and employee. The present rate is  $6\frac{1}{4}\%$ .

It provides retirement benefits at 65 or over (in some cases at 60), dependents' and survivors' benefits and disability allowances.

The Board also administers the Railroad Insurance Act, which provides unemployment insurance, sickness compensation and maternity benefits. The present costs are paid by the employer at  $\frac{1}{2}\%$  on wages up to \$300 a month. If benefits are increased, the rate may go from  $\frac{1}{2}\%$  to as high as 3%.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE GUIDE

Since most persons who can read and write occasionally or frequently indulge in the indoor pastime of working crossword puzzles, this section is offered as a handy help to solvers who may be stumped for a two-letter word meaning "three-toed sloth" or a three-letter word meaning "native of Mindanao."

We have those two words here, and plenty more. We have the Greek, Roman, Norse and Egyptian deities of myth and legend. And we have those "Greek letters" and "months of the Jewish year" so often needed to fill out little gaps.

The reader is warned that in mythology there are many confusing and even conflicting accounts of the identities and adventures of the various gods, goddesses and lesser figures. There is also considerable variation in the spelling of names, places and things. For instance, you may spell it ICON, IKON or EIKON, and similar options are plentiful all along the crossword line. If the reader will keep further possible variations in mind, it may help at a critical point.

Various other sections of our book will be found of use to the crossword puzzler—especially the section of world geography and statistics which begins on page 713.

First Aid to Crossword Puzzlers

(We cannot, of course, begin to list all the odd words you will meet with in your daily and Sunday crossword puzzles, for such words run into many thousands. But we have tried to include those which turn up most frequently, as well as many others which should be of help to you when you are unable to go any further.)

Also, we do not guarantee that the definitions in your puzzle will be exactly the same as ours, although we have checked every word with a standard dictionary and have followed its definition.

In nearly every case, we have used as the key word the principal noun of the definition, rather than any adjective, adjective phrase, or noun used as an adjective. And, to simplify your searching, we have grouped the words according to the number of spaces you have to fill.)

Mason and Dixon's Line

Mason and Dixon's Line (often called the Mason-Dixon Line) is the boundary between Pennsylvania and Maryland, running at a north latitude of 39°43'19.11". The greater part of it was surveyed from 1763-67 by Charles Mason and Jeremiah

Dixon, English astronomers who had been appointed to settle a dispute between the colonies. As the line was partly the boundary between the free and the slave states, it has come to signify the division between the North and the South.

Opera and Operetta Composers

(The operas listed with each composer are not necessarily the only ones which he composed. Rather, they are those which remain best-known today—either because of occasional or frequent performances, or because of the popularity of overtures, arias, etc. The year and location after each opera are those of the first official performance.)

PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

by

Dan Golenpaul

Parliamentary procedures are rules for the conduct of a meeting in an orderly and democratic manner. Their purpose is to ensure the rule by a majority and to protect the rights of all members of an organization or assembly in meetings and in connection with all activities of the organization. The application of parliamentary rules is solely for this purpose.

Very often, though, individuals employ the rules for a contest of wits. This practice can be interesting and the life of the meeting, but it can also be a nuisance and a field day for parliamentary pests. The degree to which this activity may be tolerated should be dictated by circumstances. A certain amount of indulgence may be necessary because it is part of the game and is inevitably an expression of many egos that meet in a group.

Under no circumstances, however, should a chairman or members permit anyone to use the rules of procedure to trick and confuse members or to impede the function of a meeting. To prevent these occurrences, a knowledge of parliamentary rules is important. We will do our best in the limited space permitted to impart a little learning. (But remember, a little learning is a dangerous thing.) What we are setting forth here should be adequate to take care of most situations in organizations made up of friendly people who want to conduct their business in an orderly, friendly manner.

If it is necessary for you to be a member of a group that is involved in bitter conflicts, then we advise that you go to more technical and authoritative works on parliamentary procedure such as Robert's Rules of Order, Cushing's Manual, Sturgis' Standard Code of Parliamentary Procedure and others. We also suggest that you go to the meetings with a good lawyer and a baseball bat.

HOW TO FORM AN ORGANIZATION

People form or join organizations because they have a common interest or purpose that can best be advanced and attained through group activity. Whether the character of the organization be social, political, educational, communal, fraternal or athletic, its purpose and government are usually expressed in by-laws. They are not required to be elaborate, technical or legal.

BY-LAWS

By-laws should simply state the objects of the organization, the rights and duties of members, the qualifications of members, the number required to constitute a quorum, the dues, the necessary governing officers and how they should be elected, their terms of office, when meetings should be held and where, the order of business and, in the case of large and impersonal organizations, an authority for settling parliamentary disputes. (An organization usually adopts as its guide such works as mentioned heretofore.)

FIRST MEETING

At the first meeting of a group, temporary officers are chosen: a chairman, a secretary and a committee to prepare a draft of by-laws. The meeting is called to order by the member of the group who has assumed the leadership in the formation of the organization. He or she opens the meeting by the simple statement: "I now call the meeting to order," and asks the members to make nominations for chairman. When this announcement is made, members may ask for the floor by raising their hands, and, when recognized, offer a name in nomination. The person presiding can be nominated as can any other member present. Nominations require no seconding. A majority vote is necessary for the election of the chairman. The same procedure is required for the secretary and committee on by-laws.

The officers selected at the first meeting may serve until the next meeting or for a limited period, to be decided by a majority vote of the members present.

SECOND MEETING

At the second meeting, the report of the committee on by-laws is presented to the membership. The entire report may be accepted by a motion to adopt the report. A two-thirds vote is required. If the entire report is not acceptable to the membership, each provision may be considered separately; consideration consists of debating, amending, accepting or rejecting. The vote required on each provision is two-thirds of the membership present instead of the usual majority. Because by-laws are the fundamental basis of the organization, they should be acceptable to as many members as possible.

By-laws can be amended at any time during the life of the organization. Any proposals for changes in the by-laws require prior notice in writing to the entire membership before acting upon the proposed amendments at any meeting.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

With the adoption of the by-laws providing for the type of officers for the organization, and the length of their terms, the organization proceeds to elect such officers. The usual officers for most groups are a president, vice-president, recording secretary, corresponding secretary, treasurer, sergeant at arms, and committees. Some have an executive secretary, a paid job, but an organization would have to be large to warrant a paid official.

All members are eligible for office when an organization is first formed. But later the by-laws may require a certain minimum period of membership as a qualification to hold office. Nominations are made by the simple statement: "I nominate so-and-so." The nominations do not require a second and a majority vote is necessary for election.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS

President: The president, as in government, is top man in an organization. Some organizations call this official "chairman." President sounds better, and is more appropriate when he performs not only the functions of presiding at meetings, but other duties in directing the organization. Chairman is the proper designation for one elected only to preside at a meeting.

Their duties as presiding officers are identical, regardless of title; they call the meeting to order, then present the order of business which the meeting is to act upon. They recognize members who desire the floor for a proposal or a discussion. They are supposed to see that everyone who wishes to speak has the opportunity, and to do as little talking themselves as possible. The presiding officer has the right to take part in a discussion. When he does, the vice-chairman should take the chair until the presiding officer has concluded his talk.

A chairman is really a moderator who directs, controls and regulates proceedings. He is neither a boss nor an antagonist and is not to be regarded as such by the members. It is the chairman's primary job to keep the meetings moving smoothly. He should prevent members from abusing their privileges without interference, but should not curb their rights. The chair must entertain all motions that are seconded and must restate them for the members. He must call for a vote on motions and declare the motion adopted or defeated on the basis of the vote. He should allow for a re-count or a roll call whenever requested to do so. When referring to himself, the presiding officer usually says: "The chair recognizes Mr. Blank" instead of "I recognize Mr. Blank."

The president or permanent chairman is usually an ex-officio member of all committees. Although he is not obligated to attend all meetings, he may if he so desires.

Secretary: The duties of a secretary are to keep the records of the organization, to record the minutes of the meetings, to handle the correspondence (unless the organization is large enough to require a corresponding secretary), such as notifying members of regular meetings or of a special meeting, reading the minutes at the meeting, etc.

The minutes of a secretary should indicate when the meeting was held, where it took place, who presided, what business was transacted, when the meeting adjourned, etc.

Treasurer: The treasurer's duties are to handle the funds of the organization, to collect the dues, to pay the bills when authorized, to keep the books for the organization with records of income and expenditures, and to render reports on finances at the regular meetings.

Sergeant-at-Arms: The duties of the sergeant-at-arms are to assist the chairman in preserving order among the people present at a meeting, members and visitors, to act as a sort of usher by checking people at the door to see that only those entitled to be present at the meeting are admitted, and to escort anyone out if requested to do so by the chairman.

COMMITTEES

The purpose of committees is to expedite the transaction of business on matters that require more time than the meeting permits, or on matters that require time for investigation and special study. Committees are essential in a large organization, but are really not necessary for a small group that can handle its limited business at the regular membership meetings.

The types of committee may vary according to the needs of an organization. A "standing" committee has a fixed term of office and gives continuous service. A "special" committee serves temporarily to investigate and report on some special project or condition.

The top committee in most organizations is the executive committee, sometimes made up of the chairmen of the various committees, sometimes selected from the general membership. Other committees are: membership committees, athletic committees, education committees, social or house committees, committees on finance, temporary committees to deal with a temporary specific problem, etc.

Committees may be appointed by the presiding officer, or be elected by the group, depending upon the by-laws. We think it best for committees to be elected by the membership. The chairman of the committee is either designated by the presiding officer, elected by the committee, or is the person obtaining the most votes in the election. Committees should consist of an odd number of members to assure a majority vote and a minimum of ~~s~~alemates. As far as possible, the by-laws governing the conduct of a meeting or organization govern the committees as well.

Most committees are usually made up of small groups and, therefore, their meetings are less formal than regular organization meetings. Motions do not require seconding, speeches are not as restricted and limited, and the chairman attending the committee, or the president of the organization, if attending the committee meeting, participates in the discussions on a par with the other members.

Providing for numerous officers is a good thing because it distributes responsibility among more members. This is important to keep in mind in connection with committees; while good people should be placed on many committees, it is best and advisable to have as many members on committees as possible.

The committee chairman reports for the committee to the general membership meeting. Reports of the committee may consist only of information requiring no action or may contain recommendations for certain action which is often the equivalent of a proposed motion.

When there is a difference of opinion among committee members, the majority report offered is considered the committee report. The dissenting members have the right, however, to submit a minority report proposing a different course of action. Both reports must be heard or read at the same meeting. No action on the majority report is in order until the minority report is disposed of. It can be disposed of in either of two ways. (a) Any member may object to consideration of the minority report and such objection must be voted on immediately without debate. If carried, the minority report is dropped. (b) If the objection to consideration is not upheld, then a motion to substitute the minority report for the majority report is in order. If this motion is carried, the majority report is eliminated and the minority report becomes the committee report and is the only report before the body. If the motion to substitute is not carried, then the meeting proceeds to deal with the majority report.

It is well to bear in mind that any report or motion belongs to the membership.

If they are not satisfied with either report, they can dissolve the committee and act directly from the floor or appoint a new committee.

The chairman of the committee calls the meetings of the committee. If he fails or refuses to do so, or if he is absent, any two members of the committee may call a meeting. The chairman of a committee usually acts as its secretary.

If a committee fails to render a report on a matter referred to it within a reasonable time, the membership may force it to do so by drawing up a petition bearing the number of signatures required in the by-laws. This is called discharging a committee.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

The chairman calls the meeting to order. He must determine whether a quorum is present. The number of members required to constitute a quorum is stipulated in the by-laws, usually one more than half of the membership, or as low as one-tenth of the membership. Without a quorum, business cannot be legally conducted. The secretary reads the minutes of the previous meeting and they are adopted, perhaps with corrections, or, as read. Officers and committees make any reports they have. Old business left over from the previous meeting is transacted. New business is brought up, discussed and acted upon. At the close, the chairman says that he will entertain a motion for adjournment.

RULES OF DEBATE

The presiding officers should first recognize the mover of a proposal, or the member of a committee presenting a report, and should try to alternate recognition between those favoring and those opposing a proposition. Any member is entitled to speak on the main question and on each amendment as presented. He must confine himself to the question under consideration, must avoid personalities, and must not accuse others of ill motives. In some groups the by-laws limit each speaker to a fixed number of minutes. The meeting may vote to extend the time of a speaker if it so desires. Debate can only be halted by a motion for the previous question and a two-thirds vote is required.

VOTING RULES

There are several methods of taking a vote. The simplest is by voice—"ayes" and "noes." This may be challenged by any member who thinks that the chairman did not hear correctly, in which case the vote is taken by a show of hands, or by standing. Roll call votes, recorded by the secretary, are required in some instances. The closed ballot (written votes) also is commonly used, especially in the election of officers. Only attending members may vote, unless the by-laws specifically permit proxy voting. A tie vote defeats a motion. The chairman is allowed to break a tie, though, if he has not previously voted. Some organizations permit a chairman to vote only in case of a tie, while others allow him to vote as a regular member.

A majority vote is generally required to pass ordinary motions or to adopt ordinary actions. There are certain motions which require a two-thirds vote of those present. These generally include the following: amendments to the by-laws, to take up a question out of its proper order, to suspend the rules, to support an objection to the consideration of a question, to take up the previous question, to limit debate, to expel a member or officer, to discharge a committee, or to refer back to a committee. No vote can be made unanimous if even one member present objects.

WHAT HAPPENS TO A MOTION

A motion is a proposal for action by an organization. It is made by any member who asks the chair for the floor and is properly recognized. Most motions require a second before being placed before the group. Not more than one main motion may be considered at a time. The procedure is simple. One merely says, "I move the following." The chairman then asks if anyone seconds the motion. If it is properly seconded, the chairman announces that a motion has been made and seconded, calls for a discussion and repeats the motion on request. A motion may be voted on without discussion, but discussion is required if requested by any member.

A motion causes many things to happen. It provokes debate, suggests modifications, clarifies the thinking and expresses the will of the group on a question. Once a motion is presented to the membership, it belongs to them to treat and dispose of in any one of several ways and can only be withdrawn with the consent of the membership.

A motion may be amended. This means that the motion may be modified or qualified by adding, substituting, or eliminating words or whole paragraphs. These changes must be relevant to the main motion.

For example, a motion is made for the organization to publish a magazine and stipulates (a) the publication to be a monthly, (b) to have two editors, (c) to cost the members $1.00 a year, etc. This motion may be amended as follows: (a) to substitute "weekly" for "monthly," (b) to provide salaries for the two editors, (c) to eliminate the dollar charge for the magazine. All these amendments are in order because while the original motion has been amplified or qualified by the amendments, the proposal for publishing a magazine still prevails.

Amendments that are irrelevant are not permissible, such as an amendment requiring the editors to watch television. This is improper (perhaps for other reasons) because it is extraneous to the main question of proposing the publication of a magazine.

Amendments that negate the purpose of the motion, such as a proposal that the organization should not publish a magazine, are out of order because if the membership is entirely opposed to the idea, it can vote against the main motion or dismiss it in other parliamentary ways.

Other important rules governing amendments are:

1. There is no limit to the number of amendments that may be offered, but each amendment must be disposed of before a new one may be proposed.

2. After all amendments have been acted on, the meeting votes on the main motion, and all of the adopted amendments are incorporated in the main motion.

3. All amendments require a majority vote for passage.

4. A rejected amendment may not be resubmitted in identical form and no amendment may be offered reversing an amendment previously adopted.

This is not all that can happen to a motion. In addition to amendments to the motion, you are also permitted to make amendments to the amendments. For example, the original motion stipulates that the magazine should have two editors. An amendment provides that the editors be paid salaries. This amendment can be amended to provide what the salary should be.

Now, if you are thinking of whether you can amend the amendment to the amendment, the answer is "No." Although this has really gone far enough, there is something else you are allowed to do, for better or worse, and that is to introduce a substitute for the motion itself or for any of the amendments or for everything that has been proposed on the question. The substitute for an amendment does not modify the amendment, but replaces it and is subject to the same rules that apply to amendments.

When amendments pile up to the point of confusing the membership, resorting to a substitute for the entire proposition may be helpful. The best way to do this, under the circumstances, is for someone to move to have a special committee designated to prepare a substitute motion for the whole.

If the motion is adopted, the committee-elect should withdraw from the meeting to try to reconcile any contradictions contained in the motion or the amendments. It should bring forth a clear substitute that expresses the intentions of most of the proposals.

Let us not lose sight of the fact that the purpose of a motion is not to create an endless chain of acts, but to get something done. In this connection, it is well to bear in mind that the motion and amendments do not necessarily conflict and that the proposer of a motion may accept the amendments without discussion or vote.

Motions that cannot be amended: These include such motions as questions of order or appeal, objections to consideration of the question, or motions to adjourn, to call for the order of the day, to vote, to withdraw a motion, to take up a question out of proper order, to suspend the rules, to table, to take from the table, to reconsider, to consider the previous question, to postpone indefinitely, to amend an amendment, or to nominate. Motions to postpone indefinitely, to limit debate, or to recess can be amended as to time only.

DELAYING OR CANCELING CONSIDERATION OF A MOTION

It is not binding on a meeting to deal with a motion at the time it is proposed. On the contrary, the membership has the choice of postponing or renewing consideration of a motion. Here are some of the ways to attain such objectives.

Objection to consideration: Consideration of any issue may be stopped before discussion begins on the question, even though it involves interrupting the speaker, by objecting to its consideration. This objection may be made by any member and does not require a second. Objection to consideration calls for an immediate vote without debate or amendment and requires a two-thirds vote. If carried, the motion is dropped for all time. The purpose of the act is to prevent the meeting from dealing with a question that may be offensive. This reason should be primary. Other reasons may be because it might waste the time of the meeting or it may be inappropriate to deal with the question at the time. This action is very drastic and should not be employed to gag any member except the village idiot at his worst.

Motion to postpone indefinitely: This is a polite way of killing a motion, at least for the moment. It differs from "Objection to consideration" insofar as the motion to postpone indefinitely and the motion itself are debatable and cannot be made while a member has the floor. This motion requires a second and calls for a majority vote. It cannot be amended and cannot be brought up again.

Motion to "lay on the table": If the meeting does not want to consider the motion at all, the procedure is to make a motion to "lay the question on the table." This suspends consideration of the main motion and amendments until such time as the group chooses to take it up again, which can be later at the same meeting after other business has been transacted or at any subsequent meeting. This motion must be seconded, requires a majority vote, may not be debated or amended or postponed. The only way to bring the motion back is to move to "take it off the table."

Motion to postpone to a definite date: This is an expression of the will of the meeting to put off consideration of the proposal until later in the same session or until a subsequent meeting. The object of such an act is to delay consideration of the question until more members are present, or to enable members to acquire further information before making their decisions. This motion is debatable only as to the advisability of postponement. The subject matter of the motion is not debatable. It is open for amendment as to time only and requires a majority vote.

Motion to refer to a committee: This is usually done if a meeting feels that a question requires more time and information before it acts upon it. A motion to refer to a committee names an existing committee or creates a special committee for its consideration and may be accompanied by instructions. Seconding and a majority vote are required for passage of this motion. It can be debated only as to the desirability and advisability of referring it to the committee. It can be amended only as to the nature of the committee and as to the instructions.

HOW TO REOPEN A QUESTION

To avoid finality of decisions that may be harmful to the best interests of the members, certain actions previously taken by the members are subject to review by them. Such review may apply to matters acted upon, matters postponed, or matters delegated to committees.

Motion to reconsider: This deals with something acted upon by a meeting which the members would like to reconsider at another time during the same meeting. It is a motion that should be made by one who has voted with the majority, whether in the affirmative or the negative, and is made because the voter has changed his mind on the matter in the light of new information. Very often a member deliberately votes for or against motions so that he can move for reconsideration of the subject later in the meeting when there may be a better chance for passing or defeating the motion because more members are present or because he will have an opportunity to persuade other members to change their votes. This is both good parliamentary procedure and democratic.

A motion to reconsider requires a second, a majority vote, is debatable and cannot be renewed. If a motion to reconsider is carried, the question is before the assembly with its original parliamentary status. Motions that cannot be reconsidered include: motions to take from the table, to lay on the table, or a motion for indefinite postponement that has been defeated.

To take from the table: This motion allows a group to take up a subject that was set aside by a motion to table it at a previous meeting. This resumption of consideration on a question rates priority over any new motions and can be introduced when there is no other business before the body. Motion to take a question from the table requires a second and a majority vote, is not debatable and cannot be amended.

A motion to rescind: This motion enables the membership to re-evaluate some action taken in the past because it may have been adopted without full understanding of the consequences at that time. The point of rescinding a previous act of an organization does not apply to any legally binding act committing the organization, nor to the election of members or officers. This motion calls for a second and majority vote unless the original motion involved required a two-thirds vote. It is debatable and cannot be amended.

Several important techniques for keeping informed about proceedings, preventing violations and protecting the rights of members, correcting errors, and expediting the business at hand, are:

Moving the Previous Question: This asks that the discussion be stopped at once on any motion before the body. A move for the previous question cannot interrupt the speaker. It requires a second, is not debatable, cannot be amended, and requires a two-thirds vote. Its purpose is to say "Let's stop talking and vote."

Point of Information: This is a method of obtaining information about what is occurring through the medium of the chairman or the speaker. This interruption request is permissible even when one is speaking. It is unusual for the speaker or the chair to ignore such a request. Since it is intended only to secure information, it is not proper to use this as a device to make a statement or delay proceedings.

Point of Order: This questions the correctness of any action at the time it occurs. The only time that a point of order can be employed after an action has taken place, is if it involves a violation of by-laws, constitution, or the law. It is raised on the basis of a mistake or omission in procedure, of a violation of the rules of the organization, of decorum in debate, or of irrelevancy of debate and procedure. A point of order needs no seconding, cannot be amended and requires no vote.

A point of order may be raised by any member at any time. It is in the nature of a demand addressed to the chair, which is required to act immediately on the point of order raised. The procedure is as follows: A member announces, "I rise to a point of order." This automatically halts any discussion or action until the chairman rules on the point of order. If the chairman concurs, he announces that the point of order was well taken, and proceeds to correct whatever is in question.

Appeal: If any other member takes exception to this ruling, he may appeal from the decision of the chair. Another basis for an appeal may result when the chair declares the point of order not well taken. This appeal is usually made by the person raising the point of order. All appeals require a second, are debatable and are subject to a majority vote of the membership. If they vote for the appeal, the chairman's decision is reversed. If they vote against the appeal, the chairman's decision is upheld. In the event of a tie vote, the chairman is sustained. If the chairman is a member of the organization, he has the right to vote and may make the tie.

Discussions on some appeals are not customary, such as questions of indecorum, violation of rules of speaking, or order of business.

Sometimes the chairman is in doubt on a point of order. When he is, he may defer to someone present for advice, or ask the members to discuss and vote on the point of order. This is the only time that a point of order is debatable. Their vote determines the chairman's decision.

Motion to adjourn: This motion is in order at any time, but should be employed with discretion. Obviously, it should not interfere with the organization's efforts to get business done. This motion requires a second, is not debatable, cannot be amended, and must be voted on immediately. A majority vote is necessary. Any motion for adjournment that refers to a specific time or place for the next meeting is subject to debate and amendment.

We have tried to project the reader into actual participation in the forming of an organization and the conduct of a meeting, and we have given more attention to the processes than to the discussion of technical rules. In following this course, we may have omitted some matters that do not occur at every meeting, but that do happen occasionally and should be understood.

Removal of officers: This is sometimes an unhappy necessity. Misconduct of an officer may involve neglect of duties, abuse of privileges or incompetence. The removal of an officer is accomplished by preferring charges which should be of a serious nature and supported by proof. The charges may be considered at a general meeting or referred to a committee to investigate and to recommend a course of action. A two-thirds vote of the members present is required to remove an officer. A motion to remove an officer is debatable.

Expulsion of members: If a member violates his obligations and duties or is involved in an act that may bring disrepute to the organization, he is subject to charges and a hearing before a committee or the membership and can be expelled by a two-thirds vote. This action is debatable. Obviously, such actions should not be undertaken unless the charges are serious and supported by substantial proof. It would be deplorable if the exercise of such a drastic action were based on a frivolous issue or personal bias. Sometimes the behavior of a member at a meeting requires disciplinary action in the form of a motion for immediate expulsion. This is not debatable and requires a two-thirds vote.

Question of privilege: A member may interrupt a meeting at any time to raise a question involving the comfort or convenience of the membership. It may concern such matters as the physical condition of the meeting hall, the seating of the members, the conduct of persons present, or the ability to hear speakers. This request requires no second, is not debatable, cannot be amended and is decided by the chair.

Suspension of the rules: The object of a proposal to suspend the rules is to permit a meeting to do something that is ordinarily prohibited by the rules of parliamentary procedure or by the adopted order of business. The suspension of rules is generally employed to deal with an emergency or special condition, such as permitting a guest speaker to start earlier than scheduled or allowing for the interruption of the regular order of business by a visiting committee. There are other circumstances under which the suspension of rules is permitted, but these cases are too complicated to be treated here. This motion cannot interrupt a speaker, requires a second, cannot be debated or amended, and requires a two-thirds vote.

We have endeavored to outline some of the basic rules for the benefit of the many people who want some simple knowledge of how to form an organization, how to conduct a meeting, or how to participate in one; also to help spectators at a convention understand what is going on. Beyond this, we refer you to the authorities on parliamentary procedure.

However important rules are for guidance in most human activities, there is no doubt that much is accomplished through informal discussion and action, and we do not hesitate to urge small friendly groups to do their business with as little formality and as few restrictions as possible. If this does not always work, we hope our book is there to serve you.

CONTRACT BRIDGE SYSTEMS

by Florence Osborn
Bridge Editor, New York Herald Tribune

THE BEST and most widely played contract bridge system—the Culbertson approach-forcing system—is basically the same today as it was 25 years ago.

This system limits use of artificial or conventional bids to specific situations, so that the whole bidding language is easily understood by partners and opponents.

There is a definite revival of interest in the point-count method of valuing a bridge hand to determine potential winners, as opposed to the Culbertson honor-trick method of counting high cards. The Work 4-3-2-1 point-count, introduced by the late Milton C. Work is most accurate for no-trump bidding, whereas the honor-trick method is most accurate for suit bidding.

Charles H. Goren, highest-ranking player of the American Contract Bridge League, has extended use of the point-count into suit bidding and uses it throughout his system, which, other than for the count, is the same as Culbertson's.

In 1954, Culbertson issued his version of point-count as applied to both suit and no-trump bidding. His approach-forcing system has undergone no serious change, but it now may be interpreted in points or honor-tricks, according to preference.

Bridge players can play according to Culbertson or Goren with no misunderstanding. The two agree on all fundamental points. They differ on the method of counting distribution, Culbertson counting length, Goren shortness, but the points add up the same.

Following is a digest of the new Culbertson system with both point and honor-trick requirements; following this is the Goren method of counting distribution.

CULBERTSON METHOD Point-Count Table

Ace —4 pts.	} Add 1 point for all 4 aces. Deduct 1 point for single K, Q or J.
King —3 pts.
Queen—2 pts.
Jack —1 pt.
Average hand: 10 pts. The Deck: 40 pts.

Honor-Trick Table

2 H. T.
A-K in same suit
1½ H. T.
A-Q in same suit
1 H. T.
Ace
K-Q in same suit
K-J-10 in same suit
K-x and K-x

½ H. T.

K-x

Q-J-x

Q-x and Q-x

Average hand: 2-2½ H. T.

The deck: 8-8½ H. T.

Game and Slam Expectancies

26 points or 6-6½ H. T. in combined hands will produce game at no-trump or major suit, 29 points in minor.

33 points or 37 points (7-8 H. T.) respectively will produce a small slam or grand slam.

OPENING SUIT-BIDS OF ONE

To the high-card count add 1 pt. for each card over four in the trump suit, and add 1 pt. for each card over three in all side suits. Note: Add 1 and 2 pts. for 100 and 150 honors.

13-pt. hands (3 H. T.) with a biddable suit (Q-J-x-x or better) may be opened.

14-pt. hands (3½ H. T.) should always be opened.

11- or 12-pt. hands (2+ to 2½ H. T.) and a good five-card or longer suit, may be opened.

In third position, open with 11 pts. (2+ H. T.) on a good suit.

In fourth position, open any 13-pt. hand (3 H. T.).

Note: All opening one-bids (except third or fourth hand) announce at least 2½ H. T. (defensive).

RESPONSES TO SUIT-BIDS OF ONE

To your high-card count add the number of points obtained by subtracting your shortest suit from your trump length. Deduct 1 pt. if your hand has no four-card or longer side suit.

Raise partner's suit-bid to two (single raise) with 6-10 pts. (1½-2 H. T.).

Raise to three (double raise, forcing) with 13-16 pts. (3-3½ H. T.).

Respond one no-trump with 6-10 pts. (1½-2 H. T.) and a balanced hand.

Respond two no-trump with 13-15 pts. (3-3½ H. T.) and a balanced hand.

Respond three no-trump with 16-18 pts. (4 H. T.), all unbid suits stopped and 4-3-3-3 pattern.

Take out to your own suit at the one-level (forcing for one round) with 6 pts. (minimum) to 17 pts. (1½-3½ H. T.).

Take out to the one- or the two-level (forcing for one round) with 10 pts. (minimum) to 17 pts. (2-3½ H. T.).

Make a single jump takeout (forcing to game; suggests possible slam) with 18 pts. or more (4 or more H. T.).

OPENING BIDS OF ONE NO-TRUMP AND RESPONSES

Open one no-trump with 16-18 pts. ( $3\frac{1}{2}$ -4+ H. T.), stoppers in three suits and at least Q-x in the fourth suit; provided the hand-pattern is 4-3-3-3, 4-4-3-2 (but not with both majors), 5-3-3-2 (if the long suit is a minor), and 6-3-2-2 (if the long suit is a strong minor).

Raise partner's opening one no-trump bid to two with 8-9 pts. ( $1\frac{1}{2}$ -2+ H. T.).

Raise to three no-trump with 10-14 pts. ( $2\frac{1}{2}$ -3 H. T.).

Make a small-slam try with 15-16 pts. ( $3\frac{1}{2}$  H. T.) or a direct small-slam bid with 17-20 pts. ( $4\frac{1}{2}$  H. T.). With 21 pts. ( $4\frac{1}{2}$  H. T.), proceed similarly for a grand slam. Note: A takeout of one no-trump to two of a suit is forcing for one round, but a rebid of the same suit at the three-level is a sign-off.

OPENING BIDS OF TWO AND THREE NO-TRUMP AND RESPONSES

Open two no-trump with 22-24 pts. ( $5\frac{1}{2}$ -5+ H. T.), balanced distribution and all suits stopped.

Open three no-trump with 25-27 pts. ( $6\frac{1}{2}$ -6+ H. T.), all suits stopped and only 4-3-3-3 distribution. Note: With a no-trump hand but 19-21 pts. ( $4\frac{1}{2}$ -5+ H. T.), open with a one-bid in a suit.

Raise partner's two no-trump opening to three with 3-8 pts. ( $\frac{1}{2}$ - $1\frac{1}{2}$ + H. T.).

Try for a slam with 9 pts. (2 H. T.) or more. Any bid over an opening three no-trump is a slam try.

OPENING TWO-BIDS IN A SUIT AND RESPONSES

This unconditionally forcing-to-game bid requires:

21-22 pts. ( $4\frac{1}{2}$ -5+ H. T.) with a solid or nearly solid (one loser) six-card or longer suit.

23-26 pts. ( $5\frac{1}{2}$ -6 H. T.) with a strong six-, five- or four-card suit.

Respond negatively by bidding two no-trump with 6 pts. (1+ H. T.) or less. Exception: Bid a higher-ranking suit such as A-Q-x-x or A-J-10-x.

Respond positively with a suit takeout, a raise (with adequate trump support), or a jump to three no-trump with 7 pts. (1-2 H. T.) or more.

DEFENSIVE BIDDING

For overcalls (simple defense) and sacrifice bids (calculated overbids either as an opening bidder or defender) use:

Rule of Two and Three

When the opponents are bidding, and partner has passed or has made no bid, do not bid unless you can win, in your own hand,

Within 2 tricks of your contract if VULNERABLE, or Within 3 tricks of your contract if NOT VULNERABLE.

Then you cannot be set more than 500 points, which would be the value of the opponents' game.

For strength-showing bids such as takeout doubles, no-trump overcalls and jump suit takeouts, you need 13-18 pts. (3-4 H. T.); for forcing cue bids, 19 pts. ( $4\frac{1}{2}$  H. T.) or more.

When to Double for Penalties

Double when you can count enough defensive winners in the combined hands to defeat the opponents at least two tricks, or enough certain winners to defeat them one trick. Avoid doubling slams.

The expected penalty must be worth more than any contract your side can surely bid and make.

GOREN POINT-COUNT DIFFERENCES

The valuation offered by Goren differs chiefly in the method of counting distributional values for opening suit bids and raises, Goren counting shortness instead of length as follows:

1. In opening bids of one in a suit, the value of a hand is determined by adding to the high-card point-count:

3 pts. for a void

2 pts. for each singleton

1 pt. for each doubleton.

2. In counting the dummy hand for raising partner's suit bid, add to the high-card point-count (plus promotional value of honors in partner's suit):

5 pts. for a void

3 pts. for each singleton

1 pt. for each doubleton.

Deduct 1 pt. if your hand contains only three trumps, also 1 pt. if your hand is distributed 4-3-3-3.

BLACKWOOD SLAM CONVENTION

When either partner has bid a suit, a bid of four no-trump is forcing and requires partner to respond as follows: Five clubs, lacking an ace. Five diamonds, holding one ace. Five hearts, holding two aces. Five spades, holding three aces. Five no-trump (five clubs optional), holding all four aces.

If after one of these responses the four no-trump bidder bids five no-trump, his partner must then show kings on the same schedule at the six-level.

STAYMAN NO-TRUMP CONVENTION

A response of two clubs to an opening bid of one no-trump, 16-18 pts. ( $3\frac{1}{2}$ -4+ H. T.), does not promise a club suit but asks the opener whether or not he has a four-card major suit as part of his no-trump bid. With a showable spade suit (Q-x-x-x or better), his rebid is two spades. With a showable heart suit his rebid is two hearts. If he has neither major his rebid is two diamonds with a minimum 16-pt. no-trump opening, and with a maximum 18-pt. opening his rebid is two no-trump.

ALABAMA

Capital: Montgomery.
Governor: Gordon Persons (Dem., 1955).
Organized as territory: Mar. 3, 1817.
Entered Union & (rank): Dec. 14, 1819 (22).
Seceded from Union: Jan. 11, 1861.
Re-entered Union: July 13, 1868.
Present constitution adopted: 1901.
Motto: Audemus jura nostra defendere (We dare defend our rights).
State flower: Goldenrod (1927).
State bird: Yellowhammer (1927).
State song: "Alabama" (1931).
Nickname: Yellowhammer State.
Origin of name: Disputed. May come from Choctaw meaning "thicket-clearers" or "vegetarian-gatherers."
1940 population & (rank): 2,832,961 (17).
1950 population & (rank): 3,061,743 (17).
1953 estimated population: 3,114,000.
Area & (rank): 51,609 sq. mi. (28).
Geographic center: In Chilton Co., 12 mi. SW of Clanton.
Number of counties: 67.
Largest cities: Birmingham (326,037); Mobile (129,009); Montgomery (106,525); Gadsden (55,725); Tuscaloosa (46,396).
State forests: 6 (14,248.58 ac.).
State parks: 34 (39,619.6 ac.).
State general revenue (1953): $235,220,058.
State general expenditure (1953): $239,525,288.

Alabama is the biggest heavy-industry state in the South. Cotton goods, iron and steel and saw mill products lead Alabama's manufacturing, which is centered in the mills, mines and factories in and around Birmingham, the "Pittsburgh of the South." The state is also high in the growing of nuts, corn, hay and sweet potatoes. Other interests include the making of commercial fertilizer and shipping of raw cotton, iron and steel and hardwood lumber.

Muscle Shoals, on the Tennessee River, provides a great electric power source. At Tuskegee Institute, founded by Booker T. Washington, Dr. George Washington Carver carried out his famed agricultural research.

The Confederacy was founded at Montgomery in Feb., 1861, and for a time the city was the Confederate capital.

In 1540, Hernando de Soto and his treasure seekers were the first white men to see the state, although Cabeza de Vaca may have preceded him in 1528.

ARIZONA

Capital: Phoenix.
Governor: Howard Pyle (Rep., 1954).
Organized as territory: Feb. 24, 1863.
Entered Union & (rank): Feb. 14, 1912 (48).
Present constitution adopted: 1911.
Motto: Ditat Deus (God enriches).
State flower: Flower of saguaro cactus (1931).
State bird: Cactus wren (1931).
State colors: Blue and old gold (1915).
State song: "Arizona," a march song (1919).
State tree: Palo Verde (1954).
Nickname: Grand Canyon State.
Origin of name: From the Indian "Arizonac," meaning "little spring."
1940 population & (rank): 499,261 (43).
1950 population & (rank): 749,587 (37).
1953 estimated population: 930,000.
Area & (rank): 113,909 sq. mi. (5).
Geographic center: In Yavapai Co., 55 mi. SE of Prescott.
Number of counties: 14.
Largest cities: Phoenix (106,818); Tucson (45,454); Mesa (16,790); Douglas (9,442); Yuma (9,145).
State forests: None.
State parks: 3 (8,250 ac.).
State general revenue (1952-53): $42,538,862.
State general expenditure (1952-53): $37,576,999.

Agriculture is Arizona's largest revenue-producing industry. By means of irrigation, its once arid acres produce alfalfa, cotton, wheat, sorghum, vegetables, citrus fruits and dates. Income from livestock ranks high from both range and feeder cattle.

Mining of copper, gold, vanadium, uranium and silver ranks next among the industries, the production of copper exceeding that of any other state. Smelting and refining are leading activities.

Phoenix, its largest city, is both a popular health resort and a busy shipper of cotton and vegetables. Douglas loads cattle and smelts copper.

With the Hopi, Navajo (the largest in numbers) and Apache tribes, Arizona has the largest U. S. Indian population, spread over fourteen reservations. It also has some of the country's most famous scenery. In the north is the Grand Canyon; in the east is the Petrified Forest.

Marcos de Niza, a Franciscan friar, entered the state in 1539 in search of the mythical seven cities of Cibola, and was followed a year later by Coronado.

ARKANSAS

Capital: Little Rock.
Governor: Francis Cherry (Dem., 1955).
Organized as territory: Mar. 2, 1819.
Entered Union & (rank): June 15, 1836 (25).
Seceded from Union: May 6, 1861.
Re-entered Union: June 22, 1868.
Present constitution adopted: 1874.
Motto: Regnat populus (The people rule).
State flower: Apple Blossom (1901).
State tree: Pine (1939).
State bird: Mockingbird.
State song: "The Arkansas Traveler" (1949).
Nickname: Land of Opportunity.
Origin of name: From the Quapaw Indians.
1940 population & (rank): 1,949,387 (24).
1950 population & (rank): 1,909,511 (30).
1953 estimated population: 1,909,000.
Area & (rank): 53,102 sq. mi. (26).
Geographic center: In Pulaski Co., 12 mi. N of W of Little Rock.
Number of counties: 75.
Largest cities: Little Rock (102,213); Fort Smith (47,942); North Little Rock (44,097); Pine Bluff (37,162); Hot Springs (29,307).
State forests: None.
State parks: 7 (17,907 ac.).
State general revenue (1951): $101,207,000.
State general expenditure (1951): $99,000,000.

About 90 per cent of the nation's bauxite—the source of aluminum—comes from the earth of Arkansas, which also contains North America's only known diamond mine, located in Pike County near Murfreesboro, and presently inactive.

Mostly flat, Arkansas has an equable southern climate and fertile central valleys which grow cotton, rice, wheat, corn, oats, potatoes and fruit. Other industries are oil production, lumbering and the production of wetstones and antimony ore.

Hot Springs entertains fifteen times its population in guests each year. Its forty-seven famous curative mineral springs, the only ones administered by the Federal Government, are in Hot Springs National Park in the Ouachita Mountains. Pine Bluff has the unique distinction of having the largest archery factory in the country.

Hernando de Soto was probably the first white man to see this state in 1541.

CALIFORNIA

Capital: Sacramento.
Governor: Goodwin J. Knight (Rep., 1955).
Entered Union & (rank): Sept. 9, 1850 (31).
Present constitution adopted: 1879.
Motto: Eureka (I have found it).
State flower: Golden poppy (1903).
State tree: California redwood (1937).
State bird: California valley quail (1931).
State animal: Grizzly bear (unofficial).
State fish: California golden trout (1947).
State insect: California dog-face butterfly (unofficial).
State colors: Blue and gold (unofficial).
State song: "I Love You, California" (1951).
Nickname: Golden State.
Origin of name: From a book by the Spaniard Ordoñez de Montalvo.
1940 population & (rank): 6,907,387 (5).
1950 population & (rank): 10,586,223 (2).
1954 estimated population: 12,450,000.

Area & (rank): 158,693 sq. mi. (2).
Geographic center: In Madera Co., 35 mi. NE of Madera.
Number of counties: 58.
Largest cities: Los Angeles (2,104,663); San Francisco (798,000); Oakland (397,000); San Diego (434,924); Long Beach (262,000).
State forests: 8 (70,235 ac.).
State parks and beaches: 137 (559,888 ac.).
State general revenue (1952): $1,396,822,000.
State general expenditure (1952): $1,415,226,000.

California, celebrated for cinema and sunshine, is one of the nation's economic giants. It collects more money from raising food and catching fish than any other state and it stands high in oil production, lumbering and manufacturing. Out-of-state tourist visitors and the travel and recreation expenditures of the state's residents continue to play an important part in the expansion of trade and employment opportunities. Irrigation, in which California leads the country, makes possible the production of more than 200 commercial crops, with cotton, grapes, hay, oranges, barley, lettuce, tomatoes, potatoes and peaches topping the list. The state also leads in making wines and brandies.

Nature is spectacular. Death Valley, in the southeast, is 282 feet below sea level, the lowest spot in the nation; Mt. Whitney, a 14,496-foot peak, is the highest point in the U. S.; Lassen Peak is the only active U. S. volcano although its last eruptions were recorded in the years from 1914 to 1917; and the General Sherman Tree in Sequoia National Park is estimated to be about 3,500 years old. San Pedro is the world's largest man-made harbor, and the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association, operated and owned by the Ginn family, is the largest private bank.

Gold, which was responsible for the state's settlement boom, is still found here, but the state's most important mineral products today are oil, natural gas and natural gas liquids, cement, sand and gravel, boron minerals, miscellaneous stones, tungsten, iron ore, diatomite, gypsum, salt and gold.

California is a leader in industrial energy and its cities specialize in airplane making, shipbuilding, furniture manufacturing and machinery production.

California's four national parks are great tourist attractions and the San Francisco-Oakland and Golden Gate Bridges are among the world's engineering marvels.

Because written Chinese contains no alphabet, the telephone operators in Chinatown of San Francisco are unique: they have to memorize the names, addresses and telephone numbers of subscribers.

Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, Spanish explorer, was probably the first white man to see the state in 1542.

COLORADO

Capital: Denver.
Governor: Dan Thornton (Rep., 1955).
Organized as territory: Feb. 28, 1861.
Entered Union & (rank): Aug. 1, 1876 (38).
Present constitution adopted: 1876.
Motto: Nil sine Numine (Nothing without Providence).

State flower: Rocky Mountain columbine (1899).

State tree: Colorado blue spruce (1939).

State bird: Lark bunting (1931).

State colors: Blue and white (1911).

State song: "Where the Columbines Grow" (1915).

Total state expenditure (1953): $204,454,508.

Colorado, the most elevated state in the nation, with 52 of its peaks over 14,000 feet in height and more than 1,000 going beyond the 10,000-foot mark, began as a miner of gold but has been predominantly agricultural in recent times. Livestock, wheat, hay, beans, sugar beets, corn, potatoes, barley and truck vegetables head the crop list. Like California and Arkansas, the state has a highly developed irrigation system to counteract its dry climate and promote farming.

Colorado is one of the nation's largest producers of uranium and vanadium; also mined are gold, silver, lead, zinc, copper, molybdenum, coal and several nonmetals. The state is also a leading oil producer.

Pueblo, the "Pittsburgh of the West," makes iron, steel, brick, tile and foundry products. Colorado Springs is perhaps the most popular tourist center in the Rocky Mountain sector. Mount Evans Highway is the highest auto road in the world. The world's highest suspension bridge stretches 1,053 feet over the Royal Gorge of the Arkansas River. Summit Lake, 12,740 feet high, near the top of Mt. Evans, is the highest lake in the U. S. reached by an auto road.

Of archeological interest are the cliff dwellings in the southwestern part of the state dating back to the 1st century A.D.

Coronado entered the state in 1540.

CONNECTICUT

Capital: Hartford.

Governor: John Lodge (Rep., 1955).

Entered Union & (rank): Jan. 9, 1788 (5).

Present constitution adopted: 1818; revised effective 1955.

Motto: Qui transtulit sustinet (He who transplanted still sustains).

State flower: Mountain laurel (1907).

State tree: White oak (1947).

State bird: American robin (1943).

State song: None.

Nicknames: Constitution State; Nutmeg State; Land of Steady Habits.

Origin of name: From an Indian word meaning "beside the long tidal river."

1940 population & (rank): 1,709,242 (31).

1950 population & (rank): 2,007,280 (28).

1953 estimated population: 2,162,000.

State general expenditure (1953): $196,764,603.

Connecticut earned its sobriquet, the "Arsenal of the Nation," by its ability to turn out firearms and ammunition in early days, and from this developed an ability to turn out precision instruments of all classes.

Connecticut's cities produce a variety of products, some of which are: arms, sewing machines, airplanes, typewriters, motors, hardware, cutlery, tools, clocks, locks, pottery, machinery, brass products and hats. Hartford, which has the oldest U. S. newspaper, the Courant, established in 1764, is the insurance capital of the nation.

Connecticut devotes its farmland mainly to dairying, fruit growing and poultry raising. It stands high in tobacco growing and no crop in the nation receives as high a price per acre as her shade-grown tobacco.

The state is a popular resort area both for its beaches on Long Island Sound and for its inland lakes and forested hills. The southwest part of the state is a suburban area of New York City.

Connecticut was the first state to have a written constitution, the Fundamental Orders, adopted by three original towns of Colonial days in Jan., 1639.

A Dutch trader, Adrian Block, began the exploration of the state in 1614.

DELAWARE

Capital: Dover.

Governor: J. Caleb Boggs (Rep., 1957).

Entered Union & (rank): Dec. 7, 1787 (1).

Present constitution adopted: 1897.

Motto: Liberty and independence.

State flower: Peach blossom.

State bird: Blue hen chicken.

State song: "Our Delaware."

Nicknames: Diamond State; Blue Hen State; First State.

Origin of name: In honor of Sir Thomas West, Lord De La Warr.

1940 population & (rank): 266,505 (46).

1950 population & (rank): 318,085 (46).

1953 estimated population: 358,000.

Area & (rank): 2,057 sq. mi. (47).

Geographic center: In Kent Co., 11 mi. S of Dover.

Number of counties: 3.

Largest cities: Wilmington (110,356); Newark (6,731); Dover (6,223); New Castle (5,396); Elsmere (5,314).

State forests: 5 (4,200 ac.).

State parks: 3.

State general revenue (1953): $26,499,109.

State general expenditure (1953): $33,139,388.

Little Delaware, at the lowest mean elevation of any state, grows a great variety of small fruit and vegetables and is a U. S. pioneer in the industry of food canning. Peaches, strawberries, apples, corn, wheat, lima beans, asparagus, tomatoes and hay are the leading crops. Fishing in the bay is an important industry. Delaware's chicken farms are one of the great supply sources for the big markets of the East.

Manufactures in Delaware include chemicals, vulcanized fiber, glazed kid and morocco leathers, textiles, paper, metal products, machinery, machine tools and transportation equipment of every major type. In 1844, the Bangor, the first iron seagoing propeller-type vessel constructed in the U. S., was launched at Wilmington.

Delaware was the first state to ratify the U. S. Constitution, on Dec. 7, 1787. During the Civil War, although a slave state, Delaware refused to secede from the Union; the southern part of the state, however, supplied many supporters to the Confederacy.

Henry Hudson discovered Delaware Bay in his exploration of 1609. First settlers in the state were Dutchmen, who arrived in 1631, but who were shortly afterwards massacred by the Indians.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

(City of Washington)

Land ceded to Congress: 1788 by Maryland; 1789 by Virginia (retroceded to Virginia Sept. 7, 1846).

Seat of government transferred to D. C.: Dec. 1, 1800.

Created municipal corporation: Feb. 21, 1871. Present form of government established: June 11, 1878.

Board of Commissioners: Samuel Spencer (Pres.).

Motto: Justitia omnibus (Justice to all).

Official flower: American beauty rose.

Origin of name: In honor of Columbus.

1940 population & (rank as city): 663,091 (11).

1950 population & (rank as city): 802,178 (9).

1953 estimated population: 841,000.

Area: Land, 61.4 sq. mi.; inland water, 7.8.

Geographic center: Near corner of Fourth and L Sts., NW.

Altitude: Highest, 420 ft.; lowest, sea level.

Location: Between Virginia and Maryland, on Potomac River.

Churches: Protestant, 425; Roman Catholic, 36; Jewish, 12; others, 4.

City-owned parks: 730 (12,500 ac.).

Telephones: 709,847.

Expenditure (1953): $147,005,128.

The District of Columbia—identical with the City of Washington—is the capital of the U. S. and the first carefully planned capital in the world.

D. C. history began in 1790 when Congress directed selection of a new capital site, 10 miles square, along the Potomac. When the site was determined, it included thirty and three-quarters square miles on the Virginia side of the river. In 1846, however, Congress returned that area to Virginia.

President Washington had commissioned Major Pierre L'Enfant, a French engineer who had fought in the Revolution, to plan the new capital and in 1800 the government moved in. In 1814, during the War of 1812, a British force fired the capital and it was from the white paint applied to cover fire damage that the President's home came to be called the White House.

Washington's skyline is dominated by the Capitol and the Washington Monument, towering 555 feet. The Capitol, while not in the city center, is the key to the street address system. The city is laid out in rectangular blocks, created by streets intersecting at right angles. In addition, diagonal arteries fan out from various centers. Pennsylvania Avenue—the radial lines are generally named for the states—is the most famous of them, with the White House at number 1600.

The Capitol is 751 feet long and 350 feet wide. It has 431 rooms. The two wings, constructed of marble, house the Senate and the House; and the central part of the building contains the Rotunda, the Statuary Hall and the old Supreme Court chamber. Visitors may go through the building from 9 A.M. until 4:30 P.M. Congress normally convenes at noon, and the floor of the Senate and House must be cleared by 11:45 A.M. The galleries in the Senate and House chambers are open to visitors during sessions.

Washington has many other famous buildings and monuments—the Library of Congress, Jefferson Memorial, Lincoln Memorial, Grant Memorial, Tomb of the Unknown Soldier (Arlington Cemetery), Treasury Building, the Pentagon, Petersen House (where Lincoln died) and scores of others.

Washington is administered by three commissioners appointed by the President. Two of them must be residents of D. C. and the third must be a U. S. Army engineer appointed by the Chief of Engineers.

FLORIDA

Capital: Tallahassee.

Governor: Charley E. Johns (acting).*

Organized as territory: Mar. 30, 1822.

State general revenue (1953): $278,479,314.

State general expenditure (1953): $220,374,511.

Agriculture is Florida's biggest steady pursuit, but hotel statistics point to its chief fame—resort and tourist business. Along its coastline, the longest of any state, dozens of communities more than double in population during the winter season when northerners flee snow and cold.

Oranges and grapefruit lead Florida's crop list, then come tomatoes, tobacco, beans, celery, potatoes and peanuts. Truck gardening, commercial fishing and cattle are leading industries. Deep-sea fishing for sport is a leading tourist hobby.

Florida's low elevation is dotted by some 30,000 small lakes and the Everglades swamp in the south. Tampa is one of the largest cigar manufacturers and Jacksonville ships lumber and turpentine. St. Augustine, founded in 1565, is the oldest town of European origin in the U. S. Key West, exclusive resort city, is the southernmost city in the U. S. and is connected to the mainland by a unique causeway.

In 1513, Ponce de León, seeking the mythical "Fountain of Youth," was the first white man to see the state.

GEORGIA

Capital: Atlanta.

Governor: Herman E. Talmadge (Dem., 1955).

Entered Union & (rank): Jan. 2, 1788 (4).

Seceded from Union: Jan. 19, 1861.

Re-entered Union: July 15, 1870.

Present constitution adopted: 1945.

Motto: Wisdom, justice and moderation.

State flower: Cherokee rose (1916).

State tree: Live oak (1937).

State bird: Brown thrasher (1935).

State song: "Georgia" (1922).

Nicknames: Peach State; Empire State of the South.

Origin of name: In honor of George II of England.

1940 population & (rank): 3,123,723 (14).

1950 population & (rank): 3,444,578 (13).

1953 estimated population: 3,585,000.

Area & (rank): 58,876 sq. mi. (20).

Geographic center: In Twiggs Co., 18 mi. SE of Macon.

Number of counties: 159.

Largest cities: Atlanta (331,314); Savannah (119,538); Columbus (79,611); Augusta (71,508); Macon (70,252).

State forests: 2 (2,000 ac.).

State parks: 25 (32,222 ac.).

State general revenue (1951): $228,876,399.59.

State general allocations (1951): $217,110,506.78.

Georgia is typical of the changing South. The value of its factory products has passed the value of its farm products, and industrialization is ever increasing. Atlanta is achieving importance as an industrial center. Cotton and lumber products, fertilizer, processed food and a great variety of other items are among the factory output of Macon, Augusta, Savannah and Columbus. Because of its numerous textile mills, Columbus is called the "Lowell of the South."

Georgia ranks high in cotton, tobacco, peanuts and pecans. Georgia's peaches are nationally famous. From its vast stands of pine come more than half of all U. S. resin and turpentine. The state is one of the leaders in the value of its clay products. Cattle grazing is extensive. Georgia marble is widely used.

Warm Springs has the celebrated foundation operated to aid infantile paralysis victims. It was there that President Franklin D. Roosevelt died on April 12, 1945.

Hernando de Soto, a Spaniard, in 1540, looked over the red clay of Georgia, and General James Oglethorpe founded its first British colony Feb. 12, 1733, at Savannah.

IDAHO

Capital: Boise.

Governor: Len B. Jordan (Rep., 1955).

Organized as territory: Mar. 3, 1863.

Entered Union & (rank): July 3, 1890 (43).

Present constitution adopted: 1890.

Motto: Esto perpetua (It is perpetuated).

State flower: Syringa (1931).

State tree: White pine (1935).

State bird: Mountain bluebird (1931).

State song: "Here We Have Idaho."

Nicknames: Gem State; Gem of the mountains.

Origin of name: From a Shoshoni Indian word meaning "sunup."

1940 population & (rank): 524,873 (42).

1950 population & (rank): 588,637 (43).

1953 estimated population: 603,000.

Area & (rank): 83,557 sq. mi. (12).

Geographic center: In Custer Co., 24 mi. S of W of Challis.

Number of counties: 44, plus small part of Yellowstone Park.

Largest cities: Boise (34,393); Pocatello (26,131); Idaho Falls (19,218); Twin Falls (17,600); Nampa (16,185); Lewiston (12,985).

State forests: 925,000 ac.

State parks: 4 (9,000 ac.).

State revenue (1952): general fund, $21,928,219.92; special funds, $67,634,499.06.

State expenditure (1952): general fund, $19,449,181.12; special funds, $66,491,880.24.

Idaho's huge investment in irrigation has advanced its agriculture well ahead of its mining. Idaho potatoes are eaten everywhere. The state grows apples and other fruits and wheat, corn and barley. There is light diversified manufacturing and Pocatello sells its cheese to a world market.

Idaho mines gold, silver, lead, zinc, copper and tungsten, and still has vast undeveloped mineral wealth. In its rugged central mountains is an area that is reachable only by pack horse. The forests of the state, covering at least one-third of the area, account for the fact that lumbering is extensive.

Tourist trade is important. Hunting and fishing are excellent. Sun Valley is a famed resort and attracts countless tourists to its swimming and skiing facilities.

Lewis and Clark visited Idaho in 1805 but real settlement began with the gold strike of 1860.

ILLINOIS

Capital: Springfield.
Governor: William G. Stratton (Rep., 1957).
Organized as territory: Feb. 3, 1809.

State general expenditure (1953): $626,646,000.

Illinois anchors the Midwest like a rich giant, versatile in every big wealth-making industry. It stands high in manufacturing, coal mining, farm cash income, oil production. The sprawling Chicago district (including a slice of Indiana) is a great iron and steel producer, meat packer, grain exchange and rail center. Chicago is also a busy long-flight airport city and Great Lakes port area. The Illinois sand and gravel business is exceeded only by that of California.

In agriculture, Illinois is first in soy beans and high in corn, oats, wheat, barley, rye, potatoes and truck vegetables. Hog raising and dairying are important industries.

Illinois manufactures almost everything. Railroad cars, clothing, furniture, tractors, liquor, watches and farm implements are some of the items made in its several cities. An important U. S. arsenal is located on a Mississippi island off Rock Island.

Central Illinois is noted for shrines and memorials associated with the life and works of Abraham Lincoln, greatest son of Illinois. In Springfield are the Lincoln Home and Lincoln Tomb. At New Salem State Park, 20 miles northwest of Springfield, the reconstructed village of New Salem stands as a notable Lincoln memorial.

Marquette and Joliet, in 1673, were the first known explorers of this state.

INDIANA

Capital: Indianapolis.
Governor: George N. Craig (Rep., 1957).
Organized as territory: May 7, 1800.
Entered Union & (rank): Dec. 11, 1816 (19).
Present constitution adopted: 1851.

Motto: The Crossroads of America.
State flower: Zinnia (1931).
State tree: Tulip tree (1931).
State bird: Cardinal (1933).
State song: "On the Banks of the Wabash, Far Away" (1913).

State forests: 14 (110,000 ac.).
State parks: 18 (46,698 ac.).
State general revenue (1952-53): $325,264,000.
State general expenditure (1952-53): $305,037,000.

Indiana's fifty-one-mile Michigan waterfront is one of the great industrial centers of the world, turning out iron and steel and oil products to make this state a leader in manufacturing. Its cities have some of the world's largest industrial plants and their great output is further swelled by the inland factories. The list of products is endless—automobiles, farm implements, aviation and railroad equipment, sewing machines are made from iron ore mined in the Great Lakes region.

As a farmer the state stands high in soy beans, corn, tobacco, onions, wheat, oats, rye and tomatoes. The state produces most of U. S. peppermint and spearmint oil.

Indianapolis is the second largest U. S. city not on a navigable body of water. Wyandotte Cave, the second largest in the U. S., is located in Crawford County of Southern Indiana. West Baden and French Lick are well known for their mineral springs. Indiana was one of the early states to adopt the secret ballot based on the Australian system.

La Salle probably was the first white man to pass through the state in 1679.

IOWA

Capital: Des Moines.
Governor: William S. Beardsley (Rep., 1955).
Organized as territory: June 12, 1838.
Entered Union & (rank): Dec. 28, 1846 (29).
Present constitution adopted: 1857.
Motto: Our liberties we prize and our rights we will maintain.
State flower: Wild rose (1897).
State bird: Eastern goldfinch (1933).
State colors: Red, white and blue (in state flag).
State song: "Song of Iowa."
Nickname: Hawkeye State.
Origin of name: Probably from an Indian word meaning "this is the place."
1940 population & (rank): 2,538,268 (20).
1950 population & (rank): 2,621,073 (22).
1953 estimated population: 2,605,000.

Number of counties: 99.

Largest cities: Des Moines (177,965); Sioux City (83,991); Davenport (74,549); Cedar Rapids (72,296); Waterloo (65,198).
State forests: 8 (13,392 ac.).
State parks: 88 (27,901 ac.).
State general revenue (1951-52): $110,656,727.62.
State general expenditure (1952-53, estimated): $117,142,699.81.

Iowa stands in a class by itself as a producer of corn and hogs. The state's productivity often brings it the largest agricultural income in the nation. Ninety per cent of the state is under the plow and the fertility of its soil is unsurpassed anywhere. It also grows oats, soy beans, hemp, hay, popcorn, fruit, nuts and vegetables in great quantities.

Its top industrial activity is naturally centered in meat packing. Des Moines fittingly leads all cities in the publication of farm journals and is also a large insurance center. Muscatine is the largest U. S. maker of pearl buttons. Other Iowa factory products are farm implements, washing machines, fountain pens and railroad and auto equipment.

Iowa has always had a low illiteracy rate and in many years has had the lowest in the nation. The first President to be born west of the Mississippi was Herbert C. Hoover, who came from West Branch.

Marquette and Joliet first explored the state in 1673 and it was in 1778 that Julien Dubuque established the first white settlement on the site of the city that was later named in his honor.

KANSAS

Capital: Topeka.
Governor: Edward F. Arn (Rep., 1955).

State general expenditure (1950): $160,012,000.

Kansas finds its strength in wheat growing and flour milling. Slaughtering and meat packing are also extensively pursued. In the western part of the state, where Dodge City recalls the old days of cattle rustling, rich prairie land sprawls over a large area and gives an abundance of winter wheat and fine grazing.

Corn, sorghums, oats, barley, soy beans and potatoes are other crops. Besides oil, Kansas mines zinc, coal, salt and lead.

The state is the geographical center of the U. S., and the geodetic center of the North American continent, and as such is the area from which official longitudes and latitudes are measured.

Wichita, a growing industrial center, is a leader in the production of military and civilian aircraft. Kansas City is a transportation, milling, and meat-packing center.

Dry since the Murray Liquor Law of 1881, Kansas repealed prohibition in March, 1949.

Coronado entered the state in 1541 in his quest for the fabled cities of gold. In pre-Civil War days, Kansas was the focal point of the nation as antislavery and proslavery factions fought for supremacy.

KENTUCKY

Capital: Frankfort.
Governor: Lawrence W. Wetherby (Dem., Dec. 1955).
Entered Union & (rank): June 1, 1792 (15).
Present constitution adopted: 1891.
Motto: United we stand, divided we fall.
State flower: Goldenrod.
State bird: Kentucky cardinal.
State song: "My Old Kentucky Home."
Nickname: Blue Grass State.
Origin of name: From an Iroquoian Indian word "Ken-tah-ten" meaning "land of tomorrow."
1940 population & (rank): 2,845,627 (16).
1950 population & (rank): 2,944,806 (19).
1953 estimated population: 2,965,000.
Area & (rank): 40,395 sq. mi. (36).
Geographic center: In Marion Co., 3 mi. W of N of Lebanon.
Number of counties: 120.
Largest cities: Louisville (369,129); Covington (64,452); Lexington (55,534); Owensboro (33,651); Paducah (32,828).
State forests: 3 (30,022 ac.).
State parks: 24 (13,500 ac.).
Total state revenue (1952-53): $201,059,851.
Total state expenditures (1952-53): $208,089,638.

Kentucky prides itself on producing some of the nation's best tobacco, horses and whisky. It stands high in the production of native asphalt, hemp, coal, corn, oil.

Among the manufactured items produced by its cities are furniture, aluminum ware, brooms, shoes, lumber products, machinery, textiles and iron and steel products. Besides coal and oil, important minerals are natural gas and quarry products.

Louisville, the largest city, famed for the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, has a large municipal university, distills whisky and is a great cigarette maker. The Blue Grass country is the home of some of the world's finest race horses. Lexington, standing in the center of this country, is a leading tobacconist. Mammoth Cave, with its many miles of underground passages, is one tourist attraction. Another is Kentucky Lake, 184 miles wide, the largest man-made body of water in the world.

Kentucky was credited with a star in the Confederate flag because a secessionist group in the southwest part of the state set up a short-lived government and joined the Confederacy. The legitimate government, however, remained in the Union.

Marquette and Joliet in 1673 saw Kentucky when it was the "Dark and Bloody Ground," fiercely contested by Indian tribes. Daniel Boone explored the country in 1767.

LOUISIANA

Capital: Baton Rouge.

Governor: Robert F. Kennon (Dem., 1956).

Organized as territory: Mar. 26, 1804.

Entered Union & (rank): Apr. 30, 1812 (18).

Succeeded from Union: Jan. 26, 1861.

Re-entered Union: May 26, 1865.

Present constitution adopted: 1921.

Motto: Union, justice and confidence.

State flower: Magnolia (1900).

State bird: Pelican (unofficial).

State song: "Song of Louisiana."

Nicknames: Pelican State; Creole State; Sugar State.

Origin of name: In honor of Louis XIV of France.

1940 population & (rank): 2,363,880 (21).

1950 population & (rank): 2,683,516 (21).

1954 estimated population: 2,870,800.

Area & (rank): 48,523 sq. mi. (30).

Geographic center: In Avoyelles Parish, 3 mi. SE of Marksville.

Number of parishes (counties): 64.

Largest cities: New Orleans (570,445); Shreveport (127,206); Baton Rouge (125,629); Lake Charles (41,272); Monroe (38,572).

State forests: 1 (80,000 ac.).

State parks: 12 (11,731 ac.).

State general revenue (1952-53): $413,602,757.

State general expenditure (1952-53): $384,896,280.

Semitropical Louisiana, with much of its land below sea level, is a natural leader in sugar cane, sweet potatoes and rice production. This state, which still calls its counties parishes after the Spanish religious divisions, is also the nation's leading fur trapper with a rich annual bag of mink, muskrat, opossum and raccoon pelts. Other products of importance are sulfur, oil, natural gas, salt, cotton and lumber.

New Orleans, home of the Mardi Gras, avoids flooding only by an expensive levee and spillway system and the world's largest concentration of drainage pumps. Her industry is making increased use of raw materials from South and Central America. The Vieux Carré, in this Old World city, called by many the "Little Paris" of the New World, has some of the celebrated restaurants of the nation.

No state has a greater variety or abundance of game birds than Louisiana. Its state-owned wildlife sanctuaries are among the largest in the world.

Hernando de Soto, in 1540, is considered the first white man to see the state, but claims are made for Narvaez, who is reputed to have seen the state in 1528.

MAINE

Capital: Augusta.

Governor: Edmund S. Muskie (Dem., 1957).

Entered Union & (rank): Mar. 15, 1820 (23).

Present constitution adopted: 1820.

Motto: Dirigo (I guide).

State flower: White pine cone and tassel (1895).

State tree: Pine tree.

State bird: Chickadee (1927).

State song: "State of Maine Song" (1937).

Nickname: Pine Tree State.

Origin of name: From the French province of Maine.

1940 population & (rank): 847,226 (35).

1950 population & (rank): 913,774 (35).

1953 estimated population: 914,000.

Area & (rank): 33,215 sq. mi. (38).

Geographic center: In Piscataquis Co., 18 mi. N of Dover-Foxcroft.

Number of counties: 16.

Largest cities: Portland (77,634); Lewiston (40,974); Bangor (31,558); Auburn (23,134); South Portland (21,866).

State forests: 1 (21,000 ac.).

State parks: 6 (133,042 ac.).

State general revenue (1953): $80,001,043.

State general expenditure (1953): $78,531,246.

Maine, the largest potato grower in the nation, is supposed to be the political barometer of the nation because it holds its general election a little more than a month before the other states, a situation that has brought forth the popular expression, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation." But since the state is invariably Republican, the nation sometimes fails to follow it.

Maine has the largest forest area in the East, some 16,783,000 acres in timberland and, as a result, pulp, paper making and lumbering are leading industries. In addition to the potato crops, hay, oats, buckwheat and apples are grown. Manufacturing includes textiles, shoes and fruit canning. Much poultry is raised.

Acadia National Park, on Mount Desert Island, approximately 50 miles southeast of Bangor, offers one of the finest examples of mountain and ocean views on the Atlantic.

With 2,500 lakes, hundreds of streams and a bracing summer climate, Maine is famous as a resort state. Fishing is excellent and deer, bear and other game are plentiful. Its city of Eastport is the most easterly city in the U. S., and York was the first chartered city (in 1642) in the nation.

Samuel de Champlain looked over Maine's rugged area in 1504 but the Cabots probably saw it at least a century earlier.

MARYLAND

Capital: Annapolis.

Governor: Theodore R. McKeldin (Rep., 1955).

Entered Union & (rank): Apr. 28, 1788 (7).

Present constitution adopted: 1867.

Motto: Fatti maschii, parole femine (Manly deeds, womanly words).

State flower: Black-eyed susan (1918).

State tree: White oak (1941).

State bird: Baltimore oriole (1882).

State colors: Black and gold (1904).

State song: "Maryland! My Maryland!" (1939).
Nicknames: Free State; Old Line State.
Origin of name: In honor of Henrietta Maria (Queen of Charles I of England).
1940 population & (rank): 1,821,244 (28).
1950 population & (rank): 2,343,001 (24).
1953 estimated population: 2,541,000.
Area & (rank): 10,577 sq. mi. (41).
Geographic center: In Anne Arundel Co., 3 mi. E of Collington.
Number of counties: 23, plus 1 independent city.
Largest cities: Baltimore (949,708); Cumberland (37,679); Hagerstown (36,260); Frederick (18,142); Salisbury (15,141).
State forests: 11 (120,947 ac.).
State parks: 12 (7,800 ac.).
State general revenue (1953): $304,608,810.
State general expenditure (1953): $304,045,049.

Maryland, a leader in vegetable canning, is cut almost in two by the upthrust of Chesapeake Bay, and with its many streams in this area, it has probably the most river frontage of any of the states. The state is one of the largest chicken raisers in the East and the Chesapeake is the largest crabbing center in the world. In addition to all kinds of vegetables, the state also grows wheat, hay, corn, potatoes and barley. Coal, sand and gravel, cement and stone are the leading mineral products.

The manufacturing products of its cities range from airplanes, steel, clothing, chemicals to meat packing. Annapolis is the site of the U. S. Naval Academy. The State House, built in 1772, is the only one built in the Colonial period which is still in regular use by a state government. Baltimore, the largest city, is the site of the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

The Charter of Maryland was granted in 1632 to Lord Baltimore, who died before it had passed the Great Seal; and it was issued to his oldest son, Cecil. The first settlers landed at St. Marys in 1634.

MASSACHUSETTS

Capital: Boston.
Governor: Christian A. Herter (Rep., 1955).
Entered Union & (rank): Feb. 6, 1788 (6).
Present constitution adopted: 1780.
Motto: Ense petit placidam sub libertate quietem (By the sword we seek peace, but peace only under liberty).
State flower: Mayflower (1918).
State tree: American elm (1941).
State bird: Chickadee (1941).
State colors: Blue and gold (in flag and shield).
State song: None.
Nicknames: Bay State; Old Colony State.
Origin of name: From two Indian words meaning "great mountain place."
1940 population & (rank): 4,316,721 (8).
1950 population & (rank): 4,690,514 (9).
1953 estimated population: 4,900,000.
Area & (rank): 8,257 sq. mi. (44).
Geographic center: In Worcester Co., in N part of city of Worcester.
Number of counties: 14.
Largest cities: Boston (801,444); Worcester (203,486); Springfield (162,399); Cambridge (120,740); Fall River (111,963).

State forests: 70 (170,000 ac.).
State parks: 7 (4,792 ac.).
State general revenue (1951): $409,988,000.
State general expenditure (1951): $447,775,000.

Massachusetts is the leading shoe producer in the U. S., and has been one of the leaders in the making of textiles since the beginning of American history. The top-ranking industries are machinery (including electrical machinery), leather, apparel and fabricated metals. Logan International Airport at East Boston, the nearest point in the U. S. to Europe, ranks among the world's greatest aerodromes.

Agricultural products, ranked in order of importance, are poultry, dairy products, greenhouse and nursery products, truck crops, cranberries, tobacco, apples, potatoes and hay. Other crops produced are corn, tomatoes, lettuce, celery, strawberries, buckwheat and maple sugar.

The growth of factories brought to this state an influx of foreigners and today Boston has one of the largest Irish populations in the nation. Boston became prominent as the "Cradle of Liberty" in early days and it was here that Paul Revere rode from Christ Church on Copp's Hill and the Battle of Bunker Hill was fought.

Small glacial lakes are scattered throughout the state.

The Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock in 1620 as the first large group to settle here but legend has it that Eric the Red and his Norsemen saw the state in the year 1000.

MICHIGAN

Capital: Lansing.
Governor: G. Mennen Williams (Dem., 1955).
Organized as territory: Jan. 11, 1805.
Entered Union & (rank): Jan. 26, 1837 (26).
Present constitution adopted: 1908.
Motto: Si quaeris peninsulam amoenam circumspice (If you seek a pleasant peninsula, look around you).
State flower: Apple blossom (1897).
State bird: Robin (unofficial).
State animal: Wolverine (unofficial).
State song: "Michigan, My Michigan" (unofficial).
Nickname: Wolverine State.
Origin of name: From two Indian words meaning "great lake."
1940 population & (rank): 5,256,106 (7).
1950 population & (rank): 6,371,766 (7).
1953 estimated population: 6,852,000.
Area & (rank): 58,216 sq. mi. (22).
Geographic center: In Wexford Co., 5 mi. W of N of Cadillac.
Number of counties: 83.
Largest cities: Detroit (1,849,568); Grand Rapids (176,515); Flint (163,143); Dearborn (94,994); Saginaw (92,918).
State forests: 22 (3,736,500 ac.).
State parks: 57 (166,453 ac.).
State general revenue (1953): $735,992,517.
State general expenditure (1953): $710,865,595.

On a map of Michigan, draw an eighty-five-mile circle around Detroit and it will contain the home plants of the companies that make nine out of ten American automobiles. This vast industry, which sprang up about fifty years ago from the carriage-building business, is not the only activity of this state. Airplanes, furniture (Grand Rapids is the furniture center of the U. S.), diesel engines, hoists, pumps, boilers are among its leading items of production. Most of the nation's refrigerators are made in Michigan. On its farms are grown dry beans, grapes, peaches, potatoes, sugar beets and other food crops.

Michigan is the only state that is split completely in two parts. The northern peninsula is mining and timber country. The southern part is agricultural and manufacturing country. Connecting Lakes Superior and Huron is the busiest canal in the world—the Sault Ste. Marie. Its 11,037 inland lakes and 2,242 miles of Great Lakes shoreline make Michigan a good vacation land.

Michigan has the greatest inland fisheries in the world and markets at least 20 species from carp, trout, perch, pike to lake herring. The artificial ski jump on Iron Mountain is probably the highest in the world.

Jacques Cartier, in 1535, was the first white man to see the state.

MINNESOTA

Capital: St. Paul.

Governor: C. Elmer Anderson (Rep., 1955).

Organized as territory: Mar. 3, 1849.

Entered Union & (rank): May 11, 1858 (32).

Present constitution adopted: 1858.

Motto: L'Etoile du Nord (The North Star).

State flower: Moccasin flower (1902).

State tree: Norway pine.

State bird: None.

State song: "Hail Minnesota."

Nicknames: North Star State; Gopher State.

Origin of name: From a Dakota Indian word meaning "sky-tinted water."

1940 population & (rank): 2,792,300 (18).

1950 population & (rank): 2,982,483 (18).

1953 estimated population: 3,053,000.

Area & (rank): 80,009 sq. mi. (11).

Geographic center: In Crow Wing Co., 10 mi. SW of Brainerd.

Number of counties: 87.

Largest cities: Minneapolis (521,718); St. Paul (311,349); Duluth (104,511); Rochester (29,885); St. Cloud (28,410).

State forests: 32 (2,037,065 ac.).

State parks: 61 (84,350 ac.).

State general revenue (1953): $336,329,000.

State general expenditure (1953): $320,553,000.

A few square miles of Northern Minnesota, in the Mesabi, Cuyuna and Vermillion Ranges, produce most of the nation's iron ore, and provide the activity for the port of Duluth. Farm and factory are equally important in Minnesota. Its farms produce oats, butter, eggs, milk, corn, wheat, potatoes, etc. Its factory production follows the pattern of the Midwest. Machinery, furniture, foundry products, etc. are manufactured.

St. Paul, whose twin city of Minneapolis faces it on the other side of the Mississippi, is the nation's biggest publisher of calendars and law books. With over 11,000 lakes, the state is famous for its fishing, and deer, bear and fur trapping. Lake Itasca is the source of the Mississippi.

This "Land of 10,000 Lakes" has many famous resort regions. Travel business for 1952 was estimated to exceed $264 million.

In 1655, Radisson and Groseilliers, French traders from Canada, were the first white men to see the state.

MISSISSIPPI

Capital: Jackson.

Governor: Hugh L. White (Dem., 1956).

Organized as territory: Apr. 7, 1798.

Entered Union & (rank): Dec. 10, 1817 (20).

Seceded from Union: Jan. 9, 1861.

Re-entered Union: Feb. 23, 1870.

Present constitution adopted: 1890.

Motto: Virtute et armis (By valor and arms).

State flower: Magnolia blossom (1900).

State tree: Magnolia (1938).

State bird: Mockingbird (1944).

State song: "Way Down South in Mississippi" (1948).

Nickname: Magnolia State.

State forests: 1 (1,760 ac.).

State parks: 10 (10,972 ac.).

State general revenue (1950): $132,573,383.20.

State general expenditure (1950): $134,463,877.57.

Mississippi, the stronghold of the Old South, has until the past decade been one of the least industrialized states, with more than half its population making a living from the soil. A recent program of industrialization, however, has attracted numerous manufacturing concerns. Cotton, nevertheless, is still king. The world's largest cotton plantation of 35,000 acres is located at Scott. Other crops are corn, peanuts, oats, pecans, soybeans, rice, tung nuts, sugar cane and hay.

Mississippi's Central Hills have produced a serious soil-erosion problem due to the over-emphasis placed on cotton growing through the years. Introduction of livestock and dairying and the pasture improvement programs attendant to it have helped in recent years to remedy this situation.

Mississippi was first to ratify the 18th Amendment and is still one of the two states (the other, Oklahoma) that bans the sale of hard liquor. In 1950, it had the third largest Negro population in the U. S.

The state abounds in historical landmarks and is the home of the Vicksburg National Military Park commemorating Grant's victory on this site.

Hernando de Soto, in 1540, was the first white man to see the state.

MISSOURI

Capital: Jefferson City.
Governor: Phil M. Donnelly (Dem., 1957).
Organized as territory: June 4, 1812.
Entered Union & (rank): Aug. 10, 1821 (24).
Present constitution adopted: 1945.
Motto: Salus populi suprema lex esto (The welfare of the people shall be the supreme law).
State flower: Hawthorn (1923).
State bird: Bluebird (1927).
State colors: Red, white and blue (1913).
State song: "Missouri Waltz" (1949).
Nickname: Show-me State.
Origin of name: From an Indian word probably meaning "muddy water."
1940 population & (rank): 3,784,664 (10).
1950 population & (rank): 3,954,653 (11).
1953 estimated population: 4,096,000.
Area & (rank): 69,674 sq. mi. (18).
Geographic center: In Miller Co., 20 mi. SW of Jefferson City.
Number of counties: 114, plus 1 independent city.
Largest cities: St. Louis (856,796); Kansas City (456,622); St. Joseph (78,588); Springfield (66,731); University City (39,892).
State forests: 7 (150,000 ac.).
State parks: 23 (58,090 ac.).
State general revenue (1950): $273,231,000.
State general expenditures (1950): $275,135,000.

Missouri, touching both South and North, ranks highest in mining lead, making corn-cob pipes and breeding mules. Sometimes called the "saddle horse capital of the world" because of its excellent breeds, this state also grows corn, wheat, oats, barley, potatoes, tobacco and cotton on its fertile table land climbing to the Ozark Mountains. This country of rugged, timbered hills and deep valleys, has more than 10,000 swift-flowing streams. It produces automobiles, shoes, drugs, chemicals, beer and street cars.

Eads Bridge, spanning the Mississippi River at St. Louis, probably handles more freight cars than any other bridge in the world. Bagnell Dam, across the Osage River in the Ozarks, completed in 1931, created one of the largest artificial lakes in the world, running for 129 miles and having a shoreline of approximately 1,300 miles.

The homes of two of Missouri's most publicized sons—Mark Twain and Jesse James—are tourist attractions.

Missouri, like Kentucky, had a star in the Confederate flag because a minority of the state legislature adopted an ordinance of secession. The Governor and pro-secession legislature, however, were ousted and the state remained in the Union. The French explorer, La Salle, entered Missouri in 1682.

MONTANA

Capital: Helena.
Governor: J. Hugo Aronson (Rep., 1957).
Organized as territory: May 26, 1864.
Entered Union & (rank): Nov. 8, 1889 (41).
Present constitution adopted: 1889.
Motto: Oro y plata (Gold and silver).
State flower: Bitterroot (1895).
State tree: Ponderosa pine (1949).

State bird: Western meadow lark (1931).
State song: "Montana" (1945).
Nickname: Treasure State.
Origin of name: Chosen from Mexican dictionary by J. M. Ashley. It is a Mexicanized Spanish word.
1940 population & (rank): 559,456 (39).
1950 population & (rank): 591,024 (42).
1953 estimated population: 614,000.
Area & (rank): 147,138 (3).
Geographic center: In Fergus Co., 12 mi. W of Lewistown.
Number of counties: 56, plus small part of Yellowstone National Park.
Largest cities: Great Falls (39,214); Butte (33,251); Billings (31,834); Missoula (22,485); Helena (17,581).
State forests: 7 (235,876 ac.).
State parks: 4 (2,802 ac.).
State general revenue (1952): $109,801,415.94.
State general expenditure (1952): $81,388,066.11.

Montana's story is the old Western story—few settlers until a gold strike in 1858 brought an influx. Mining is its present occupation, and lead, zinc, silver, coal and oil are taken from its earth.

Butte, sitting on the "richest hill in the world," is the center of the area that once supplied half of the U. S. copper (its most important mineral). Livestock, wool, lumber and dude ranching round out its interests. Agriculture is dependent on irrigation.

The state as a whole still possesses the frank character of the old days, reflected in the legend that the only reason Helena was selected as the name to replace Last Chance Gulch was because of the suggestion of profanity in the front part of that name. Glacier National Park is a popular tourist area with its rugged scenery, hunting areas and dude ranches. While little development has as yet been made, Montana offers fine potentialities for winter sports. Snow conditions are good in the winter in the National Forest Service areas.

NEBRASKA

Capital: Lincoln.
Governor: Robert B. Crosby (Rep., 1955).
Organized as territory: May 30, 1864.
Entered Union & (rank): Mar. 1, 1867 (37).
Present constitution adopted: 1875.
Motto: Equality before the law.
State flower: Goldenrod (1895).
State tree: American elm (1937).
State bird: Western meadow lark (1929).
State song: "My Nebraska" (unofficial).
Nickname: Cornhusker State.
Origin of name: From an Oto Indian word meaning "flat water."
1940 population & (rank): 1,315,834 (32).
1950 population & (rank): 1,325,510 (33).
1953 estimated population: 1,347,000.

Nebraska lives by its expansive sea of grain, reflected in its bumper crops of rye, corn and wheat. There are more varieties of grass growing in this state, valuable for forage, than in any other state in the nation. Its sizable cattle and hog industry help to make Omaha a great stockyard and meat-packing center. Flour, freight cars, farm machinery, precision instruments, brick and tile are products of Nebraska.

One of the world's largest creameries is at Lincoln. Oil was discovered in 1939 and natural gas was discovered in 1949. In 1937, after a constitutional amendment three years earlier, Nebraska became the only state in the union to have a unicameral legislature, to which members are elected without party designation.

NEVADA

Capital: Carson City.

Governor: Charles H. Russell (Rep., 1955).

Organized as territory: Mar. 2, 1861.

Entered Union & (rank): Oct. 31, 1864 (36).

Present constitution adopted: 1864.

Motto: All for our country.

State flower: Sagebrush (1917).

State tree: Pinon pine.

State bird: Mountain bluebird (unofficial).

Nevada, the smallest state in population, had in 1950 about one and one-half persons per square mile. It was made famous by the discovery of the fabulous Comstock Lode in 1859, and has since lived mainly on its mines which give up large quantities of gold, silver, copper, lead, zinc, quicksilver and tungsten. Oil was discovered for the first time in Feb., 1954. In 1931, the state created a new industry by writing an easy divorce law and Reno has since become the "divorce capital of the nation." Gambling was legalized and the gaming tables now pay a two-per cent tax to add to the state's income.

Near Las Vegas, on the Colorado River, stands the Hoover Dam which has twice changed its name (Hoover to Boulder to Hoover), the highest in the world at 726 feet. The state's agricultural crop consists mainly of hay, wheat, barley and potatoes. Carson City is the smallest state capital in population in the U. S. Nevada was the first state to use gas for capital punishment.

Francisco Garcés, a Franciscan friar, saw Nevada's rugged scenery in 1775.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Capital: Concord.

Governor: Hugh Gregg (Rep., 1955).

Entered Union & (rank): June 21, 1788 (9).

Present constitution adopted: 1784.

Motto: Live free or die.

State flower: Purple lilac (1919).

State tree: White birch (1947).

State bird: None.

State song: "Old New Hampshire" (1949).

Nickname: Granite State.

State general revenue (1951): $37,270,931.

State general expenditure (1951): $39,374,070.

New Hampshire is the only state that ever played host at the formal conclusion of a foreign war when, in 1905, Portsmouth was the scene of the treaty ending the Russo-Japanese War. The sandy and stony loam of this state needs liberal fertilization for the growing of its principal crops—fruit, truck vegetables, corn, oats, hay and potatoes. Its chief manufacturing is the production of textiles, leather goods, pulp and paper products.

New Hampshire was the first state to declare its independence from Great Britain and to adopt a constitution. Mt. Washington has recorded some of the world's strongest wind velocities, the last recording of record proportions being registered at 231 miles per hour. The state also has the largest legislative body: it varies from 375 to 400.

With 1,300 lakes and good climate for both winter sports and summer vacations, the state is highly popular as a resort area.

Martin Pring, an Englishman, was probably the first white man to see the state in 1603.

NEW JERSEY

Capital: Trenton.

Governor: Robert B. Meyner (Dem., 1958).

Entered Union & (rank): Dec. 18, 1787 (3).

Present constitution adopted: 1947.

Motto: Liberty and prosperity.

State flower: Purple violet (1913).

State bird: Eastern goldfinch (1935).

State tree: Red oak (1950).

State colors: Blue and gold.

State song: None.

Nickname: Garden State.

Origin of name: From the Channel island of Jersey.

1940 population & (rank): 4,160,165 (9).

1950 population & (rank): 4,835,329 (8).

1953 estimated population: 5,141,000.

Area & (rank): 7,836 sq. mi. (45).

Geographic center: In Mercer Co., 5 mi. SE of the State capitol.

Number of counties: 21.

Largest cities: Newark (438,776); Jersey City (293,017); Paterson (139,336); Trenton (128,009); Camden (124,555).

State forests: 10 (60,327 ac.).

State parks: 22 (20,000 ac.).

State general revenue (1952-53): $407,594,172.

State general expenditure (1952-53): $340,882,500.

New Jersey, situated in an area of wide industrial diversification between the major markets of Philadelphia and New York, is known as the crossroads of the East. Products from over 12,000 factories and shops can be delivered overnight to about 49 million people, representing 12 states and the District of Columbia. The greatest single industry is chemicals, and New Jersey is one of the foremost research centers of the world. The state ranks seventh in value of goods added by manufacture.

Nearly 36% of the land area is devoted to agriculture. It rates high in practically all garden vegetables. Among its fruit crops are the famous cultivated blueberries, which originated in New Jersey. The poultry industry is one of the principal phases of the state's agriculture, and dairying occupies a prominent place. The farm value of New Jersey agricultural products in 1953 amounted to $404,187,000.

The oldest U. S. highway of any length was built in Sussex and Warren counties in 1650. Sandy Hook Lighthouse, built in 1764, is the oldest in point of service in the Western Hemisphere. Near Morristown is the Seeing Eye Training School, where dogs are trained to lead the blind.

Its fortunate topography and geographic location make New Jersey a popular resort state. Wooded hills in the north and over 55 beaches on its 120 mile seashore, from Sandy Hook to Cape May, are favorite tourist attractions. There are over 1,400 miles of trout streams. Lakes and ponds total over 800. New Jersey's travel-industry income is over $1½ billion. The first recognized baseball game was played in Hudson County. Cabot, Verranzo and Gomez were early explorers of New Jersey shores. Henry Hudson sailed into Newark Bay in 1609.

NEW MEXICO

Capital: Santa Fe.

Governor: Edwin L. Mechem (Rep., 1955).

Organized as territory: Sept. 9, 1850.

Entered Union & (rank): Jan. 6, 1912 (47).

Present constitution adopted: 1912.

Motto: Crescit eundo (It grows as it goes).

State flower: Yucca (1927).

State tree: Piñon (1949).

State bird: Road runner (1949).

State colors: Flaming red and golden orange (1915).

State song: "O, Fair New Mexico" (1916).

Nicknames: Land of Enchantment; Sunshine State.

Origin of name: From the country of Mexico.

1940 population & (rank): 531,818 (42).

1950 population & (rank): 681,187 (39).

1953 estimated population: 758,000.

Area & (rank): 121,666 sq. mi. (4).

Geographic center: In Torrance Co., 12 mi. W of S of Willard.

Number of counties: 32.

Largest cities: Albuquerque (96,815); Santa Fe (27,998); Roswell (25,738); Carlsbad (17,975); Clovis (17,318).

State forests: None.

State parks: 6 (16,018 ac.).

State general revenue (1952): $112,343,000.

State general expenditure (1952): $106,450,000.

Bilingual New Mexico is the only state where both English and Spanish are accepted as official languages. The two cultures of this state give it a picturesqueness that attracts many tourists. Mining and the raising of cattle and crops provide the state's chief interests. Irrigation is vital.

The state contains the largest Indian reservation in the U. S. with over 16,000,000 acres, inhabited by the Navajo tribe. The Apaches and Utes live in three other reservations in this state (the Jicarilla Apache, at Horse Lake; the Mescalero Apache, north-east of Alamogordo; the Navajo, in San Juan and McKinley counties; and the Southern Ute, in the northern part of San Juan County). Carlsbad Caverns, the largest in the world, attract many visitors annually. The highest golf course in the world, over 9,000 feet above sea level, is near Alamogordo.

The state's dry and healthful climate makes it a great recuperative mecca for tuberculars. Santa Fe, the oldest seat of government in the U. S., was founded by the Spaniards in 1609-10.

Los Alamos is the site of an atomic-bomb laboratory. The first atomic explosion in history was at the Alamogordo air base.

NEW YORK

Capital: Albany.

Governor: Thomas E. Dewey (Rep., 1955).

Entered Union & (rank): July 26, 1788 (11).

State general expenditure (1954): $1,074,900,000.

New York, with the great metropolis of New York City, is the spectacular nerve center of the nation. It leads in population, manufacturing, foreign trade, commercial and financial transactions, book and magazine publishing, theatrical production and a host of other fields.

New York City is not only a national but an international leader. It is the busiest seaport in the world; New York International Airport is the largest in the world. First in manufacturing since 1824, the city today has a gigantic clothing and fur industry and also makes chemicals, paints, drugs, machinery, paper, wood and textile products and houses the tallest buildings in the world. Nearly all the rest of the state's manufacturing is done along the Hudson River north to Albany and through the Mohawk Valley and Central New York to Buffalo. It includes planes, heavy and light electrical equipment, locomotives, radio and TV sets, auto bodies and parts, washing machines, typewriters, photographic and optical equipment, shirts and flour. Dairying, truck gardening, and the raising of potatoes, onions and cabbage keep the New York farmer prosperous. Wine-making is a major industry in the state.

New York's extremely rapid commercial growth may be partly attributed to Governor De Witt Clinton who pushed through the construction of the Erie Canal (Buffalo to Albany) which was formally opened in 1825. The canal was the first of the great man-made waterways of the U. S.

The state leads the nation and the world as a tourist attraction. The convention and tourist business is the state's fifth greatest source of income.

For a short time, New York City was the U. S. Capital and George Washington was inaugurated there as the first President on April 30, 1789. It is a key state in any national election, and so significant in the life of the country that any Governor is likely to become a presidential possibility.

Henry Hudson explored New York in 1609 in his trip up the river later named in his honor. On the basis of his explorations, the Dutch bought the island of Manhattan for $24 from the Indians in 1626.

NORTH CAROLINA

Capital: Raleigh.

Governor: William B. Umstead (Dem., 1957).

Entered Union & (rank): Nov. 21, 1789 (12).

North Carolina is the nation's largest tobacco and textile producer. It holds first place in the Southeast in population and in the value of its industrial and agricultural production. This production is highly diversified, with furniture, chemicals and paper constituting enormous industries. Tobacco, corn, cotton, hay, peanuts and truck and vegetable crops are of major importance.

The state leads the South in social and economic reforms. Its educational pay scale is the same for white and Negro teachers. Its school-bus system is the world's largest.

There are 21 state and national parks and forests, including the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, the Blue Ridge Parkway and the new Cape Hatteras National Seashore. Mt. Mitchell, on the Parkway near Asheville, is the highest mountain in the Eastern U. S. (6,684 ft. above sea level).

The largest military reservation in the U. S. (Fort Bragg) and the largest Marine amphibious training base (Camp LeJeune) are in North Carolina.

The first English colony in America was established on Roanoke Island in 1585. Virginia Dare, born there in 1587, was the first child of English parentage born in America.

NORTH DAKOTA

Capital: Bismarck.

Governor: C. Norman Brunsdale (Rep., 1955).

Organized as territory: Mar. 2, 1861.

State collections (1952): $77,797,996.

State disbursements (1952): $71,797,379.

North Dakota, politically progressive, operates the only state-owned bank, flour mill and grain elevator in the nation. The state owes its main activity to agriculture with over 87 per cent of its acreage devoted to the growth of barley, wheat, rye, oats. Most of its manufacturing consists of dairy products.

The finest farming land is in the Red River Valley, celebrated in song. Cattle raising is centered in the Missouri Valley.

"Number One Northern Hard," a wheat first grown in this state, still brings premium prices for its excellence of quality.

The completion of Garrison Dam on the Missouri River will result in extensive irrigation and the production of 400,000 kw. of electricity for use in the Missouri Basin areas.

In 1951, oil was discovered near Tioga by the Amerada Petroleum Corp. Geologists believe that the state holds two-thirds of our lignite.

The geographic center of the North American continent is located in Pierce County, latitude 48°10'N, longitude 100°10'W.

A French trader in furs, Vendrye, entered the state from Canada in 1738.

OHIO

Capital: Columbus.

Governor: Frank J. Lausche (Dem., 1955).

Entered Union & (rank): Mar. 1, 1803 (17).

Present constitution adopted: 1851.

Motto: Imperium in imperio (An empire within an empire) (unofficial).

State flower: Scarlet carnation (1904).

State bird: Cardinal (1933).

State song: None.

Nickname: Buckeye State.

State general expenditure (1950): $695,534,112.

With vast coal and oil fields on the one hand, with Great Lakes iron ore close by on the other, Ohio automatically developed into one of the nation's greatest industrial states. The vast and varied factory output of its cities runs from wire, nails, nuts, bolts, paper, radios, cash registers, golf clubs, refrigerators to motors of all kinds and sizes. Cleveland is one of the world's largest handlers of iron ore. Toledo is the nation's largest shipper of coal. Akron makes most of the automobile tires that are used in the United States.

Ohio's thousands of factories almost overshadow its importance in two other basic industries—mining and agriculture. Its fertile soil produces soy beans, corn, wheat, grapes and tobacco. Dairying and greenhouse products are important. Mining is centered in coal, oil, sand, gravel and clay.

Ohio has sent to the White House eight men, six of whom were elected from that state and two of whom were born in Ohio but elected from other states.

In 1749, Céleron, a French officer, reached the Ohio River from Canada and claimed the area for the French, disregarding the grants of the British Kings.

OKLAHOMA

Capital: Oklahoma City.

Governor: Johnston Murray (Dem., 1955).

Organized as territory: May 2, 1890.

Entered Union & (rank): Nov. 16, 1907 (46).

Present constitution adopted: 1907.

Motto: Labor omnia vincit (Labor conquers all things).

State flower: Mistletoe (1893).

State tree: Redbud (1937).

State bird: Scissor-tailed Flycatcher (1951).

State colors: Green and white (1915).

State song: "Oklahoma" (Rodgers-Hammerstein) (1953).

Nickname: Sooner State.

Origin of name: From two Choctaw Indian words meaning "red people."

1940 population & (rank): 2,336,434 (22).

1950 population & (rank): 2,233,351 (25).

1953 estimated population: 2,251,000.

Area & (rank): 69,919 sq. mi. (17).

Geographic center: In Oklahoma Co., 8 mi. N of Oklahoma City.

Number of counties: 77.

Largest cities: Oklahoma City (243,504); Tulsa (182,740); Muskogee (37,289); Enid (36,017); Lawton (34,757).

State forests: None.

State parks: 10 (55,047 ac.).

State general revenue (1952): $272,796,999.

State general expenditure (1952): $289,316,999.

Oil has made Oklahoma a rich state and Tulsa one of the world's wealthiest cities per capita. The smelting of zinc, oil refining, meat packing and flour milling are its chief factory industries. Wheat, corn, oats, cotton, sorghums and potatoes are its agricultural crops of chief importance.

In 1834, Oklahoma was set aside as Indian Territory. It remained so until Apr. 22, 1889, when the first opening to homestead settlement occurred. On that one day, 50,000 people swarmed in, and the term "sooners" was born to apply to those who had sneaked into the state sooner than the noon deadline. A series of land openings by "runs" and lotteries extended through 1901, and sales by sealed bid of remaining lands were held in 1906 and 1910.

Oklahoma has about one-third of the total Indian population of the U. S.—110,864, according to a 1945 report of the Bureau of Indian Affairs. This figure included only adults of one-half or more Indian blood.

The state is one of the two in the nation (the other is Mississippi) which prohibits the sale of hard liquor.

Coronado entered Oklahoma in 1541 while searching for the mythical city of Quivira.

OREGON

Capital: Salem.

Governor: Paul L. Patterson (Rep., 1955).

Organized as territory: Aug. 13, 1848.

Entered Union & (rank): Feb. 14, 1859 (33).

Present constitution adopted: 1859.

Motto: The Union (unofficial).
State flower: Oregon grape (1899).
State tree: Douglas fir (1939).
State bird: Western meadow lark (1927).
State song: "Oregon, My Oregon" (1927).
Nickname: Beaver State.
Origin of name: Unknown. However, it is generally accepted that the name, first used by Jonathan Carver in 1778, was taken from the writings of Maj. Robert Rogers, an English army officer.
1940 population & (rank): 1,089,684 (34).
1950 population & (rank): 1,521,341 (32).
1953 estimated population: 1,602,000.
Area & (rank): 96,981 sq. mi. (9).
Geographic center: In Crook Co., 25 mi. E of S of Prineville.
Number of counties: 36.
Largest cities: Portland (373,628); Salem (43,140); Eugene (35,879); Medford (17,305); Corvallis (16,207).
State forests: 720,000 ac. in 14 counties.
State Parks: 156 (54,934 ac.).
State general revenue (1953): $186,354,000.
State general expenditure (1953): $233,456,000.

Oregon, with the greatest U. S. reserve of standing timber, has a billion dollar forestry industry. Its salmon fishing industry, centered at Astoria at the mouth of the Columbia River, is one of the world's largest.

In agriculture, the state leads in growing peppermint, holly, lily bulbs, caneberries, filberts, Blue Lake beans and cover seed crops, and also raises strawberries, hops, wheat and other grains, sugar beets, potatoes, green peas, fiber flax, dairy products, livestock and poultry.

Oregon's coast is lush and green with heavy rainfall and is noted for its scenic beauty. Crater Lake National Park, Mount Hood and Bonneville Dam on the Columbia are other tourist attractions.

With the low-cost electric power provided by Bonneville Dam and other hydroelectric dams in the Pacific Northwest, Oregon has developed steadily as a manufacturing state. Leading manufactures are lumber and lumber products, metalwork, machinery, aluminum, chemicals and paper.

Largest cities: Philadelphia (2,071,605); Pittsburgh (676,806); Erie (130,803); Scranton (125,536); Reading (109,320).
State forests: 23 (1,798,883 ac.).
State parks: 109 (103,987 ac.).
State revenue (1953): $1,122,039,000.
State expenditure (1953): $1,088,735,000.

From the steel mills of Pittsburgh through the mid-state coal mines and oil wells to the shipyards and factories of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania bristles with heavy industry. Iron and steel are the state's trademarks. Today about half of U. S. iron and steel is made in the Pittsburgh area. Electrical machinery, textiles, boilers, engines, knit goods, locomotives, wire, trucks, buses, silk products, blast furnaces and other heavy products are made in the countless factories of this state. Philadelphia is the second busiest port in the U. S. and was the third largest city in population in 1950. Pennsylvania contains virtually all the U. S. anthracite (hard coal) deposits. As a farmer the state stands high in buckwheat, tobacco, apples, potatoes, corn, wheat, barley, hay and peaches.

Pennsylvania is rich in historical lore. Philadelphia was the seat of the federal government almost continuously from 1776 until 1800, and there the Declaration of Independence was signed and the Constitution drawn up. Valley Forge, of the Revolution, and Gettysburg, the turning-point of the Civil War, are both in Pennsylvania. The Liberty Bell stands in Independence Square in Philadelphia.

Henry Hudson sailed into Delaware Bay in 1609, following his trip up the Hudson River. In 1681, William Penn, the Quaker, founded its first colony.

RHODE ISLAND

Capital: Providence.
Governor: Dennis J. Roberts (Dem., 1955).
Entered Union & (rank): May 29, 1790 (13).
Present constitution adopted: 1843.
Motto: Hope.
State flower: Violet (unofficial).
State tree: Maple (unofficial).
State bird: Rhode Island Red (official).
State colors: Blue, white and gold (in state flag).
Song: "Rhode Island" (1946).
Nickname: Little Rhody.
Origin of name: From the Greek island of Rhodes.
1940 population & (rank): 731,346 (36).
1950 population & (rank): 791,896 (36).
1953 estimated population: 817,000.
Area & (rank): 1,214 sq. mi. (48).
Geographic center: In Kent Co., 2.8 mi. S by W. of Crompton.
Number of counties: 5.
Largest cities: Providence (248,674); Pawtucket (81,436); Cranston (55,060); Woonsocket (50,211); Warwick (43,028).
State forests: 9 (15,600 ac.).
State parks: 11 (5,700 ac.).
State general revenue (1953): $64,333,676.
State general expenditure (1953): $60,343,056.

Little Rhode Island (it would fit into Texas 220 times), with the greatest density of population barring the District of Columbia, boasts the highest proportion of industrial workers of all the states. Leading industry is textiles, largely concentrated in Pawtucket, Providence and Woonsocket.

Providence is also one of the largest U. S. jewelry centers, and is important in the production of machinery and metal products.

With more than eight-tenths of the population living in urban areas, adjacent parts of the state are interested in dairying, poultry and truck farming. Potatoes, corn, apples, oats and hay lead the crop list. Of the state's land area, about one-seventh is farm cropland and open pasture; two-thirds is forested.

Newport is the site of the Naval War College and was long a show place for the luxurious summer homes built by some of New York's wealthiest people. The U. S. Naval Air Station is at Quonset in the town of North Kingstown.

Roger Williams founded Providence, and subsequently Rhode Island, in 1636 after he had been banished from Massachusetts for nonconformance to religious doctrine. William Blackstone, a fugitive from Massachusetts, is reputed to have settled in what is now Cumberland, before this date.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Capital: Columbia.

Governor: James F. Byrnes (Dem., 1955).

Entered Union & (rank): May 23, 1788 (8).

Seceded from Union: Dec. 20, 1860.

Re-entered Union: July 18, 1868.

Present constitution adopted: 1895.

Mottoes: Animus opibusque parati (Prepared in minds and resources) and Dum spiro spero (While I breathe, I hope).

State flower: Carolina yellow jessamine (1924).

State tree: Palmetto tree (1939).

State bird: Carolina wren (1948).

State song: "Carolina" (1911).

Nickname: Palmetto State.

Origin of name: Same as for North Carolina.

1940 population & (rank): 1,899,804 (26).

1950 population & (rank): 2,117,027 (27).

1953 estimated population: 2,195,000.

Area & (rank): 31,055 sq. mi. (39).

Geographic center: In Richland Co., 13 mi. SE of Columbia.

Number of counties: 46.

Largest cities: Columbia (86,914); Charleston (70,174); Greenville (58,161); Spartanburg (36,795); Rock Hill (24,502).

State forests: 4 (123,000 ac.).

State parks: 22 (46,000 ac.).

State total revenue (1951-52): $158,075,000.

State general expenditure (1951-52): $150,386,210.

Once primarily agricultural, South Carolina has built so many big cotton textile mills that today the state's factories double the output of its farms in cash value. Agriculture has not, however, been completely replaced and today its chief crops are cotton, tobacco, peaches, corn, hay, oats, sweet potatoes and peanuts which are enhanced by the recent development of modern soil-conservation methods. Charleston, the busiest seaport, makes asbestos, wood, pulp and steel products.

Civil War hostilities were started in this state at Charleston, when, on April 12, 1861, South Carolina men bombarded and captured Fort Sumter. In Charleston harbor the first submarine was used in warfare.

Vasquez de Ayllon, who came from Santo Domingo with about 500 settlers in 1526, made the first attempt to colonize this state but the expedition was later wiped out by Indians. In succeeding years, Spanish attempts were successful.

SOUTH DAKOTA

Capital: Pierre.

Governor: Sigurd Anderson (Rep., 1955).

Organized as territory: Mar. 2, 1861.

Entered Union & (rank): Nov. 2, 1889 (40).

Present constitution adopted: 1889.

Motto: Under God the people rule.

State flower: American pasqueflower (1903).

State tree: Black Hills spruce (1947).

State bird: Ring-necked pheasant (1943).

State animal: Coyote (1949).

State colors: Blue and gold (in state flag).

State song: "Hail! South Dakota" (1943).

Nicknames: Sunshine State; Coyote State.

Origin of name: Same as for North Dakota.

1940 population & (rank): 642,961 (38).

1950 population & (rank): 652,740 (40).

1953 estimated population: 657,000.

Area & (rank): 77,047 sq. mi. (15).

Geographic center: In Hughes Co., 8 mi. NE of Pierre.

Number of counties: 67.

Largest cities: Sioux Falls (52,696); Rapid City (25,310); Aberdeen (21,051); Huron (12,788); Watertown (12,699).

State forests: 4 (86,000 ac.).

State parks: 62 (80,000 ac.).

State general revenue (1953): $74,643,410.

State general expenditure (1953): $73,279,854.

Seventy-five per cent of the population of South Dakota is actively interested in agriculture. Its leading crops are rye, barley, oats, corn, wheat. Cattle raising and dairying are its stronger industries. The richest U. S. gold mine, the Homestake, is at Lead.

The Black Hills, a great tourist attraction, are the highest mountains east of the Rockies. Mt. Rushmore, in this group, is celebrated for the likenesses of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt, which were carved in stone by the late Gutzon Borglum. The Badlands offer very scenic masses of bare rock and clay unrelieved by any vegetation. It was in this state that the Sioux Indians, angered at the influx of the white men who were searching for gold, started the hostilities which ended in Custer's Massacre, on June 25, 1876, in Montana.

The French trader, Verendrye, entered this state in 1743, when he came down from Canada looking for a western ocean.

TENNESSEE

Capital: Nashville.

Governor: Frank G. Clement (Dem., 1955).

Entered Union & (rank): June 1, 1796 (16).

Seceded from Union: June 24, 1861.

Re-entered Union: July 24, 1866.
Present constitution adopted: 1870, amended for first time 1953.

Motto: Agriculture, commerce.

State flower: Iris (1933).

State tree: Tulip poplar (1947).

State bird: Mockingbird (1933).

Songs: "My Homeland, Tennessee" (1925) and "When It's Iris Time in Tennessee" (1935).

Nickname: Volunteer State.

Origin of name: From the name of the ancient capital of the Cherokee tribe.

1940 population & (rank): 2,915,841 (15).

1950 population & (rank): 3,291,718 (16).

1953 estimated population: 3,329,000.

Area & (rank): 42,246 sq. mi. (33).

Geographic center: In Rutherford Co., 5 mi. NE of Murfreesboro.

Number of counties: 95.

Largest cities: Memphis (396,000); Nashville (174,307); Chattanooga (131,041); Knoxville (124,769); Jackson (30,207).

State forests: 13 (143,742 ac.).

State parks: 17 (125,318 ac.).

State general revenue (1952-53): $247,196,939.

State general expenditure (1952-53): $246,236,320.

Tennessee won world prominence in 1945, for the atom bomb was made possible by the Clinton Engineer Works at Oak Ridge.

The state is now predominately industrial, with production including chemicals, food, textiles, virgin aluminum, shoes, lumber products, and metal work. Mineral products include phosphates, zinc, copper, lead, sinter iron, pyrites, high-grade pottery clay, coal and marble. Tennessee's agricultural production includes livestock, cotton, corn, tobacco, hay, dairy products, poultry and eggs.

Tennessee is the home of TVA which operates 29 dams and distributes power from 3 dams on the Cumberland River maintained by the Army Corps of Engineers. Benefits of flood control, navigation and electrical power reach into 6 other states (Kentucky, Alabama, North Carolina, Georgia, Virginia, and Mississippi). The Tennessee River, already the most completely used major river in the world, is insufficient to supply energy needs, and the power system is being doubled by use of steam generating plants.

The Battle of Shiloh was fought in this state during the Civil War, and the fighting on Lookout Mountain was called "The battle above the clouds."

Hernando de Soto entered the state in 1541.

TEXAS

Capital: Austin.

Governor: Allan Shivers (Dem., 1955).

Entered Union & (rank): Dec. 29, 1845 (28).

Seceded from Union: Mar. 2, 1861.

Re-entered Union: Mar. 30, 1870.

Present constitution adopted: 1876.

Motto: Friendship.

State flower: Bluebonnet (1901).

State tree: Pecan (1919).

State bird: Mockingbird (1927).

State song: "Texas, Our Texas" (1930).

Nickname: Lone Star State.

Origin of name: From an Indian word meaning "friends."

1940 population & (rank): 6,414,824 (6).

1950 population & (rank): 7,711,194 (6).

1953 estimated population: 8,298,000.

Area & (rank): 267,339 sq. mi. (1).

Geographic center: In McCulloch Co., 15 mi. NE of Brady.

Number of counties: 254.

Largest cities: Houston (596,163); Dallas (434,462); San Antonio (408,442); Fort Worth (278,778); Austin (132,459).

State forests: 5 (6,510 ac.).

State parks: 43.

State general revenue (1952-53): $737,188,310.

State general expenditure (1952-53): $662,495,496.

Big, sprawling, vigorous Texas, comprising one-twelfth of the entire area of the United States, is the richest political subdivision in the world with the possible exception of the Russian Ukraine, and is the only state that may, by Congressional statute, divide into five parts if it so desires. There is very little possibility of this ever being done because Texas and Texans live by its bigness. Texas is a natural leader in oil, natural gas, cotton, cattle, hellum, sulfur, sheep, wool, onions and turkeys.

The distance from El Paso to Beaumont is a greater distance than from New York to Chicago. Texas supports possibly the most ardent local enthusiasts in the nation, who are always quick to boast of her.

Amarillo has the only U. S. hellum plant; over the Neches River, at Port Arthur, is the most elevated highway bridge in the world. In Pecos County is the deepest hole in the world—an oil well of 15,279 feet.

Cabeza de Vaca explored the state in 1528. Since 1685, it has been under the jurisdiction of 6 separate governments: those of France, Spain, Mexico, the Republic of Texas, the Confederacy and the United States.

UTAH

Capital: Salt Lake City.

Governor: J. Bracken Lee (Rep., 1955).

Organized as territory: Sept. 9, 1850.

Entered Union & (rank): Jan. 4, 1896 (45).

Present constitution adopted: 1896.

Motto: Industry.

State flower: Sego lily (1911).

State tree: Blue spruce (1933).

State bird: Seagull (unofficial).

State emblem: Beehive.

State song: "Utah, We Love Thee."

Nickname: Beehive State.

Origin of name: From the Ute tribe, meaning "people of the mountains."

1940 population & (rank): 550,310 (41).

1950 population & (rank): 688,862 (38).

1953 estimated population: 734,000.

Area & (rank): 84,916 sq. mi. (10).

Geographic center: In Sanpete Co., 3 mi. N of Manti.

Number of counties: 29.

Largest cities: Salt Lake City (182,121); Ogden (57,112); Provo (28,937); Logan (16,832); Murray (9,006).

State forests: None.

State parks: 3 (10 ac.).

State general revenue (1951): $89,679,978.82.

State general expenditure (1951): $86,782,876.45.

Utah, rich in natural resources, has long been recognized for its copper, gold, silver.

lead and zinc. Also, it produces all the elements necessary for the manufacture of steel: iron, lime, dolomite, fluorspar, manganese and coal for coking. Uranium mining has recently become a major industry. The state is also developing an oil industry, and this resource may become a major factor in Utah's economy.

Utah's crops requiring extensive irrigation include sugar beets, potatoes, hay, onions and wheat. Various garden crops, such as beans, peas and tomatoes, and fruits, such as pears, peaches, apples and apricots, make up an ever-growing industry. Eggs and commercial poultry are also among the products of Utah.

Brigham Young led the Mormons into the area in 1847. Six times in the next forty years, the area applied for statehood and was refused because polygamy was practiced. In 1896, when polygamy was abandoned by the Mormon Church, Utah was admitted into the Union.

Great Salt Lake, lying in the north central area, has long been a world wonder. It has no known outlet, and its salt content is about six times that of the ocean.

Spanish explorers in 1540 were probably the first whites in the area.

VERMONT

Capital: Montpelier.

Governor: Lee E. Emerson (Rep., 1955).

Entered Union & (rank): Mar. 4, 1791 (14).

Present constitution adopted: 1793.

Motto: Vermont—freedom and unity.

State flower: Red clover (1894).

State tree: Sugar maple (1949).

State bird: Hermit thrush (1941).

State song: "Hail to Vermont" (1937).

Nickname: Green Mountain State.

Origin of name: From the French, meaning "green mountain."

1940 population & (rank): 359,231 (46).

1950 population & (rank): 377,747 (45).

1953 estimated population: 377,000.

Area & (rank): 9,609 sq. mi. (42).

Geographic center: In Washington Co., 4.5 mi. SSE of Roxbury Village.

Number of counties: 14.

Largest cities: Burlington (33,155); Rutland (17,659); Barre (10,922); Montpelier (8,599); St. Albans (8,552).

State forests: 24 (68,936 ac.).

State parks: 21 (6,226 ac.).

State revenue (1953): $46,893,061.

State expenditure (1953): $44,725,897.

Vermont, the only New England state without a seacoast (and the last to be settled because of this), leads the nation in marble, granite, asbestos and maple syrup production. In ratio to population it keeps more dairy cows than any other state. Vermont's soil is devoted to dairying, truck farming and fruit growing, its rugged area precluding extensive farming. This same quality, however, along with a bracing dry climate, makes the state popular as a summer resort and as a center of winter sports. Two-thirds of the total land area of the state is classified as forest land.

From 1777 to 1791, Vermont was an independent state of indefinite status with some national perquisites and then was the first state after the original thirteen to join the Union. It was also the first state to forbid slavery. Vermont has been Republican since 1854; only Georgia on the Democratic side ties that record for consistency.

Samuel de Champlain, in 1609, was the first white man to see the state.

VIRGINIA

Capital: Richmond.

Governor: John S. Battle (Dem., 1954).

Entered Union & (rank): June 25, 1788 (10).

Succeeded from Union: Apr. 17, 1861.

Re-entered Union: Jan. 27, 1870.

Present constitution adopted: 1902.

Motto: Sic semper tyrannis (Thus always to tyrants).

State flower: American dogwood (1918).

State bird: Cardinal.

State song: "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" (1940).

Nicknames: The Old Dominion; Cavalier State.

Origin of name: In honor of Elizabeth, "Virgin Queen" of England.

1940 population & (rank): 2,677,773 (19).

1950 population & (rank): 3,318,680 (15).

1953 estimated population: 3,547,000.

Area & (rank): 40,815 sq. mi. (35).

Geographic center: In Appomattox Co., 11 mi. S of E of Amherst.

Number of counties: 100, plus 24 independent cities.

Largest cities: Richmond (230,310); Norfolk (213,513); Roanoke (91,921); Portsmouth (80,039); Alexandria (61,787).

State forests: 6 (7,010 ac.).

State parks: 9 (19,026 ac.).

State revenue (1952): $359,010,010.

State expenditure (1952): $362,033,045.

Virginia is bound up with American history. Jamestown, founded in 1607, was the first permanent English settlement in North America; slavery was introduced in the state in 1619; the Revolutionary and Civil Wars were both ended in this state.

Agriculture and tobacco are Virginia's mainstays. Apples, cotton, wheat, oats, potatoes, barley and sweet potatoes are her crops. Richmond makes more cigarettes than any other city in the world. Virginia's hams are world famous. There is a substantial livestock industry in southwest Virginia. Industry, particularly in the textile lines, is developing rapidly.

Norfolk, together with Portsmouth and Newport News, makes up the busy Port of Hampton Roads.

Monticello, home of Jefferson; Mount Vernon, home of Washington; and Arlington National Cemetery bring visitors to this Old Dominion state annually.

Virginia is called the "Mother of Presidents," 8 Chief Executives having been born in the state.

The explorations of Sir Walter Raleigh, in 1584, were responsible for the birth of this state, which at that time included the entire Atlantic coast north of the Spanish settlements.

WASHINGTON

Capital: Olympia.

Governor: Arthur B. Langlie (Rep., 1957).

Organized as territory: Mar. 2, 1853.

Entered Union & (rank): Nov. 11, 1889 (42).

Present constitution adopted: 1889.

Motto: Al-Ki (Indian word meaning Bye and Bye).

State flower: Rhododendron (1949).

State tree: Hemlock (1947).

State bird: Goldfinch (1951).

State colors: Green and gold (1925).

State song: "Washington's Song" (1909).

Nicknames: Evergreen State; Chinook State.

Origin of name: In honor of Geo. Washington.

1940 population & (rank): 1,736,191 (30).

1950 population & (rank): 2,378,963 (23).

1953 estimated population: 2,478,000.

Area & (rank): 68,192 sq. mi. (19).

Geographic center: In Chelan Co., 10 mi. S of W of Wenatchee.

Number of counties: 39.

Largest cities: Seattle (467,591); Spokane (161,721); Tacoma (143,673); Yakima (38,486); Bellingham (34,112).

State forests: 2 (290,000 ac.).

State parks: 75 (60,000 ac.).

State general revenue funds (1953-54): $343,656,600.

State general expenditure (1953-54): $322,717,309.

Washington is one of the leaders in lumber production. Its rugged surface is rich in stands of Douglas fir, yellow and white pine, spruce, larch and cedar. The state's other first is apples. Food and lumber products and a wide variety of goods flow from Washington factories.

Grand Coulee Dam, built on the Columbia River for power and irrigation, contains the world's most powerful hydroelectric plant, with a peaking capability of producing a continuous output of 2,340,000 kw. About 90% of the electric energy consumed in the state is generated by water-power plants. Low-cost power makes Washington the owner of more electric lights per capita than any other state in the nation.

The Hanford Engineer Works, north of Pasco, has been set up as the world's first full-scale plant for atom bombs.

Bruno Heceta landed in 1775.

WEST VIRGINIA

Capital: Charleston.

Governor: William C. Marland (Dem., 1957).

Entered Union & (rank): June 20, 1863 (35).

Present constitution adopted: 1872.

Motto: Montani semper liberi (Mountaineers always free).

State flower: Rhododendron (1903).

State tree: Sugar maple (1949).

State bird: Cardinal (1949).

State colors: Blue and gold (unofficial).

State songs: "West Virginia, My Home Sweet Home" (approved 1947 as one of songs of state); "West Virginia Hills" (by custom).

Nickname: Mountain State.

Origin of name: Same as for Virginia.

1940 population & (rank): 1,901,974 (25).

1950 population & (rank): 2,005,552 (29).

1953 estimated population: 1,937,000.

Area & (rank): 24,181 sq. mi. (40).

Geographic center: In Braxton Co., 4 mi. E of Sutton.

Number of counties: 55.

Largest cities: Huntington (86,353); Charleston (73,501); Wheeling (58,891); Clarksburg (32,014); Parkersburg (29,684).

State forests: 10 (96,418 ac.).

State parks: 19 (38,752 ac.).

State general revenue (1952-53): $86,654,108.

State general expenditure (1952-53): $87,905,176.

Mountainous West Virginia is the coal mining leader of the nation. Geologists believe that if all other U. S. coal mines shut down, West Virginia alone could supply the country for 250 years with its deposits of bituminous (soft) coal. The state also ranks high in natural gas, oil, quarry products and hardwood lumber. Cattle is the main product. Leading crops include wheat, corn, oats, hay, tobacco and fruit.

West Virginia was created when its residents refused to secede from the Union and severed itself from Virginia during the Civil War era. Like many mountain states, West Virginia has an equable climate without extremes. White Sulphur Springs, in Greenbrier County, is a famous health resort. Mountain streams give the state one of the highest U. S. water-power potentials.

In 1671, Captain Thomas Batts and a party from eastern Virginia probably were the first whites to see the area.

WISCONSIN

Capital: Madison.

Governor: Walter J. Kohler (Rep., 1955).

Organized as territory: Apr. 20, 1836.

Entered Union & (rank): May 29, 1848 (30).

Present constitution adopted: 1848.

Motto: Forward.

State flower: Violet.

State tree: Sugar maple.

State bird: Robin.

State animal: Badger.

State song: "On Wisconsin" (unofficial).

Nickname: Badger State.

Origin of name: French corruption of an Indian word meaning "gathering of waters."

1940 population & (rank): 3,137,587 (13).

1950 population & (rank): 3,434,575 (14).

1953 estimated population: 3,518,000.

Area & (rank): 56,154 sq. mi. (25).

Geographic center: In Wood Co., 9 mi. SE of Marshfield.

Number of counties: 71.

Largest cities: Milwaukee (637,392); Madison (96,056); Racine (71,193); Kenosha (54,368); Green Bay (52,735).

State forests: 7 (275,770 ac.).

State parks: 30 (17,700 ac.).

State total net revenue, all funds (1952-53): $371,278,330.

State total net expenditure, all funds (1952-53): $374,472,922.

Wisconsin is the first dairying state and leads in dairy cattle and the production of cheese and other milk products. Until some forty years ago, when its forests were exhausted, Wisconsin was a leader in lumbering. It has since turned its attention to agriculture and manufacturing. The making of paper, autos, beer, machinery and furniture are its main factory interests. Cranberries, hay, hemp, oats, rye and tobacco are its secondary agricultural pursuits. It leads the country in such products as peas, corn and beets for canning.

Wisconsin pioneered in social legislation, providing pensions for the blind (1907), aid to dependent children (1913) and old-age assistance (1925). In 1932, it was the first state to enact an unemployment compensation law. In labor legislation, the state has also pioneered in important laws, among them the first workmen's compensation law actually to take effect.

Jean Nicolet, French explorer, seeking a northwest passage in 1634, was the first white man to see the state.

WYOMING

Capital: Cheyenne.

Governor: C. J. "Doc" Rogers (Rep., 1955).

Organized as territory: July 25, 1868.

Entered Union & (rank): July 10, 1890 (44).

Present constitution adopted: 1890.

Motto: Cedant arma togae (Let arms yield to the gown).

State flower: Indian paintbrush (1917).

State tree: Cottonwood (1947).

State bird: Meadow lark (1927).

State insignia: Bucking horse (unofficial).

State song: "Wyoming State Song" (unofficial).

Special legal holiday: Arbor Day (by governor's designation).

Nickname: Equality State.

Origin of name: From the Indian, meaning "mountains and valleys alternating"; named after the Wyoming Valley in Pa.

1940 population & (rank): 250,742 (47).

1950 population & (rank): 290,529 (47).

1953 estimated population: 306,000.

Area & (rank): 97,914 sq. mi. (8).

Geographic center: In Fremont Co., 58 mi. N of E of Lander.

Number of counties: 23, plus Yellowstone National Park.

Largest cities: Cheyenne (31,935); Casper (23,673); Laramie (15,581); Sheridan (11,500); Rock Springs (10,857).

State forests: None.

State parks: 2 (1,060 ac.).

State general revenue (1949-50): $42,246,000.

State general expenditure (1949-50): $41,618,000.

Wealthy in wool, cattle, oil and coal, Wyoming was first in U. S. history to insure woman's place in politics. In 1869, it gave women the vote and Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, who held office in 1925-27, was the first U. S. woman governor.

Second in mean elevation to Colorado, Wyoming has many lures for the tourist trade, notably Yellowstone National Park. Cheyenne is famous for its annual "Frontier Days" celebration, which brings in visitors from everywhere. One of the world's largest subbituminous coal fields lies near Gillette. Big game hunting is good in many parts of the state.

Trappers in 1812 were probably the first white men to settle this state, although John Colter, a member of the Lewis and Clark expedition, reached the northwest corner in 1807.

Self-governing U. S. Territories

ALASKA

Capital: Juneau.

Governor: B. Frank Heinzelman (1957).

Organized as territory: 1912.

Territorial flower: Forget-me-not.

Territorial bird: Raven (unofficial).

Territorial song: "Alaska, My Alaska" (unofficial).

Origin of name: Corruption of native word meaning "great country."

1939 population: 72,524.

1950 population: 128,643.

1953 estimated population: 156,000.

1939-50 population change: +77.4%.

Area: 586,400 sq. mi. (incl. Aleutians).

Geographic center (including Islands): 95 mi. south of Fort Gibbon.

Largest cities: Anchorage (11,254), Juneau (5,956), Fairbanks (5,771), Ketchikan (5,305), Seward (2,114).

Alaska, the biggest of U. S. possessions (including the Aleutian Islands) was called "Seward's Folly" in 1867, when that Secretary of State arranged for its purchase from Russia for $7,200,000. Since then Alaska has returned approximately $3,500,000,000 worth of products to the U. S.

Canned salmon is Alaska's principal product. It mines gold, supplies all domestically mined U. S. tin and also turns out platinum, coal, antimony, silver, mercury, lead, tungsten, gypsum, limestone and marble. The Pribilof Islands, in the Bering Sea, are world famous as the breeding ground of the Alaska fur seal, which is under careful government control. Beaver, muskrat, otter, mink and other furs also abound.

Mt. McKinley, in the south central part, is 20,269 feet high, the tallest peak in North America. With its wild interior, still partly unexplored, this territory is a hunter's paradise. With only one person for every four square miles, Alaska is by far the most thinly settled of U. S. lands. Sitka was its capital until 1912.

Alaska has magnificent glaciers and active volcanoes. Winter temperatures in the interior have been known to register 60° below zero. However, summer temperatures in the same area have been recorded at 99° above zero; and large parts of the territory, especially in the southeast, enjoy mild climate in both summer and winter.

Alaska's Governor is appointed by the President to a 4-year term, and there is a locally elected 2-house legislature. The ter-territory's elected delegate to the U. S. House of Representatives has floor privileges but no vote. Legislation is pending in Congress for the admission of Alaska as a state.

The Aleutians include the following island groups (and major islands): Fox Islands (Unimak, Akutan, Unalaska, Umnak); Islands of the Four Mountains (Chuginadak, Kagamil, Carlisle, Herbert); Andreanof Islands (Atka, Tanaga, Adak, Kanaga); Rat Islands (Kiska, Amchitka, Semisopochnoi, Rat); Near Islands (Agattu, Attu). In June 1942, the Japanese occupied Attu and Kiska. However, Attu was retaken by the U. S. in May 1943; Kiska was evacuated by the Japanese in Aug. 1943 after extensive shelling and bombing of the island.

Vitus Bering, a Dane working for the Russians, and Alexei Chirikov discovered Alaska and the Aleutians in 1741. The first permanent settlement was established in 1783 on Kodiak Island.

HAWAII

Capital: Honolulu (on Oahu).

Governor: Samuel Wilder King (1957).

Organized as territory: 1900.

Motto: Ua Mau Ke Ea O Ka Aina I Ka Pono (The life of the land is preserved by righteousness).

Territorial flower: Hibiscus.

Territorial song: "Hawaii Pono!" (unofficial).

Nickname: Paradise of the Pacific.

1940 population: 423,300.

1950 population: 499,794.

1940-50 population change: +18.1%.

Area: 6,454 sq. mi. (incl. outlying islands).

Counties: 4.

Largest cities: Honolulu (248,034), Hilo (27,198), Wahiawa (8,369), Kailua-Lanikai (7,740), Wailuku (7,424).

Hawaii, 2,100 miles west-southwest of San Francisco, is a 390-mile chain of islets and 8 main islands—Hawaii, Kahoolawe, Maui, Lanai, Molokai, Oahu, Kauai, and Niihau. Kure (Ocean) Island, an uninhabited islet in the Leeward Islands, and Palmyra, in the Line Islands, are administratively part of Hawaii.

Hawaii's temperature is mild and the soil is fertile for tropical fruits and vegetables. Cane sugar and pineapple are its chief products, approximately 75% of the world's canned pineapple being produced in the islands. Hawaii also grows coffee, rice, cotton, bananas, nuts and potatoes. Some livestock and poultry are raised. The tourist business is Hawaii's fourth largest source of income. Approximately 85% of the island's population, although racially heterogeneous, is native to the U. S.

Hawaii's highest peak, Mauna Kea, rises to 13,784 feet and is, in a sense, the world's highest mountain since it springs from an ocean floor 18,000 feet below sea level. Kilauea, on Hawaii, is one of the world's most active volcanoes. The islands have no snakes and their only native mammal is a small bat of which there are many species.

Hawaii's Governor is appointed by the President to a 4-year term, and there is a locally elected 2-house legislature. The territory's delegate to the U. S. House of Representatives has floor privileges but no vote. Legislation is pending in Congress for the admission of Hawaii as a state.

Hawaii was discovered in 1778 by Captain James Cook, an Englishman, who named it the Sandwich Islands. It was ruled by native monarchs until 1893, thereafter as a republic until 1898, when it ceded itself to the U. S.

COMMONWEALTH OF PUERTO RICO

Capital: San Juan.

Governor: Luis Muñoz Marín.

Song: "La Borinqueña."

1940 population: 1,869,255.

1950 population: 2,210,703.

1940-50 population change: +18.3%.

Area: 3,435 sq. mi.

Largest cities: San Juan (357,205*); Ponce (99,492); Mayaguez (58,944); Caguas (33,759); Arecibo (28,659).

* Includes Río Piedras (132,438), which was annexed in 1951.

Puerto Rico, ninety-five miles long and at the northeast head of the Caribbean Sea, is a big cane sugar and rum producer and one of the most densely populated sections in the world. Other crops grown in the Commonwealth are tobacco, citrus fruits, pineapples, rope and coffee.

The island was seized by the U. S. in 1898 in the Spanish-American War. It is administered by a Governor, who, as a result of a bill signed by President Truman on Aug. 5, 1947, is elected by popular vote, and a locally-elected Congress. There is also a Resident Commissioner in Washington with a voice in the House of Representatives but no vote. On Jan. 4, 1951, Puerto Ricans voted for self-rule under a constitution.

On July 25, 1952, the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico was proclaimed by Gov. Luis Muñoz Marín. It had been overwhelmingly approved in the elections held Mar. 3, 1952.

The Commonwealth is now a wholly autonomous community in all matters regarding its local government, and is voluntarily associated with the U. S.

The island was formerly known as Porto Rico, but in 1932, Congress made the present spelling official.

Columbus discovered the island of Puerto Rico on his second voyage to America in 1493. Ponce de León conquered it for Spain in 1509 and became governor in 1510. The city of San Juan was established in 1521.

Non Self-governing U. S. Territories

AMERICAN SAMOA

Capital: Pago Pago (on Tutuila Island).

Governor: Richard Barrett Lowe.

1940 population: 12,908.

1950 population: 18,937.

1940-50 population change: +46.7%.

Area: 75.3 sq. mi.

American Samoa, a group of 5 volcanic islands and 2 coral atolls located some 2,600 miles south of Hawaii in the South Pacific Ocean, is administered by the Interior Dept. The largest island, Tutuila, is the center of government and commerce. Pago Pago Bay is one of the finest harbors in the Pacific.

By the Treaty of Berlin signed Dec. 2, 1899, and ratified Feb. 16, 1900, the U. S. was internationally acknowledged to have rights extending over all the islands of the Samoa group east of longitude 171° west of Greenwich. On April 17, 1900, the Chiefs of Tutuila and Aunu'u ceded possession of those islands to the U. S. In 1904, the Chiefs of the Manu'a Islands did likewise. Swains Island, some 200 miles north of Samoa, was included as part of the territory by Act of Congress Mar. 4, 1925; and on Feb. 20, 1929, Congress formally accepted sovereignty over the entire group and placed the responsibility for administration in the hands of the President. From 1900 to 1951, by Presidential direction, the Department of the Navy governed the territory.

The principal products are copra, mats, handicrafts, and canned fish.

BAKER, HOWLAND AND JARVIS

These Pacific islands were not to play a role in the extraterritorial plans of the U. S. until May 13, 1936, when the U. S. perfected its claim. President F. D. Roosevelt, at that time, placed them under the control of and jurisdiction by the Secretary of the Interior for administration purposes.

Baker Island is a saucer-shaped atoll with an area of approximately one square mile and an elevation of 20 feet. It is about 1,650 miles from Hawaii.

Howland Island, 36 miles to the northeast, is approximately one and a half miles long and half a mile wide and rises to an elevation of 18 feet. Both these islands are near the crossing of the Equator and the International Date line.

Jarvis Island is several hundred miles to the east and is approximately two miles long by one and an eighth miles wide. It is slightly south of the Equator.

CANAL ZONE

Headquarters: Balboa Heights, C. Z.; 24 State St., New York City.

Governor-President: Brig. Gen. John S. Seybold.

1940 population: 51,827.

1950 population: 52,822.

1940-50 population change: +1.9%.

Area: 648.01 sq. mi.

The Canal Zone is a 50-mile strip between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans which was granted to the U. S. by the Republic of Panamá by treaty in 1903 (ratified Feb. 26, 1904). It extends roughly 5 miles on either side of the center line of the Panama Canal, forming what might be termed a protective belt for the vital waterway over which the U. S. exercises complete sovereignty.

The 1903 treaty provided for the payment of $10,000,000 by the U. S. to Panamá upon ratification of the treaty and $250,000 in gold annually, beginning 9 years after ratification. The annual payments were increased to $430,000 after the U. S. went off the gold standard.

The history of the Canal goes back to 1534, when King Charles V of Spain ordered a survey made. Construction of the waterway was formally inaugurated in Jan. 1880 by the French Canal Co. under a concession granted by New Granada (Colombia) 2 years earlier. The canal rights and properties of the second French Canal Co. were bought by the U. S. for $40,000,000, the transfer being made May 4, 1904, in Panama City. The construction of the Canal was completed 10 years later, and the first commercial transit was made Aug. 15, 1914, by the S. S. Ancon, a government-owned vessel.

The Canal is 40.27 miles from shore line to shore line and 50.72 miles from deep water in the Caribbean to deep water in the Pacific. The Panama Railroad, completed in 1855, is owned by the Panama Canal Co. It roughly parallels the Canal channel, running 47.64 miles from Colón to Panama City.

The Panama Canal Locks, which provide a water bridge between the two oceans, are Gatún Locks on the Atlantic side and Pedro Miguel and Miraflores Locks on the Pacific side. They lift or lower ships 85 feet between sea level and Gatún Lake level in 3 steps on each side of the Isthmus. Each of the twin chambers in every flight of locks has a usable length of 1,000 feet, and width of 110 feet, and is about 70 feet deep.

The Canal Zone is, in effect, a government reservation, and in general no private enterprise is permitted except that relating directly to the operation of the waterway. The Governor, who is appointed by the U. S. President, administers the Canal Zone Government, which is charged with the civil government, including health, sanitation and protection of the Zone. The Governor is also ex officio President of the Panama Canal Company, which is a corporate agency of the U. S. charged with the maintenance and operation of the Canal and related business activities.

All ships afloat, with the exception of the commercial liners of the Queen Mary class and U. S. Aircraft carriers of the Roosevelt class, can transit the Panama Canal. Prior to the beginning of World War II, work was started on the construction of a third set of locks, which were to be much larger than existing installations. This work was suspended soon after the war started and has not been resumed.

CANTON AND ENDERBURY

Canton and Enderbury islands, the largest of the Phoenix group, are jointly owned and supervised by the U. S. and Great Britain after an agreement signed on Apr. 6, 1939. Canton is triangular in shape and the largest of the eight islands of this group. It lies approximately 1,600 miles southwest of Hawaii in the Pacific and was discovered at the turn of the eighteenth century by U. S. whalers. It was surveyed by Commander R. W. Meade who named it after a whaler ship. It had, in 1952, a population of 316, including Europeans. Enderbury is rectangular in shape and is 2.7 miles long by one mile wide. It is unpopulated and lies about 32 miles southeast of Canton.

GUAM

Capital: Agaña.

Governor: Ford Quint Elvidge.

1940 population: 22,290.

1950 population: 59,498.

1940-50 population change: +166.9%.

Area: 206 sq. mi.

Guam, the largest of the Mariana Islands, is independent of the trusteeship assigned to the U. S. in 1947. It was acquired by the U. S. from Spain in 1898 (occupied 1899) and was placed under Navy Department administration.

In World War II, Guam was seized by the Japanese on Dec. 11, 1941; but on July 27, 1944, it was once more under the U. S.

On Aug. 1, 1950, President Truman signed a bill which granted U. S. citizenship to the people of Guam and which established limited self-government. The civilian governor operates under supervision of the Department of the Interior.

The principal crops are maize, sweet potatoes, taro and cassava. Cattle, pigs and chickens are raised principally for family use.

Added stimulus to Guam's economy was given by the development in 1950 of a commercial port at Apra Harbor under the administration of the Guam government.

JOHNSTON ISLAND

This island was originally discovered by Captain Charles James Johnston of H.M.S. Cornwallis on Dec. 14, 1807. On July 27, 1858, it was claimed by Hawaii and became a possession of the U. S. The island is about 600 miles southwest of Hawaii and about one and a half miles long by half a mile wide.

KINGMAN REEF

This reef was discovered by Captain W. E. Kingman in Nov., 1853, and is the smallest land of U. S. sovereignty. It is 150 feet long by 120 feet wide at high tide. At low tide, two other islets of this atoll appear. It is approximately 1,000 miles south of Hawaii.

KURE (OCEAN) ISLAND. See HAWAII

MIDWAY

Midway, lying about 1,200 miles west-northwest of Hawaii, was discovered by Captain N. O. Brooks of the Hawaiian bark

Gambia on July 5, 1859, in the name of the U. S. It was formally declared a U. S. possession in 1867, and in 1903 Theodore Roosevelt made it a naval reservation. Sand and Eastern Islands, with 850 acres and 328 acres respectively, are its largest individual islands. In 1935 it became a regular stopover for commercial transpacific flights. Commercial activities ceased in 1950. During the past war it was the scene of the first decisive defeat suffered by the Japanese. The total group comprises an area of twenty-eight square miles.

PALMYRA. See HAWAII

VIRGIN ISLANDS OF THE UNITED STATES

Capital: Charlotte Amalie (on St. Thomas).

Governor: Archie A. Alexander.

1940 population: 24,889 (St. Croix, 12,902; St. Thomas, 11,265; St. John, 722).

1950 population: 26,665.

1940-50 population change: +7.1%.

Area: 133 sq. mi. (St. Croix, 82; St. Thomas, 32; St. John, 19).

The Virgin Islands, consisting of 9 main islands and some 75 islets, were discovered by Columbus in 1493. Since 1666, England has held 6 of the main islands; the other 3 (St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John), as well as about 50 of the islets, were eventually acquired by Denmark, which named them the Danish West Indies. In 1917, these islands were purchased by the U. S. from Denmark for $25 million.

Congress granted U. S. citizenship to Virgin Islanders in 1927; and, in 1931, administration was transferred from the Navy to the Department of the Interior. Universal suffrage was given in 1936 to all persons who could read and write the English language. The Governor is appointed by the President of the U. S.

About 70% of the population is Negro, and there is limited farming, fishing and cattle raising. Vegetables, citrus fruits and coconuts are raised, and the chief items of export are rum and bay rum.

WAKE ISLAND

Wake Island, about halfway between Midway and Guam, is actually the three islets of Wilkes, Peale and Wake. They were discovered by the British in 1796 and annexed by the U. S. in 1898. The entire area comprises four square miles. In 1938, Pan American Airways established a seaplane base and it has been used as a commercial base since then. On Dec. 8, 1941, it was attacked by the Japanese, who finally took possession on Dec. 23. It was surrendered by the Japanese on Sept. 4, 1945. On Oct. 15, 1950, it was the scene of a conference between President Truman and General MacArthur.

The population of the island in 1953 was 625.

U. S. Trusteeships

In 1885, Germany assumed a protectorate over the Marshall Islands; and, in 1899, she purchased the Northern Mariana and Caroline Islands from Spain. These islands were occupied by the Japanese in 1914 and were mandated to Japan by the League of Nations in 1919. On Apr. 2, 1947, the U. N. Security Council adopted and set up the Strategic Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands and assigned the Northern Marianas, Carolines and Marshalls to the U. S. The measure was approved by the President, with the agreement of Congress, on July 18, 1947. Administration was transferred from the Navy to the Department of the Interior on July 1, 1951. However, responsibility for the administration of Saipan and Tinian was retransferred to the Navy on Jan. 1, 1953.

The entire group comprises more than 2,000 islands, but the total land area is only 687 sq. mi., many of the islands being only tiny coral reefs. The Micronesians are the main cultural group, the inhabitants of the Northern Marianas being most advanced.

MARIANA ISLANDS

The Mariana Islands, east of the Philippines and south of Japan, include the islands of Guam, Rota, Saipan, Tinian, Pagan, Guguan, Agrihan and Aguijan. Guam, the largest, is independent of the trusteeship, having been acquired by the U. S. from Spain in 1898. (For information on Guam, see page 191.)

The soil is suitable for the raising of sugar cane, and a large sugar industry was built up in Japanese times.

CAROLINE ISLANDS

The Caroline Islands, east of the Philippines and south of the Marianas, include the Yap, Truk and Palau groups and the islands of Ponape and Kusaie, as well as many coral atolls.

The islands are composed chiefly of volcanic rock, and their peaks rise 2,000 to 3,000 feet above sea level. Chief products of the islands are coconuts and copra.

MARSHALL ISLANDS

The Marshall Islands, east of the Carolines, are divided into two chains: the western or Ralik group, including the atolls Jaluit, Kwajalein, Wotho, Bikini and Eniwetok; and the eastern or Ratak group, including the atolls Mill, Majuro, Maloelap, Wotje and Likiep.

The islands are of the coral-reef type and rise only a few feet above sea level. The chief crop is coconuts; exports include copra, tortoise shell, mother-of-pearl, etc.

Bikini and Eniwetok have been the scene of several atom-bomb tests.

Islands Under Provisional U. S. Administration

In accordance with the Japanese peace treaty signed Sept. 8, 1951, the U. S. may propose that the U. N. assign to it, as a trusteeship, the following former Japanese territory: the Ryukyu Islands south of 29° n. lat. (largest: Okinawa); the Bonin Islands (largest: Chichi Jima); the Volcano Islands (including Iwo Jima); Rosario Island; Parece Vela; and Marcus Island. It was also agreed in the treaty that, until such trusteeship is actually granted, the U. S. will administer the islands. As of July 1954, no action had been taken by the U. S. toward bringing about this trusteeship.

CITIES

We planned the INFORMATION PLEASE ALMANAC as a book of national scope and interest. We avoided emphasis on and identification with a single city or state, as has been characteristic of all almanacs heretofore. Therefore, in designing this section on cities of the United States, we have included as many as our space permitted. To obtain accurate and authoritative information we have gone to the city officials and they have not only furnished the statistics, but have checked the narratives in this section. We appreciate the co-operation of all these city officials.

One of the three largest paintings in the world is in Atlanta's Grant Park. The Cyclorama is 400 feet around, 50 feet high and weighs 18,000 pounds. It depicts one of the great moments of Atlanta's history—the Battle of Atlanta.

Atlanta was a strategic point for the Confederates in the Civil War—the chief base for recruiting and supplies in the far South, and the most important railway junction. The Battle of Atlanta, depicted in the Cyclorama, was fought on July 22, 1864, southeast of the city. General John B. Hood, commanding the Confederate forces, attacked General Sherman's army in an attempt to stop his progress through Georgia. The battle was inconclusive, the casualties terrific: an estimated 35,000. The two armies settled down to a siege which ended with the fall of Atlanta on Sept. 1.

General Sherman took possession of the city, rested his army until November, then burned Atlanta to the ground and started his devastating march to the sea.

Today Atlanta is one of the important financial and industrial centers of the Southeast. Its factories turn out 3,300 different commodities, including cotton goods, cottonseed oil, furniture and machinery. One of its best-known products is Coca-Cola, the formula for which was devised in an Atlanta home. It was first sold in 1886 at a little drugstore by the old town well. The present-day Coca-Cola plant in Atlanta, which is open to visitors, makes the syrup that supplies soda fountains and bottling plants throughout the Southeast.

Baltimore's fine harbor has made it the second port of the United States in foreign shipping tonnage. It has been an important port since the days of sailing vessels, and also a ship-building center. The Baltimore clipper was one of the best sailing ships of its day and was used extensively in trade.

One of the major industrial centers of the U. S., Baltimore is noted for the diversity of its factory output and for its prominence in many individual lines of manufacture. The city carries on a large wholesale and jobbing trade, is an important banking and financial community, and is a leader in the writing of casualty insurance and fidelity and surety bonds.

Baltimore is the home of the internationally famous Johns Hopkins Hospital and Medical School and the University of Maryland Hospital and Medical School, two of the nation's best known medical institutions. The University of Maryland Dental School (oldest dental school in the world, founded in 1840) also is located in Baltimore.

Among the historical landmarks in the state is Ft. McHenry, whose shelling by the British in 1814 inspired Francis Scott Key's "The Star-Spangled Banner." It has been restored to its appearance in the early nineteenth century with officers' kitchen and mess rooms containing replicas of the artillery pieces used in 1812. The E. Berkeley Bowle collection of firearms is there, together with furniture of the period and a flag exhibit. It is open to the public.

In addition to its pioneer history in shipping, Baltimore was the home of the pioneer railroad in the United States—the Baltimore and Ohio—and the first railroad passenger and freight station, erected in 1830.

Pioneer Southern aristocrats once lived in the heart of Birmingham, but the tide of commerce has swept over the city in the last half century. The beautiful residential districts and the stately homes have now moved to the hills south of the city. For Birmingham, a vigorous industrial city, named after England's great steel-making city, in less than a century has become the iron and steel capital of the South. Huge steel mills and blast furnaces utilize the three natural resources—coal, iron ore and limestone—that are needed for steel. All are produced in the vicinity.

Other products of Birmingham's industries are heavy machinery, cement, freight cars, stoves, textiles. From Red Mountain, just southeast of the city, one can look down on the spectacular sight of flaming blast furnaces that light up the city and Jones Valley. In Vulcan Park, on US 31, at the top of Red Mountain, stands the iron statue of Vulcan, god of fire, created by Giuseppe Moretti from pig iron produced in the Birmingham area. The statue stands 53 ft. high on a 120-ft. pedestal and weighs 60 tons.

No city in the U. S. is richer in historical associations than Boston, and no city has retained more of its original buildings as memorials to America's past.

Puritans from England settled at Boston in 1630, only ten years after the Pilgrims had landed at Plymouth in 1620. Fourteen years later, the pioneer Bostonians set aside the first public park in the U. S.—the Boston Common—for use as a "cow pasture and training field." The poet Emerson took his mother's cow there to graze. But certain people did not enjoy the Boston Common, because they were put in the stocks for profaning the Sabbath and other errant ways.

Fifteen years after the original settlement of Boston, the first free public school in America was opened in 1635. Today Boston and Cambridge (across the Charles River) not only have Harvard University, but also nine other prominent institutions of higher learning.

Following are some of the historic places still extant in Boston which recapitulate the city's great place in the annals of America:

(1) The Old State House, built in 1713 on the site of the first Town House (1658). In front of it occurred the Boston Massacre (1770) in which British troops fired on a mob of citizens, killing six and fanning the flames of revolt. A few years later the Declaration of Independence was proclaimed from the balcony.

(2) The Old South Meeting House, erected first in 1669 and rebuilt in 1729. Here Boston citizens gathered to decide the fate of the hated tea tax imposed by the British. The "Boston Tea Party" followed in 1773, and the British Parliament retaliated by closing the port. Two years later the British attempted to seize the colony's military stores at nearby Concord. In order to thwart the seizure, Paul Revere made his famous ride that opened the Revolutionary War.

(3) Paul Revere House is the oldest house in Boston, built about 1660 and bought by Paul Revere in 1770. It is now restored and furnished as it was in the days of Revere.

(4) The Old North Church (1723), which is the oldest church building in Boston. Signal lanterns were displayed in the steeple to warn Paul Revere of the approach of the British.

(5) Faneuil Hall, the "Cradle of Liberty," which was the scene of stirring mass meetings during the revolutionary movement, and which was used by British officers as a theater during the occupation of the city. It now has historical paintings and a military museum.

Today Boston is the largest market of the shoe and leather industries in the world and also the largest wool market and the greatest fishing port in the U. S.

The first ship to sail the Great Lakes—the Griffin—was built near the present site of Buffalo by La Salle in 1679. Buffalo was still a relatively small town in 1813 when the British captured it and set its homes and buildings afire. Two years later, the town was rebuilt, and it began to thrive with the coming of the Erie Canal.

Today, Buffalo is the leading inland port of the U. S. in terms of the value of its commerce. The Great Lakes steamers connect it with Chicago and Duluth; and ships of foreign nations frequently visit its harbor. In addition, it is the second largest railroad center in the U. S. Both by water and by rail, Buffalo is a geographical middleman between the Midwest and the East. Much of the grain of the Midwest moves through the city, which can store in its elevators 57 million bushels of grain, chiefly wheat. This flow of wheat has made Buffalo the leading flour-milling and feed-manufacturing city in the world. Over 14 million barrels of flour are milled each year.

Buffalo is the twelfth largest U. S. city in manufacturing according to the 1947 Census of Manufactures, and the industrial area is eleventh in value added by manufacture.

Adjoining Buffalo is Niagara Falls, which for generations has been the favorite scenic spot of honeymooners. The Niagara River is divided by Goat Island and plunges over the escarpment in two parts: the American Falls, 167 feet high, and the Canadian Falls, 158 feet high.

The first white men known to have visited Chicago were Joliet and Marquette in 1673. Fort Dearborn, a blockhouse and stockade, was built in 1804, but was evacuated in 1812, with more than half of its garrison massacred at what is now the foot of 18th Street. Not until 1830 was the town laid out. Forty-one years later it was destroyed by fire.

Chicago today is the greatest slaughtering and meat-packing center in the world. Visitors to the Union Stock Yards can go on tours through the Armour plant and the Swift plant. Chicago also is one of the major grain-trading centers. There is a visitors' gallery overlooking the trading floor in the Chicago Board of Trade building, which is 44 stories and has an observatory 524 feet above the street. The Merchandise Mart, which covers two square blocks, is the second largest office building in the world, exceeded only by the Pentagon in Washington. Tours are conducted daily in which visitors can see showrooms of leading manufacturers of home goods. The city's factories turn out agricultural implements, electrical machinery and railway cars, among many other products.

Chicago stretches along the shore of Lake Michigan for 29.7 miles, and has many beaches and lake shore parks. The Chicago Natural History Museum ranks among the world's foremost museums of anthropology, botany, zoology and geology.

Cincinnati began life in 1788 as a small settlement called Losantiville, perched on a plateau above the Ohio River. Its strategic location in the Western Territory led to the building of Fort Washington, the most ambitious military establishment in the territory. The community that grew up around the fort was named Cincinnati, after the Society of the Cincinnati, whose name stemmed from Roman times.

The first legislature of the Northwest Territory met here in 1799 and elected as its delegate to Congress William Henry Harrison, who later became President of the U. S. A much later President, William Howard Taft, was born in Cincinnati. The Taft Museum, which is open to the public every day, serves as a reminder of the family's role in the city's prominence. It contains an art collection donated by Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft.

Cincinnati's industrial concerns include the Proctor and Gamble Soap Company, the Crosley Division of Avco, General Electric, General Motors, the Ford Motor Company, the Cincinnati Milling Machine Company, the Gruen Watch Company, and the United States Playing Card Company, the largest establishment of its kind in the world.

* Metropolitan area. † Greater Cleveland.

The largest city in Ohio and seventh in the U. S., Cleveland was founded in 1796 by General Moses Cleaveland, who was the head surveyor of the Connecticut Land Company. This company had bought three million acres in what is now northern Ohio, paying 40 cents an acre. An acre in downtown Cleveland today would bring some $2,000,000.

Cleveland is an important Great Lakes shipping point and the site of iron and steel manufacturing. Other products include paints, varnishes, electrical appliances, chemicals, and automobile and airplane parts.

In addition to industry, Cleveland is interested in cultural developments. It has the only municipally owned and operated dramatic project in the country—Cain Park Theatre, in suburban Cleveland Heights, having its season in summer and early autumn. The Cleveland Orchestra, which is nationally known, gives informal pop concerts in the summer and a regular series of concerts in the winter.

In the Cleveland Cultural Gardens, a mile-long strip of park area, more than thirty nationality groups represented in Cleveland's population are creating gardens as memorials to peace.

The site of the present Columbus, which is near the center of Ohio, was selected for the state capital by the General Assembly in 1812. At that time the only settlement was a village, Franklinton, across the Scioto River on its west bank. The village had been founded in 1797 by Lucas Sullivan, a Virginia surveyor. It was merged with Columbus in 1834.

From those beginnings, Columbus has developed into a center of manufacturing, in some aspects of which it has become pre-eminent throughout the world. No city makes so much concrete-mixing machinery, and no city in the U. S. so much mining machinery. Columbus sends oil-well derricks and structural metal to nearly every country in the world, and it leads in the production of oil cloth, with nearly 81 miles a day. Among other products are shoes, railroad cars and airplanes.

Ohio State University is one of the famous cultural (and football) centers. Its museum houses the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society with a fine collection of historical items, as well as natural history and mineralogical specimens. Columbus has one of the leading zoos in the Middle West.

The Dallas Cotton Exchange handles about two million bales of cotton a year in normal times. The city produces more cotton gins than any other city in the world. Dallas is the nation's 3rd largest insurance center.

Dallas is also pre-eminent in the production of saddlery and harness and leather goods, and ranks third in the distribution of farm implements.

The Fair Park in East Dallas, is a $30-million permanent exposition plant, open as a city park. It is the home of the annual State Fair. Its Hall of State is a shrine to Texas heroes and contains two of the world's largest murals.

Dallas is also the home of the fourth largest aquarium in the U. S., the 78,500-capacity Cotton Bowl and many other cultural and amusement sites.

A traveler going west across the U. S. crosses the great plains and comes upon Denver lying just at the foot of the Rocky Mountains. The city was born in 1858 when gold was discovered in the sands of Cherry Creek.

Denver now is the cultural and transportation center of a vast Rocky Mountain region. Its important industries include meat packing plants, flour mills and factories making tires, saddlery and porcelain.

No other city in the country has such a magnificent system of mountain parks. The nearest is 13 miles from the city, and the farthest limit of the park system extends 50 miles to the west. The main circle drive winds up Lookout Mountain to the top where the rock tomb of Buffalo Bill is situated, along with the Cody Museum.

The most spectacular view of the region is obtainable from Mount Evans, 14,260 feet, which is reached by a scenic drive that is the highest automobile road in North America. Other drives through some of the grandest scenery of the Rockies are to Colorado Springs, to the south, and to Estes Park, which is the eastern entrance to Rocky Mountain National Park.

Des Moines sits at the heart of a prairie state, Iowa, which has more land under cultivation, in proportion to its area, than any other state. More corn is produced in Iowa than in any other area of equal size in the world—one-fifth of the corn crop of the U. S. More hogs are raised in Iowa than in any other state, and Iowa is second only to Texas in the number of cattle.

Des Moines, the home of 51 home insurance companies, and the location of more than 100 state, district or regional offices of other insurance companies, is known as the insurance center of the west. More than 5,000 people are engaged in the insurance business in Des Moines.

Des Moines manufacturing plants produce over 500 different products valued at more than $330,000,000 annually and sold throughout the world. These products include: cosmetics; chemicals; medicines; wearing apparel, including hosiery, gloves, caps and sports goods; tools; machinery; automobile accessories; tires; food products; agricultural equipment; airplane parts and many others.

Although Iowa as a whole is agricultural, Des Moines is surrounded by rich coal fields on both sides of the Des Moines River. The coal has contributed to the industrial development of the city, which has almost 300 manufacturing plants.

Detroit is the oldest city of any size west of the seaboard colonies, having been founded in 1701, more than a century before Chicago was founded. The French were the settlers, and they gave the city its name from their word meaning "strait." They referred to the 27-mile-long Detroit River which connects Lake Erie and Lake St. Clair. The river forms part of the international boundary, and marks the only point where Canada lies directly south of U. S. territory.

Because of its strategic location, Detroit was fought over by the French, the British and the Indians. During the Revolutionary War, it served as headquarters for the British forces in the Northwest. The first steam vessel, the Walk-in-the-Water, made its appearance on the Great Lakes in 1818, and Detroit was the western terminus for most of its voyages from Buffalo. Today hundreds of ships, carrying the immense commerce of the Great Lakes, call at Detroit and link it by water to all the important cities on the Great Lakes. Detroit ranks fourth in the U. S. as an exporting port.

No other city in the world equals Detroit as an automobile-manufacturing center. The plants include Ford, General Motors, Hudson, Packard, Chrysler and Kaiser-Frazer. Most plants are open for public tours. Apart from automobiles, Detroit manufactures a wide range of products—adding machines, pharmaceuticals, steel barrels, etc.

Belle Isle, a thousand-acre park, is located in the Detroit River.

* Hartford Exchange Area.

A Dutch trading post, established in 1623, was the beginning of Hartford. Thirteen years later, English colonists from Cambridge, Mass., started a permanent settlement and soon afterward made it the capital of the Colony of Connecticut.

The Dutch were expelled from Connecticut in 1654, but Hartford's troubles were not over. In 1687, the Governor of New York appeared at Hartford and demanded the Connecticut charter, on the grounds that he was Governor General of New England, too. The charter was hidden in a hollow oak tree for two years until King William III recognized it as valid.

By now, Hartford has become the greatest insurance center in the nation: 48 companies have their headquarters there, and their combined assets exceed $3 billion. In addition, Hartford is the home of the largest type-writer manufacturers in the world—Underwood and Royal. Its chief newspaper, The Hartford Courant, is the oldest in America; an earlier subscriber was George Washington.

Historical treasures are kept in the State Library and Supreme Court Building. Among them are a full-length portrait of Washington by Gilbert Stuart; the original charter signed by Charles II; the Brandegee collection of portraits of U. S. Justices; and the Joseph C. Mitchelson collection of coins, bills and commercial tokens.

Honolulu's early history was one of turbulence and conflict. One of the last areas on the globe to be discovered and exploited, Hawaii was subject to strong pressures from every world power, from American missionaries who arrived in 1820, and from the opportunism of whalers. These whalers built Honolulu originally, bringing trade, commerce and prosperity that led to expansion into the present basic industries of sugar and pineapple.

As early as 1814, Russia tried to move in, and the city's downtown shopping area now centers around Fort St., which takes its name from the bastion Russian soldiers built at the harbor's edge. The British flag was raised in 1843 and French forces occupied Honolulu in 1849. Each time control was given back to the independent kingdom without bloodshed. In 1898, a group of Americans completed a project attempted at intervals during the previous 65 years—annexation to the U. S.

Modern Honolulu is a center of Pacific communications and its airport, since the start of the Korean War, has ranked with the world's largest from the point of view of traffic. Oahu is the scene of important defense installations, famed Pearl Harbor and Schofield barracks, but its relation with the U. S. government is not one-sided. Hawaii taxpayers pay in excess of $100,000,000 a year in federal taxes, a factor that weighs strongly in their continued plea for statehood and a voice as to how this money shall be spent.

Sam Houston was the commander in chief of the Texas troops who fought a successful war of rebellion against domination by Mexico, which had been in possession of Texas. On April 21, 1836, Houston's men won a decisive victory in which the Mexican general, Santa Anna, was taken prisoner, and signed the treaty which launched the Republic of Texas. In September, a constitution was ratified, and Houston was elected President. The Texas Republic was recognized by the U. S. and by the major European powers.

The present city of Houston, which is the largest in Texas and the entire South, honors Sam Houston, who was president of the erstwhile republic. This was its first capital. Today great industrial establishments line Houston's ship channel. A leading export center, Houston leads all others in America in cotton exports. It is one of America's outstanding oil-producing and refining centers, and leads the world in the manufacture and distribution of oil-industry equipment. Among the new industries that are being developed in Houston are synthetic rubber and chemicals.

Houston is the second-largest port in the nation from the standpoint of tonnage handled.

Indianapolis is the second largest city in the U. S. which is not on navigable water.

Its size and extensive trade is based on the rich territory surrounding it. The cornfields of the region make Indianapolis the second corn market in the United States. There are also in the region large coal fields and deposits of building stone and marl.

The Indianapolis Motor Speedway, five miles from the center of the city, was built in 1909 as a proving ground for automobiles. Each Memorial Day a 500-mile race is held there. Various well-known improvements in automobiles are credited to the experience gained on the speedway. Among them are the rear-vision mirror, the balloon tire and ethyl gasoline.

The homes of two famous citizens of Indianapolis are preserved as memorials. One is the home of James Whitcomb Riley, which is preserved as it was when the famous Hoosier poet lived there. The other is the home Benjamin Harrison built in 1872. He lived there except for the period of his service as United States Senator, and as the twenty-third President of the United States. Much of the furniture is original.

In 1781, the Mexican Provincial Governor, Filipe de Neve, founded "El Pueblo de Nuestra Señora la Reina de Los Angeles"—meaning "The Village of Our Lady, the Queen of the Angels." The pueblo became the capital of a Mexican province, and it was the last place to surrender to the U. S. at the time of the American occupation in 1847.

Los Angeles now is the largest in population of any city in the West and is the fourth largest in the nation. Geographically, it extends more than 40 miles from the mountains to the sea; and in area, it is the world's largest city. The city's phenomenal growth has been brought about primarily by:

(1) The equable climate, which has attracted people and industry.

(2) Development of the citrus-fruit industry. Orange and other citrus groves extend to the east in a huge arc, reaching a radial depth of more than 30 miles at some points.

(3) Oil fields. Both to the north and to the southeast of Los Angeles, forests of oil derricks proclaim the discovery and exploitation of vast fields of underground wealth.

(4) Development of a man-made harbor. The port of Los Angeles is the world's largest fishing harbor and one of its most prominent ports in tonnage volume.

(5) The motion-picture industry. More than two-thirds of all motion pictures are produced in the metropolitan area.

(6) The aircraft industry has also centered in the Los Angeles area and now leads all other industries in the value of manufactured products.

The climate of the city is reflected in the facilities for open-air living. In Los Angeles, the drive-in cafe and drive-in theater were originated, and Angelenos enjoy sports the year-round and "Symphonies under the Stars" in famed Hollywood Bowl.

Exposition Park has a 7-acre sunken garden containing 15,000 rosebushes of 155 varieties. In the park is the Coliseum, in which the 1932 Olympic Games were held. It seats 101,671 persons and is the home field for the Los Angeles Rams and the U.S.C. and U.C.L.A. football teams.

Adjoining Los Angeles, within a few minutes by bus or car, is Pasadena, famous for its New Year's Day "Tournament of Roses." Also nearby is San Marino, home of the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery. Beaches within easy driving distance include Venice, Malibu, Hermosa, Redondo, Santa Monica and Long Beach.

One of the country's largest inland ports, Memphis handles more than 4 million bales of cotton a year, making it the biggest single cotton market in the world. It also ranks first in the world as a market for hardwood lumber.

The first settlers of Memphis were the Chickasaw Indians, who had a village named Chisca there on the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi River. Hernando de Soto, in 1541, is said to have had his first glimpse of the Mississippi from the site of Memphis; and in the next century, Joliet and Marquette stopped there to trade with the Indians. La Salle tried to claim the region for France in 1682 and built a fort.

Actually the city was not settled until 1819, after Tennessee had been taken into the Union in 1796. One of the three founders of Memphis was Andrew Jackson. During the Civil War, the federal forces won a gunboat battle on the river at Memphis, and General Sherman was enabled to take the city. Confederate Park today contains ramparts from which Confederate soldiers defended the city against the federal gunboats.

For the variety and quantity of its sports events, Miami can lay claim to being the most athletic city in the nation. In the matter of fishing, for example, there is a winter tournament that begins about the middle of January and runs through April; then comes a summer tournament that runs from July to early September. There are jai-alai games nightly from Christmas into April. There is greyhound racing on three tracks from December into March.

In case these events are not enough for the thousands of tourists who flock to Miami, there is the Orange Bowl football game on New Year's Day—followed by an open golf tournament—followed by a dinghy regatta—followed by a general sailing regatta in March. And there are horse races at Hialeah Park and Tropical Park from mid-December until April. Hialeah is noted as one of the most beautiful horse-racing tracks in the world, with its cocoanut palms, its tropical gardens, and the largest flock of flamingoes in Florida.

Miami is the southernmost large city on the U. S. mainland. To the south, a unique overseas highway goes down the Florida Keys to Key West, connecting the islands by bridges.

* Milwaukee Metropolitan Area.

French missionaries visited the site of Milwaukee in the seventeenth century, but it was not until 1795 that Jacques Vieau established a trading post there. The first permanent white settler, Vieau's son-in-law, Solomon Juneau, made his home there in 1818.

Milwaukee is one of the great industrial centers of the country, producing heavy machinery, electrical equipment, chemicals, food and leather products, etc. It is famous for its breweries, which are open to visitors by appointment. The city-owned harbor is one of the largest and best-equipped on the Great Lakes.

A Wisconsin State Fair, held annually in August, includes a state art exhibit and automobile and horse racing. The Milwaukee Auditorium is one of the largest exposition buildings in the country, with 8 separate halls under one roof, the smallest seating 300 and the largest 7,200. A new addition provides the most modern arena in America. It has a seating capacity of 12,500 and is equipped with an ice floor for hockey, skating and ice shows.

Of particular note is the Milwaukee County park system with its botanical gardens, zoo and recreational facilities. This is also true of its cultural institutions, including the museum, public library and educational institutions.

Lieutenant Zebulon Pike made a treaty with the Sioux Indians in 1805-06 by which they ceded to the whites land including the Falls of St. Anthony and the site of Minneapolis. Fort Snelling was built in 1819-20, and in 1823 the government built a lumber and flour mill. Today Minneapolis is one of the outstanding flour-milling centers. Serving a vast agricultural region, the city is the largest distributing center for tractors and farm implements.

Not far from the city on the Mississippi River is U. S. Lock and Dam No. 1, a few miles above which is the head of navigation. From there to St. Louis, a river stretch of 659 miles, 26 dams insure a 9-foot channel for navigation. Minnehaha Park along the Mississippi contains Minnehaha Falls, made famous by Longfellow's poem, The Song of Hiawatha. Above the falls is a statue of Hiawatha and Minnehaha.

Minneapolis has 22 lakes within its park system, offering fishing, bathing and sail-boating in the summer, iceboating and skating in the winter. Twelve miles west of the city is Lake Minnetonka, which has 110 miles of shore line. Minneapolis is also the gateway city to the "Land of the 10,000 Lakes."

Across the Mississippi is Minneapolis' "twin city," St. Paul.

New Bedford is a seaport city. Its location was basic to its present importance as a center of important manufacturing plants, marine yards and a large fishing industry; and to its past leadership as the world's greatest whaling port, memorialized by its Whaling Museum and the venerable Seamen's Bethel described by Herman Melville in Moby Dick.

Northeast Airlines service links New Bedford's 1st-class Municipal Airport directly with Boston and New York. Steamships ply from New Bedford to Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket. The city is also central to Cape Cod, Plymouth, Newport, Rhode Island and other tourist and vacation objectives, and adjoins such well-known yachting centers as Marion, Mattapoisett and South Dartmouth.

New Bedford textile plants include the nationally known Wamsutta and Hathaway Mills. A Revere and Brass plant, Acushnet Process Co. (maker of championship golf balls and other rubber products), Continental Screw, Morse Twist Drill, Aerovox Corp. and Cornell Dubilier Electric Corp. are other large-scale industries.

One of the few cities of the nation that have been under three flags, New Orleans has belonged to Spain, France and the U. S. The French founded it in 1718 and named it in honor of the Duke of Orleans.

In 1762, France ceded the city and the territory to Spain. In 1800, the territory was returned to France, but government authorities did not take over until 1803, only 20 days before the region became part of the U. S. in the Louisiana Purchase.

As a memento of the old days, New Orleans has a French Quarter, or Vieux Carré, which has fascination for tourists and for gourmets. The narrow streets are overhung with the iron-trellised balconies of quaint old dwellings and shops. The restaurants are celebrated for their good food.

Six miles below the city is Chalmette National Historical Park, which marks the battlefield on which Andrew Jackson defended New Orleans against the British in 1815. The British suffered 1,971 casualties, while the Americans suffered only 13. It was the last battle fought between the U. S. and Great Britain.

One of the city's historic buildings is the Cabildo, dating back to 1795, which was the headquarters of the Spanish governor. It later was the scene of the transfer of Louisiana from France to the U. S.

The most spectacular and gayest festival in the U. S. is held in New Orleans—the Mardi Gras, which involves a week of carnival and reaches its climax on Shrove Tuesday, the day before the beginning of Lent. On the more serious side, the city is one of the great ports of the U. S., second only to New York in dollar volume of cargo handled.

In 1609, Henry Hudson, who worked for the Dutch East India Company, sailed up the river that now bears his name and went as far as Albany. Five years later, a permanent settlement was established at what is now New York, but it was originally called New Amsterdam by the Dutch governors. One of them, Peter Minuit, was said to have bought Manhattan Island from the Indians for $24 worth of beads, buttons and trinkets. In 1664, Great Britain's Duke of York sent a fleet which quietly seized the settlement from the Dutch, without bloodshed, and rechristened the colony in honor of the Duke.

Control of New York passed to the young U. S. at the end of the Revolutionary War, and George Washington was inaugurated President in New York's old City Hall. Congress met in New York from 1785 to 1790.

Today New York is the most populous and wealthy city in the U. S. Much of this growth and prosperity is due to New York Harbor, which is one of the finest, and perhaps the busiest, in the world. The port clears more than 5,000 vessels a year and ships almost half of the entire trade of the U. S. For the visitor, perhaps the best view of New York Harbor is from the top of the Statue of Liberty, which is reached by ferry boats running hourly from the Battery, the southern tip of Manhattan. The statue, presented to the U. S. by France in 1885, is the tallest of modern times—152 feet high on a pedestal 151 feet high. An elevator runs to the balcony level, and a spiral stairway leads to the observation platform. Another way to see the harbor and skyline is to take the boat trip around Manhattan.

In lower Manhattan, not far from the Battery, is Wall Street, the financial center of the nation. It was so named from the wall constructed nearly 300 years ago by the Dutch burghers to protect themselves against Indian raids. The New York Stock Exchange admits visitors. By way of contrast, New York's Chinatown, within walking distance of Wall Street to the north, has intriguing things to buy and restaurants with delicious things to eat.

Midtown Manhattan has Broadway, otherwise known as the "Main Stem," or "The Great White Way." More stage plays and motion-picture theaters are crowded in that area than in any comparable area.

Among the most noteworthy buildings, or clusters of buildings, in Midtown Manhattan are:

(1) The Empire State Building, the world's tallest structure, 1,250 feet high. Some half million tourists visit the building every year.

(2) Rockefeller Center—also known as Radio City. It occupies 12 acres and includes 15 buildings. The studios of the National Broadcasting Company can be inspected in tours that start every twenty minutes. The RCA Building has an observation roof.

(3) United Nations Headquarters, which is located on the East River at 42nd Street.

The many museums of New York City are listed in a separate section (See Museums in the index). The most celebrated is the Metropolitan Museum of Art, one of the world's most famous. On the outskirts of New York City are two of the largest airfields in the world: La Guardia Field and Idlewild. La Guardia Field covers an area of 558 acres, and has observation decks from which one can watch the arrival and departure of domestic and overseas planes.

More than two thousand oil wells are located within the limits of Oklahoma City or close by, some of them more than a mile deep.

Oklahoma City sprang into being almost overnight. In 1889, the government threw open this territory for settlement, and there was a classic rush across the line to stake claims. Within a short time, Oklahoma City was a bustling town of 10,000.

The city now ranks as one of the dozen primary livestock markets in the country. Packing plants and flour mills are among the 600 manufacturing concerns. The city is also an important aviation center, with Tinker Field as an Air-Force materiel depot. There are six privately owned airports in the area surrounding Oklahoma City.

Philadelphia, the "City of Brotherly Love," was settled in 1681 by Capt. William Markham, who, with a small band of colonists, was sent out by William Penn. Penn arrived the following year.

In the period before the American Revolution, the city out-stripped all others in the colonies in education, arts, science, industry and commerce. In 1774-76, the First and Second Continental Congresses met in Philadelphia; and from 1781-83, the city was the capital of the U. S. under the Articles of Confederation. In 1790, it became the nation's capital under the Constitution and remained so until the seat of the federal government moved to Washington in 1800.

Today, Philadelphia is the third largest city in the U. S. and one of the great industrial cities of the world, turning out such products as textiles, steel, radios, ships, street cars and many others. Over half the surgical instruments manufactured in the U. S. come from Philadelphia; and the Baldwin Locomotive Plant, largest in the world, is at Eddystone, on the outskirts of the city.

Philadelphia abounds in landmarks of early American history, including Independence Hall, where the famous Liberty Bell is located, and adjacent Congress Hall, where George Washington was inaugurated for his second term.

The City Hall is 547 feet in height and is surmounted by a 37-foot bronze statue of William Penn created by Alexander Milne Calder. The building is the tallest in the city.

Philadelphia's U. S. Mint, established in 1792, was the first in the country.

No other city in the world produces so much iron and steel as does Pittsburgh. The territory within 30 miles of the courthouse produces one-fifth of the nation's pig iron, one-fourth of its steel and one-fifth of its glass. No other city in the world produces so much aluminum. As though this were not enough, Pittsburgh has the largest cork-manufacturing plant and the largest pickling and preserving business in the world.

A detachment of troops from Virginia put a fort on the site of present Pittsburgh in 1754, considering it a strategic spot. Following the original Virginia settlers, the French seized the spot; and in 1758, the British took it away from the French. The British built a new fort and named it after William Pitt.

Pittsburgh's largest park is Schenley Park, of 422 acres, which is the home of Carnegie Tech and Phipps Conservatory. The Department of Fine Arts of the Carnegie Institute holds a yearly international exhibition of paintings. The Carnegie Museum contains some 5 million objects pertaining to natural sciences, ethnology and the useful arts.

Two flower shows are held annually at Phipps Conservatory and are considered the finest display of their kind in the U. S.

The nearest U. S. port to Europe, Portland has looked to the sea throughout its history. In colonial days, a thriving shipping business was conducted with the West Indies. The sea also brought trouble, for the British fleet destroyed Portland in 1775. Enemy attack was nothing new, however, for the settlement previously had been sacked by the Indians and again by the French and Indians.

The sea now is a source of pleasure as well as profit. Portland lies on a peninsula at the head of Casco Bay, which has 132 islands. The larger ones are reached by steamer. A magnificent view of the islands, the sea, and the shore of Falmouth is obtained from Portland's Eastern Promenade. The Western Promenade affords an inland panorama to the high peaks of the White Mountains.

Portland is the leading wholesale distributing point for northern New England, and has over 140 manufacturing establishments.

The most famous house in the city is the Wadsworth-Longfellow House (open to the public in the summer) with exhibits of furniture and personal property of the Longfellow and Wadsworth families. In the L. D. M. Sweat Memorial Art Museum, fine and applied arts are on display.

Portland has a background of snow-capped mountains to the north and east. Mount Hood rises 11,245 feet above sea level, and is visible for great distances throughout Oregon. Because of the Japan Current, however, Portland itself has a mild climate.

So equable is the city's weather that climbing roses run rampant over fences and houses and sometimes even telephone poles. Portland holds a famous Rose Festival each year in June. Reflecting the diverse interests of the region, there takes place in October the Pacific International Livestock Exposition, including a horse show and rodeo.

Lewis and Clark sailed past the site of Portland in 1805, on an expedition across the continent for which Congress had appropriated $2,500. They had started up the Missouri in the spring of 1804, and they reached the mouth of the Columbia River in canoes on Nov. 11, 1805. They built a fort near the present site of Astoria. From there up to Portland, the Columbia is wide and placid. At Portland the Willamette flows into the Columbia, which from that point east begins to flow through higher and higher bluffs up to the famous Columbia River Gorge. A dozen beautiful waterfalls drop hundreds of feet over the solid rock walls on the Oregon side of the gorge.

The great new aluminum plants and shipyards in the Portland area are among a large group of major industries founded in the Northwest following the completion of the great Bonneville Dam on the Columbia River.

Roger Williams was a religious rebel, and he was banished from Massachusetts. In 1636 he founded Providence, which he so named in gratitude "for God's merciful providence in my distress." Two years later he organized the First Baptist Church "for the worship of God and to hold college commencements in." Brown University to this day holds its commencements in this church.

Roger Williams still is remembered in Providence by a monument overlooking his grave, and by 452-acre Roger Williams Park.

Since his time, Providence has become the second largest city in New England. Its early rise was due to its shipping trade, which included slaves, rum and molasses from the West Indies. Today it distributes oil, coal and lumber. Apart from sea trade, Providence has a thriving textile industry manufacturing woollens, worsteds and cottons. The city is also a leading center for jewelry, machine tools, precision instruments and rubber goods.

In 1609, Capt. John Smith attempted to establish, near the present site of Richmond, a settlement which he called None Such. He was unsuccessful, however, and the land was later bought from Chief Powhatan for the Virginia Company. Richmond was laid out in 1737, became the state capital in 1779.

Today Richmond is one of the leading tobacco markets of the country. It has factories producing not only cigars and cigarettes but also chewing tobacco and snuff. Tobacco is its main industry.

Richmond had two periods of especial historical renown. One was in 1775 when the Virginia Convention met in St. John's Church to discuss the Revolution. George Washington and Thomas Jefferson attended. Patrick Henry made his famous speech.

Again, during the Civil War, Richmond came into the historical spotlight. The city was the capital of the Confederacy. One after another, the Northern generals—McClellan, Burnside, Hooker and Meade—failed to take Richmond. Grant finally succeeded, although not by storming the city itself. His siege of Petersburg ended in the downfall of the Confederacy. When Richmond was evacuated, the Confederate Congress ordered the burning of warehouses containing tobacco and cotton; and the principal business section of the city was destroyed by the spreading flames.

Among the historical buildings which remain in Richmond are the Capitol, which was designed by Thomas Jefferson after the Maison Carrée, an ancient Roman temple at Nîmes, France. In the rotunda is the famous statue of George Washington made from life in 1785 by Jean Antoine Houdon.

Rochester is the mecca of camera enthusiasts. Here is the home of the Eastman Kodak Company, and here is manufactured 90 per cent of the nation's motion-picture film. Tours of the Kodak plants are conducted daily. And at the George Eastman House is a photographic museum in which are exhibitions and demonstrations of picture processes of interest to both amateur and professional photographers.

Rochester also is one of the world's leading centers for the manufacture of optical goods and surgical instruments. The Bausch and Lomb Optical Company and the Taylor Instrument Company are here.

In addition to its factories, Rochester prides itself on its flowers. In the botanical gardens of Highland Park is the world's largest collection of lilacs—483 varieties. When they bloom, about the middle of May, a Lilac Week celebration is held.

The first permanent white settlement on the site of Rochester was made in 1812.

St. Louis is one of the nation's major industrial centers and its second largest transportation center. The city is served by 18 railroad trunk lines, 5 major airlines, a vast network of highways, and the growing inland waterways. It is also one of the nation's foremost food-distributing centers.

St. Louis is important in the production of shoes, stoves, chemicals, textiles, steel cars, machinery, automobile parts and accessories, building materials, corrugated paper boxes and containers, electrical appliances, millwork, steel, leather goods, meat, soap, paint and graniteware. It is the leading beer-producing center of the U. S.

The fame of St. Louis' Zoological Gardens, its Municipal Opera, its 85-piece Symphony Orchestra and its Missouri Botanical Gardens has spread throughout the world.

In Forest Park is the City Art Museum, ranked as one of the 4 best art collections in the U. S. The Jefferson Memorial, also in Forest Park, contains the famed Lindbergh Trophy—a priceless collection of gifts given to the aviator to commemorate his conquest of the Atlantic.

The Mormons, headed by Brigham Young, founded Salt Lake City in July, 1847, feeling that the soil was good, although dry. They dammed a creek across the site of the present city, and thereby introduced one of the first irrigation projects in America. Other Mormon bands came in, and by 1852 the colony numbered some 15,000.

Troops had to be kept in Salt Lake City for several years because of disagreements between non-Mormons and Mormons. The practice of polygamy was renounced by the Mormon Church in 1890, and Utah received statehood six years later.

Some of Salt Lake City's most interesting edifices are those occupied or inspired by Brigham Young and his family. The Mormon Temple was 40 years in the building (1853-1893), and none but Mormons are permitted to enter. The Mormon Tabernacle, with its great domed roof, seats 8,000 people. The acoustical properties of the building are reputed to be so remarkable that a pin dropped at the organ may be heard from the farthest seat. The organ contains more than 10,500 pipes, and its programs have been heard over nation-wide radio networks. The public is admitted at specified hours.

Sixteen miles from Salt Lake City is Great Salt Lake, an inland sea.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

A narrow arm of land embraces San Francisco Bay, the largest land-locked harbor in the world, and shelters it from the Pacific Ocean. On this arm of land is San Francisco, a city on hills, almost surrounded by water.

In 1776, the Spaniards established a presidio, or military post, on the end of the fabulously beautiful peninsula. In the following year, a little town called Yerba Buena ("Good Herb," because mint grew in abundance) was founded—the origin of the present San Francisco.

When gold was discovered in California in 1848, the city quickly jumped to 10,000, and it experienced turbulent years until order was established by Vigilance Committees, first in 1851 and again in 1856. Then followed a period of more orderly growth, and the foundations of the great commerce and industry of today were laid.

San Francisco is the outstanding seaport on the Pacific Coast. Its 43 piers and 17 miles of berthing space handle more than 30 million tons of freight a year. It was one of the great shipbuilding centers in World War I, at Mare Island, and again in World War II, in the Henry Kaiser mass-production yards. It remains one of the country's major naval-training centers.

Two of the world's most famous bridges are at San Francisco. One is the Golden Gate Bridge, spanning the strait which is the entrance to the bay. It is the largest single-span suspension bridge in the world, with an over-all length of 8,940 feet. The other bridge connects San Francisco with Oakland across the bay to the east. It is  $8\frac{1}{4}$  miles long, including approaches, and  $4\frac{1}{2}$  miles of it is over navigable water.

San Francisco has the only municipally owned opera house in America. It is one of the buildings in the Civic Center, which occupies more than three square blocks. In 1945, the Civic Center was the scene of the international conference that drew up the Charter for the U. N. and was also the site of the signing of the Japanese peace treaty.

The largest Chinatown outside the Orient occupies twelve square blocks of San Francisco and has a population of 16,000.

*General; not including city-owned light, water, transit systems.

Seattle is the home of the world-famous Boeing Airplanes, as well as many other manufacturers supplying specialized equipment for logging, fishing, shipbuilding, mining and other industries of great regional importance.

Puget Sound claims the title "Small Boat Capital of the World," having the highest per capita ownership of small craft. The Lake Washington Floating Bridge carries an average of 30,000 vehicles a day to the suburban areas east of the lake and to the short route to Snoqualmie Pass in the Cascade Mountains and to eastern Washington.

The annual Gold Cup unlimited hydroplane races were held on Lake Washington in 1951, 1952 and 1953.

The University of Washington, with an enrollment of about 15,000, is the largest educational establishment in the state.

Syracuse, the Hub of the Empire State, is 47th in rank among U. S. cities, with 1950 population of 220,583. It is the county seat of Onondaga County, population 340,719.

Settlers were attracted to Onondaga after the Revolution by opening of the salt springs there under state control. Pere Simon LeMoyné, French Jesuit, guided by Indians, discovered the salt in 1654. This was the seat of the Iroquois Confederacy, with the Long House kept at Onondaga.

The old Salt City, Syracuse, developed from a union of the village Syracuse with Salina, on the lake. The city was chartered in 1848. The site was opened in 1804 and the village chartered in 1825, the year of the opening of the old Erie Canal.

Industry employing 60,000 is diversified. Electronics, electrical machinery, air conditioning equipment, tool steel, typewriters, washing machines, chinaware, laundry and dry-cleaning equipment, auto gears, transmission and differentials, automotive accessories, components and parts, and the chemical industry employ respectively several thousand to 10,000 each.

The seat of the New York State Fair, the city is also the seat of Syracuse University with the New York State College of Medicine and State College of Forestry, and LeMoyné College, Jesuit liberal arts college. The National Ceramic Show is conducted in the city museum. The Intercollegiate Regatta is rowed on Onondaga Lake. The municipal airport with runways up to 8,500 feet has the second highest passenger and freight traffic in the state, outside the metropolis.

Forest Resources of the United States

Source: U. S. Forest Service.

Nearly 1/3 of the U. S. is forest land including 800 different kinds of trees. Commercial areas include second-growth saw timber, pole-size timber, and seedling and sapling forest. Almost all the old-growth forest is in the West. Noncommercial areas include alpine, semidesert, chaparral and other forest types of low timber productivity, though much of it is important for watershed protection.

U. S. Forest Land in Acres, 1950

Old growth	44,307,000
Second-growth saw timber	154,597,000
Pole timber	104,799,000
Seedling and sapling area	81,076,000
Poorly stocked and denuded area	74,762,000
Total, commercial forest land	459,541,000
Noncommercial forest	162,525,000
Total, all forest land	622,066,000

* Figures are lengths of general outline of seacoast. Measurements made with unit measure of 30 minutes of latitude on charts as near scale of 1:1,200,000 as possible. Shoreline of bays and sounds is included to point where they narrow to width of unit measure, and distance across at such point is included. † Measurements made with unit measure of 3 statute miles on charts of 1:200,000 and 1:400,000 scale when available. Shoreline of bays, sounds and other bodies of water included to point where they narrow to width of 3 statute miles, and distance across at such point is included. ‡ Figures obtained in 1939-40 with recording measure on largest scale maps and charts then available. Shoreline of bays, sounds and other bodies of water included to head of tide-water, or to point where they narrow to width of 100 feet.

* Number of plural births per 1,000 total cases. † All single births and cases of twin births in which only 1 child was born alive are based on a 50% sample; all other cases of plural births are based on a total count. NOTE: "Cases" refers to confinements resulting in either single or plural issue. Only those cases in which one child was born alive are included.

Population for Urban and Rural Groups, 1930-50

Source: U. S. Bureau of the Census.

Under the urban definition established for the 1950 Census, the urban population comprised all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more, incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns (except in New England, New York and Wisconsin, where "towns" are minor civil divisions of counties and are not necessarily densely settled centers), and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more, outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprised all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

The Continental Divide

The Continental Divide is a ridge of high ground which runs irregularly north and south through the Rocky Mountains and separates eastward-flowing from westward-flowing streams. The waters which flow eastward empty into the Atlantic Ocean, chiefly by way of the Gulf of Mexico; those which flow westward empty into the Pacific.

A Brief Summary of Naturalization Requirements and Procedure

Source: Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The right of a person to become a naturalized citizen of the U. S. shall not be abridged because of race or sex or because that person is married.

Generally, an applicant for naturalization must have been lawfully admitted to the U. S. for permanent residence. Further, he must have resided continuously in the U. S.: for an unmarried applicant, 5 years; for husbands and wives of citizens of the U. S., 3 years—provided that the applicant has been living in marital union with the citizen spouse, who has been a U. S. citizen during all such period. The last 6 months of the required period of residence must be in the state where the application is made. The applicant must have been physically present in the U. S. for periods totaling at least half of the required residence.

An applicant must demonstrate an understanding of the English language, including an ability to read, write and speak words in ordinary usage in English—unless physically unable to do so, or unless, on Dec. 24, 1952, he was over 50 years of age and had been living in the U. S. at least 20 years.

An alien 18 years of age or over may file a petition for naturalization. Before doing so, however, he must make preliminary application on Form N-400. Thereafter, he is notified by the Immigration and Naturalization Service when and where to appear with his witnesses for preliminary interrogation, and to file petition for naturalization. The applicant and his witnesses are questioned by an examiner, and if he meets the requirements, the examiner assists him in filing the petition. Generally, the petition must be filed with the clerk of the court in the jurisdiction in which the petitioner resides. The fee is $10. After the filing of the petition, and after further examination, the petitioner is notified by mail when to appear in the naturalization court for final hearing.

If the petition is granted, the petitioner must renounce allegiance to any foreign state of which he is a citizen or subject, and swear allegiance to the U. S. If the Immigration and Naturalization Service recommends that the petition for naturalization be denied, the petitioner may request the court to review his case.

Since Dec. 24, 1952, it has not been necessary to file a declaration of intention (which is commonly referred to as a first paper) before filing a petition for naturalization. However, an alien, over 18 years of age and residing in the U. S. pursuant to a lawful admission for permanent residence, may file a declaration of intention. Thus, an alien who may not be ready for naturalization because, for example, he has not completed the required period of residence, may show his intention of becoming a citizen. Application for declaration of intention must be made on Form N-300; and after the application has been approved by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the applicant is notified to appear before a clerk of the court to make and file a declaration of intention. The fee is $5.

The above information applies to naturalization in general. There are also several special classes of naturalization, such as that of children, former citizens of the U. S., etc., for which the requirements and procedure may vary. Additional information is available at all offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

One Accidental Death Every 6 Minutes in 1953

Source: National Safety Council.

The nation's 1953 accident totals can be figured at the following approximate rates:

Class of accident	One every
All accidents	Deaths 6 minutes Injuries 3 seconds
Motor-vehicle	Deaths 14 minutes Injuries 23 seconds
Occupational	Deaths 35 minutes Injuries 16 seconds
Workers off-job	Deaths 16 minutes Injuries 13 seconds
Home	Deaths 18 minutes Injuries 7 seconds
Public non-motor-vehicle	Deaths 33 minutes Injuries 16 seconds

Death Rates for Selected Causes, 1910-50

(Exclusive of fetal deaths. Rates are per the 100,000 estimated midyear population. Figures for 1950 are not comparable to those for earlier years because of the revision made in 1948 of the classification of causes of death.)

* Includes births to women 50 years of age and over; in 1951, there were 174 such births. † Includes births for which age of mother was not stated. ‡ Based on births per 1,000 female population in each age group, enumerated as of Apr. 1 for 1940 and 1950, and estimated as of July 1 for 1941-49 and 1951. Rates for "Total" computed by relating total births, regardless of age of mother, to female population aged 15-44 years. ‡ Based on a 50% sample.

* Includes burns by fire and deaths directly resulting from conflagration, regardless of nature of injury; also burns by chemicals, steam, or any other hot substance in 1948 (5th Revision) and earlier years. † The most recent revision of classification of deaths by cause differs so greatly from earlier classifications that two figures must be shown for 1948. That of the 5th Revision is comparable with figures for earlier years; that of the 6th Revision, with figures for later years.

* The proportion of deaths allocated to fixed-object collisions and noncollision accidents is different from that reported by most states. State reports generally indicate that many accidents involving no collision on the roadway are classified as fixed-object collisions because the motor vehicle collides with an object after leaving the roadway.

† The totals do not quite equal the sum of the various types because the estimates were generally made only to the nearest 10 deaths, and to the nearest 50 deaths for certain types.

<sup>1</sup> Method shall be that used by state in which sentence is imposed. If state does not have death penalty, Federal judge shall prescribe method for carrying out death sentence. <sup>2</sup> Law passed in 1951 provides that death be inflicted by electrocution until lethal-gas chamber is available. NOTE: Method shown with each state is maximum penalty for murder and certain other crimes. In most states having capital punishment, jury or judge can specify whether sentence shall be death or life imprisonment.

Distribution of Arrests by Sex, 1953

<sup>1</sup> A—reasonable and proper; B—lower speed at night and on old highways; C—55 mph on 4-lane highways; D—50 mph pf at night; E—55 mph on dual-lane highways; F—50 mph at night; G—60 mph where marked; H—45 mph at night; I—55 mph at night; J—parkways to 55 mph where marked; K—unless otherwise marked; pf—prima facie limit. <sup>2</sup> Applies to nonresidents. The term "reciprocal" means that the state will extend to a nonresident the identical privileges granted by his home state to nonresident motorists. In some states, visitors must register within a specified time. In most states, persons who intend to reside permanently must buy new plates and secure new driving license at once, or within a limited time. Acquisition of employment or placing children in public school is often considered intention to reside permanently. <sup>3</sup> Registry tax on first registration in state. <sup>4</sup> Visitor's permit required after 10 days. <sup>5</sup> Daytime; 55 mph at night. <sup>6</sup> Use tax on new cars, first registration of used cars. <sup>7</sup> Three months before current registration expires. <sup>8</sup> Bill of sale must be filed. <sup>9</sup> Excise tax. <sup>10</sup> Public liability insurance required after 30 days. <sup>11</sup> State has compulsory insurance. <sup>12</sup> Visitors must register immediately. <sup>13</sup> Until home-state license plates expire. <sup>14</sup> Extension granted. <sup>15</sup> Nebraska operator's license required in 30 days. <sup>16</sup> $15 maximum. <sup>17</sup> Visitors must register within 15 days. <sup>18</sup> For automobiles; busses 55 mph; large trucks 45. <sup>19</sup> Called 1952 "Security-Responsibility Law." <sup>20</sup> As of July 1, 1953, nonresident car must bear valid registration plates of place of residence of owner. <sup>21</sup> 1953 law makes it traffic offense to drive unreasonably slowly. <sup>22</sup> As to commercial trucks, by agreement with other states. <sup>23</sup> Unless otherwise posted; trucks and busses 45 mph. <sup>24</sup> Passenger vehicles; trucks 45 mph.

Patents

A patent, in the most general sense, is a document issued by a government, conferring some special right or privilege. The term is now restricted mainly to patents for inventions; occasionally, land patents.

The grant of a patent for an invention gives the inventor the privilege, for a limited period of time, of excluding others from practicing a certain art or from making, using, or selling a certain article. However, it does not give him the right to make, use, or sell his own invention if it is an improvement on some unexpired patent whose claims are infringed thereby.

In the U. S., the law provides that a patent may be granted, for a term of 17 years, to any person who has invented or discovered any new and useful art, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, as well as any new and useful improvements thereof. A patent may also be granted to a person who has invented or discovered and asexually reproduced a new and distinct variety of plant (other than a tuber-propagated one) or has invented a new, original, and ornamental design for an article of manufacture.

A patent is granted only upon a regularly filed application, complete in all respects; upon payment of the fees; and upon determination that the disclosure is complete and that the invention is new and useful. The disclosure must be of such nature as to enable others to reproduce the invention.

A complete application, which must be addressed to the Commissioner of Patents, Washington, D. C., consists of a petition, specification and claims, oath, drawing (whenever the nature of the case admits of it), and a filing fee of $30 for cases having 20 claims or less. An additional fee of $1 per claim is required for cases having more than 20 claims. The filing fee is not returned to the applicant if the patent is refused. If the patent is allowed, another fee of $30 (and $1 each for claims allowed in excess of 20) is required before the patent is issued. The fees for design patents vary.

Applications are considered strictly in the order in which they are received. Patents are not granted for printed matter, for methods of doing business, or for devices for which claims contrary to natural laws are made. Applications for a perpetual-motion machine have been made from time to time, but until a working model is presented that actually fulfills the claim, no patent will be issued.

Trade-Marks

A trade-mark may be defined as a word, letter, device, or symbol, as well as some combination of these, which is used in connection with merchandise and which points distinctly to the origin or ownership of the article to which it is applied.

Certificates of registration of trade-marks are issued under the seal of the Patent Office and may be registered by the owner if he is engaged in interstate or foreign commerce, since any federal jurisdiction over trade-marks arises under the commerce clause of the Constitution. Trade-marks may be registered by foreign owners who comply with our law, as well as by citizens of foreign countries with which the U. S. has treaties relating to trade-marks. American citizens may register trade-marks in foreign countries by complying with the laws of those countries. The right to registration and protection of trade-marks in many foreign countries is guaranteed by treaties.

General jurisdiction in trade-mark cases is given to the federal courts. Decisions of examiners on applications or oppositions are subject to appeal to the Commissioner of Patents, and from him to the U. S. Court of Customs and Patent Appeals. Before adopting a trade-mark, a person should make a search of prior marks in order to avoid infringing unwittingly upon them.

The duration of a trade-mark registration is 20 years, but it may be renewed indefinitely for 20-year periods, provided the trade-mark is still in use at the time of expiration.

Copyrights

A copyright is a statutory right obtained by authors, musicians and artists or their assigns, upon compliance with the provisions of the copyright law, to prevent the reproduction of their works without their consent. The U. S. Constitution (Article I, Section 8) empowers Congress "to promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries." The possession of a copyright prevents reproduction by writing, printing, copying, or imitation of the copyrighted article. Among some of the other rights possessed by the copyright owner are the exclusive rights to translate and dramatize literary works, to control public performance of dramas, and, in the case of nondramatic literary works and musical compositions, to control public performance for profit. Special provisions in regard to mechanical reproductions of musical compositions are included. Copyright protection extends to books; pamphlets; periodicals and contributions to periodicals; lectures, sermons, and monologues; dramas and dramatical musical compositions; musical compositions; maps; works of art or models and designs for works of art; reproductions of a work of art; drawings or plastic works of scientific or technical character; photographs, prints, and pictorial illustrations; commercial prints and labels; and motion pictures.

Copyright term endures 28 years from date of registration in the Copyright Office for unpublished material and from the date of publication for published works. The copyright may be renewed for an additional period of 28 years, provided application for such renewal is made within one year prior to the date of expiration of the original term. The copyright of a book or similar publication is secured by publication of such work after printing on the title page, or the page immediately following, the required copyright notice. This notice consists of the word Copyright or the abbreviation Copr., the year of publication, and the name of the copyright owner. It is important to bear in mind that copyright comes into being at the time of first publication if this required notice appears on the work. If publication occurs without this notice, the work falls into the public domain, and the Copyright Office cannot register the claim. In short, the Copyright Office does not grant copyrights; the obtaining of such protection depends on whether or not the claimant follows the statutory formalities at the time of publication. In view of the fact that those formalities vary with the different classes of works subject to copyright, persons interested in securing copyright should obtain circular No. 35 from the Register of Copyrights, Library of Congress, Washington 25, D. C.

The law requires that, promptly after the work has been published, two copies thereof (foreign works, one copy) must be promptly deposited in the Copyright Office. These copies should be accompanied by the proper application form and the statutory fee of $4. If the work is a commercial print or label used in connection with the sale or advertisement of an article of merchandise, the fee is $6.

Effective June 3, 1949, the term of ad interim protection for books and periodicals in the English language first published abroad was extended to five years. Such works may be imported into the U. S. up to a total of 1,500 copies after ad interim registration has been obtained. The above amendment to the law also affords to the foreign author or publishers an option of obtaining registration without payment of the usual statutory fee if an extra copy of the work, accompanied by a catalogue card, is submitted to the Copyright Office within six months of the date of first publication abroad.

Copies of application forms may be obtained from the Copyright Office free upon request. The Office also publishes, in Bulletin 14, the U. S. copyright law. This bulletin can be purchased for 20c upon application to the Register of Copyrights.

The National Park System of the United States

Source: National Park Service.

The National Park System of the United States, administered by the National Park Service, a bureau of the Department of the Interior, embraces a total of 174 areas, containing approximately 21,866,000 acres in federal ownership. Started with the establishment of Yellowstone National Park in 1872, the system includes not only the most extraordinary and spectacular scenic exhibits in the United States proper and in Alaska and Hawaii but also a large number of sites distinguished for their historic or prehistoric importance or scientific interest. The number and extent of the various types of areas which comprise the system, as of June 30, 1954, are as follows:

Type of Area	Number	Federal Land (Acres)	Lands within exterior boundaries not federally owned (Acres)	Total lands within exterior boundaries (Acres)

HOW A PRESIDENT IS ELECTED

Selection of Delegates

FIRST, AT FULL DRESS MEETINGS several months before, the national committees decide the time and place of the conventions. Before the conventions meet, each party selects delegates from every state and territory.

Democrats allow 2 delegates with 1 vote apiece for each Senator, or 4 delegates with  $\frac{1}{2}$  vote apiece. Two delegates are allowed for each Congressman. Also, a bonus vote of 4 is allowed each state that went Democratic in 1948. These states may elect 8 delegates with  $\frac{1}{2}$  vote each. Six delegates each are allowed to Puerto Rico, D. C., Alaska, and Hawaii, and 2 each to the Canal Zone and the Virgin Islands.

Republicans allow each state 4 delegates-at-large and 2 for each Representative-at-large, as well as 6 additional delegates if the state went Republican in the previous Presidential election or, in that election or a subsequent one held prior to the next Republican National Convention, elects a Republican U. S. Senator or Governor. In addition, each Congressional district within the state that cast 2,000 Republican votes at the last election is permitted a delegate, with an additional delegate if that district cast 10,000 votes. Republicans further allow 4 delegates-at-large for Alaska, 6 each for D. C. and Hawaii, and 4 additional for Hawaii if the Delegate to Congress elected at the last preceding election is a Republican. There are 3 delegates-at-large from Puerto Rico, 1 from the Virgin Islands.

Each party provides for the selection of an equal number of alternates to serve in the absence of regular delegates. Delegates are chosen differently in different states, mostly by party primary but in some cases by party conventions.

The Conventions

At each convention a temporary chairman is chosen, usually to deliver the party's keynote speech. After a credentials committee seats the various delegates, a permanent chairman is elected. The convention then votes on a platform, drawn up by the platform committee.

By the third or fourth day, Presidential nominations begin. The chairman calls the roll of states alphabetically. A state may place a candidate in nomination or yield to another state.

Voting, again alphabetically by voice vote, begins after all nominations have been made and seconded. A simple majority is required in each party, although this may require many ballots.

Finally, the Vice Presidential candidate is selected. Although there is no law saying that the candidates must come from different states, it is practically necessary for this to be the case. Otherwise, according to the Constitution (see Amendment XII), electors from that state could vote for only one of the candidates and would have to cast their other vote for some person of another state. This could result in the awkward situation of a Presidential candidate's receiving a majority electoral vote and his running mate's failing to.

The Electoral College

The next step in the process is the nomination of electors in each state, according to its laws. These electors must not be Federal office holders. In the November election, the voters cast their votes for electors, not for President. In some states, the ballots include only the names of the Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates; in others, they include only names of the electors. Nowadays, it is rare for electors to be split between parties. The last such occurrence was in Tennessee in 1948; the last before that, in West Virginia in 1916. On three occasions (1824, 1876 and 1888), the candidate with the largest popular vote failed to obtain an electoral-vote majority.

Each state has as many electors as it has United States Senators and members of the House of Representatives. There are 96 Senators and 435 Representatives, a total of 531 electoral votes, of which 266 are needed to win.

On the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December, the electors cast their votes in their respective state capitols. Constitutionally they may vote for someone other than the party candidate but practically they cannot since they are pledged to one party and its candidate on the ballot. Should the Presidential or Vice-Presidential candidate die between the November election and the December meetings, the electors pledged to vote for him could vote for whomever they pleased. However, it seems certain that the national committee would attempt to get an agreement among the state party leaders for a replacement candidate.

The votes of the electors, certified by the states, are sent to Congress, where the president of the Senate opens the certificates and has them counted in the presence of both Houses on January 6. The new President is inaugurated at noon on January 20.

Should no candidate receive a majority of the electoral vote for President, the House of Representatives chooses a President from among the three highest candidates, voting, not as individuals, but as states, with a majority (now 25) needed to elect. Should no Vice Presidential candidate obtain the majority, the Senate, voting as individuals, chooses from the highest two.

Presidential Succession

The following is the order of the succession to the Presidency. No person may become President, however, unless he is eligible under the Constitution.

1. Vice President of the U. S.
2. Speaker of the House.
3. President pro tempore of the Senate.
4. Secretary of State.

5. Secretary of the Treasury.
6. Secretary of Defense.
7. Attorney General.
8. Postmaster General.
9. Secretary of the Interior.
10. Secretary of Agriculture.
11. Secretary of Commerce.
12. Secretary of Labor.

<sup>1</sup> The first election in which the electors voted for President and Vice President on separate ballots. (See Amendment XII to the Constitution.) <sup>2</sup> As no candidate had an electoral-vote majority, the House of Representatives chose the President from the first three. In a vote by states, 13 votes were cast for Adams, 7 for Jackson, and 4 for Crawford. <sup>3</sup> The Antislavery party on Sept. 26, 1831, was the first party to hold a nominating convention to choose candidates for President and Vice President. <sup>4</sup> As Johnson did not have an electoral-vote majority, the Senate chose him 33-14 over Granger, the others being legally out of the race. <sup>5</sup> Harrison died Apr. 4, 1841, and Tyler succeeded him Apr. 6. <sup>6</sup> Taylor died July 9, 1850, and Fillmore succeeded him July 10. <sup>7</sup> Also known as the Know-Nothing party. <sup>8</sup> Lincoln died Apr. 15, 1865, and Johnson succeeded him the same day. <sup>9</sup> 23 Southern electoral votes were excluded. <sup>10</sup> Name adopted by the Republican National Convention of 1864. Johnson was a War Democrat.

<sup>1</sup> For those candidates receiving over 75,000 votes. <sup>2</sup> Greeley died Nov. 29, 1872, before his 68 electors voted. In the electoral balloting for President, 63 of Greeley's votes were scattered among Hendricks, Brown, Jenkins and Davis; the other 3, included in "Votes not counted," were cast for Greeley by electors from Georgia. This was the first election in which every state chose its electors by popular vote. <sup>3</sup> After the voting of the electoral college, Tilden had 184 undisputed votes, and Hayes 163. However, 22 other votes were in doubt, because two sets of electoral ballots were received from South Carolina, Louisiana, Florida and Oregon. For each of the three Southern states, one set was completely Democratic, the other completely Republican. For Oregon, one set gave all 3 of the state's votes to Hayes, the other gave one of the votes to Tilden. To settle the dispute, Congress created an Electoral Commission on Jan. 29, 1877. This Commission, consisting of 5 Supreme Court Justices, 5 senators and 5 representatives (8 Republicans and 7 Democrats), gave the 22 votes in question to Hayes. <sup>4</sup> Garfield died Sept. 19, 1881, and Arthur succeeded him Sept. 20. <sup>5</sup> The members of the People's party were known as Populists. <sup>6</sup> McKinley died Sept. 14, 1901, and Roosevelt succeeded him. <sup>7</sup> James S. Sherman, Republican candidate for Vice President, died Oct. 30, 1912, and the Republican electoral votes were cast for Butler. <sup>8</sup> Harding died Aug. 2, 1923, and Coolidge succeeded him Aug. 3. <sup>9</sup> Roosevelt died Apr. 12, 1945, and Truman succeeded him the same day.

CONGRESS

Representatives Under Each Apportionment

Source: The Congressional Directory.

The apportionment based on the Seventeenth Census (1950) distributes the 435 seats in the House among the States according to the method of equal proportions. By this method the per cent difference between the average number of Representatives per million people in any 2 States is made as small as possible. Also, the per cent difference between the average districts, i.e., the average number of persons per Representative, in any 2 States is made as small as possible. By equalizing the representation of all pairs of States, the method gives as nearly equal representation as possible to all States in proportion to their population.

Plurality and Majority

In order to win a plurality, a candidate must receive a greater number of votes than anyone running against him. If he receives 50 votes, for example, and two other candidates receive 49 and 2, he will have a plurality of one vote over his closest opponent.

However, a candidate does not have a majority unless he receives more than 50% of the total votes cast. In the example above, the candidate does not have a majority, because his 50 votes are less than 50% of the 101 votes cast.

If only two candidates receive votes, a plurality is necessarily a majority; but if more than two candidates receive votes, it is possible for one to have a substantial plurality without a majority.

THE UNITED STATES ARMED SERVICES

U. S. MILITARY ACADEMY

Source: U. S. Military Academy.

Established in 1802 by an Act of Congress, the U. S. Military Academy is located on the west bank of the Hudson River some 50 miles north of New York City. Admission may be gained only by appointment to one of the 2,496 cadetships authorized by law. These cadetships are allocated among the following sources of nomination:

Noncompetitive:

Representatives (4 each) .....	1,740
Senators (4 each) .....	384
Other:
Hawaii and Alaska .....	8
District of Columbia .....	6
Canal Zone Government .....	2
Puerto Rico .....	4
Vice Presidential .....	3
	23

Competitive:

Army and Air Force:
Regular components .....	90
Reserve components .....	90
Presidential .....	89
Sons of deceased veterans .....	40
Honor military & honor naval schools .....	40
Total .....	2,496

Graduation of the senior class leaves about 750 vacant cadetships each year, and candidates may be nominated for these vacancies during the year preceding the admission date—the first Tuesday in July.

Candidates must be citizens of the U. S., between the ages of 17 and 22, unmarried, at least 5' 6" tall and able to meet the mental, physical and physical aptitude requirements. Candidates with acceptable college records may be exempted from taking achievement examinations in mathematics and English and may qualify mentally by passing the West Point Aptitude Test. Entrance requirements and procedures for appointment are described in the U. S. Military Academy Catalog, available without charge from The Registrar, U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.

Cadets receive their entire education at Government expense and are paid $81.12 per month. From this sum, they pay for their meals, uniforms, textbooks, etc. Upon successful completion of the 4-year course, the graduate receives the degree of Bachelor of Science and is commissioned a second lieutenant in the regular Army or Air Force. He must serve at least 3 years. If he resigns then, he must serve an additional 3 years in the Reserves.

U. S. NAVAL ACADEMY

Source: U. S. Naval Academy.

On October 10, 1845, the Naval School was established at Fort Severn, Annapolis, Maryland. Five years later it was renamed the United States Naval Academy, and the following year a regular four-year course was adopted. At present, the curriculum consists of courses in the following departments: executive; seamanship and navigation; ordnance and gunnery; marine engineering; aviation; electrical engineering; mathematics; English, history and government; foreign languages; hygiene; and physical training.

Candidates are selected as follows:

- 5 from the District of Columbia
- 40 sons of men and women killed in action or who have died, or may hereafter die of wounds or injuries, or disease contracted, in active service in World Wars I and II
- 75 annually from among sons of officers and enlisted men in the regular Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force and Coast Guard.
- 160 enlisted Navy and Marine personnel selected annually by competitive examination
- 160 annually chosen by the Secretary of the Navy from the Naval and Marine Corps Reserves
- 5 Puerto Ricans chosen by the Resident Commissioner of Puerto Rico
- 1 on the recommendation of the Governor of Puerto Rico
- 4 Filipinos designated by the President of the United States
- 1 from the Canal Zone
- 20 annually from schools designated by the Army and Navy as honor schools and from NROTC schools.
- 20 from the American republics and the Dominion of Canada
- Unlimited: Sons of persons who have been or shall hereafter be awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Each Senator, Representative, delegate to Congress, and the Vice President may have not more than 5 Midshipmen at the Naval Academy. The President selects the 5 from the District of Columbia, the 40 sons of deceased veterans of World Wars and the 75 sons of officers and enlisted men in the regular Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force and Coast Guard. The President also appoints the sons of holders of the Medal of Honor.

Subject to the existence of vacancies and the availability of accommodations, the Secretary of the Navy may nominate for appointment a limited number of additional candidates. These must be recommended by the Academic Board from among the fully qualified, regularly nominated alternate and competitive candidates of the same year who were unable to enter because of the appointment of men preceding them in nomination.

Candidates for admission must be between 17 and 22 years of age on July 1 of their entering year. They may qualify by taking entrance examinations, by presenting an acceptable secondary school certificate and taking special examinations in English and mathematics, or by completing a sufficient number of acceptable college courses. Candidates must meet physical requirements and be unmarried.

Midshipmen are paid $973.44 a year. Graduates of the Academy are granted Bachelor of Science degrees and are commissioned as ensigns in the Navy or second lieutenants in the Marine Corps. In addition, a limited number of the members of graduating classes may be commissioned in the U. S. Air Force.

U. S. COAST GUARD ACADEMY

Source: U. S. Coast Guard Academy.

The cadet system of the Coast Guard was established by law on July 31, 1876, when the "School of Instruction" for the Revenue Cutter Service, predecessor to the Coast Guard, was authorized.

The J. C. Dobbin, a converted schooner, served as the first schoolship, and was succeeded in 1878 by the bark Chase, a ship built for cadet training. First winter quarters were in a sail loft at New Bedford, Mass. The school was moved in 1900 to a two-story frame school at Curtis Bay, Md., to provide a more technical education; and in 1910 to Fort Trumbull, New London, Conn. In 1932 the Academy moved to its present site in the latter city.

The 4-year college-level curriculum leads to a Bachelor of Science degree in Engineering and to a commission of ensign in the U. S. Coast Guard.

Cadets receive appointment to the Academy through a nation-wide competitive examination, held annually in February. Candidates must be between 17 and 22 years of age, physically sound, unmarried and at least 5' 6" tall. They must agree to remain unmarried until graduation and to serve at least 4 years on active duty. Cadets receive $973 per annum to cover their uniform and incidental expenses, and are furnished their rations and quarters. Applications for appointment may be made to the Commandant (PTP), U. S. Coast Guard, Washington 25, D. C.

U. S. MERCHANT MARINE ACADEMY

Source: U. S. Merchant Marine Academy.

The U. S. Merchant Marine Cadet Corps was established Mar. 15, 1938, and its Academy is located on the south shore of Long Island Sound at Kings Point, N. Y. The Academy has a complement of 800 cadet-midshipmen representing every U. S. state, D. C., Alaska, the Canal Zone, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico. In addition, it is authorized to receive each year, for the full period of training, not more than 12 candidates from Latin American republics.

Appointments to the Academy are governed by a state and territory quota system, based on population, and are made through competitive examinations. A candidate must be an unmarried citizen between 17 and 21, with a one-year age waiver granted to veterans. He must have 15 high-school credits, including 1 unit in algebra, 1 in plane geometry, 1 in physics, and 3 in English.

The course is 4 years, consisting of 1 year as Fourth Classman at the Academy, 1 year as Third Classman aboard a merchant ship, and 2 years as Second and First Classman at the Academy. Study includes marine engineering, navigation, electricity, ship construction, naval science and tactics, economics, business, languages, history, and other subjects.

On completion of their courses, cadet-midshipmen are examined for their original Merchant Marine license as deck or engineer officers in any ship in the U. S. Merchant Marine. They also receive Bachelor of Science degrees and commissions as officers in the U. S. Maritime Service and the U. S. Naval Reserve. Over 9,000 officers have been graduated.

History of the Armed Services

U. S. ARMY

When Gen. Washington, on July 3, 1775, took command of the Colonial militia (about 8,000 men) besieging Boston, the event marked the union of the forces of the 13 separate Colonies under one head, and the U. S. Army was born. In Jan., 1776, the Continental Congress decided that these troops should be separate in organization from those of local communities and established them as the U. S. Regular Army. When these forces were disbanded after the war only some 80 officers and men were retained to guard U. S. Army stores. From this humble beginning, in the ensuing years, the strength of the U. S. Army rose or fell according to national and international conditions. A strength of over 7,000,000 was reached in World War II.

U. S. NAVY

In Sept. and Oct., 1775, Gen. Washington maintained 5 schooners and a sloop with officers and men from his army for the purpose of preying on inbound English supply vessels and thereby caused the birth of the U. S. Navy. In Dec., 1775, the Continental Congress expanded this by providing for construction of naval craft and the appointment of a marine committee (one member from each colony) which continued until 1794 when further ships and manpower were provided for by act of Congress. Upon completion of these ships in 1798, a Navy Department was established as the controlling agency, and the secretary given Cabinet rank.

U. S. AIR FORCE

Until creation of the National Military Establishment in July 1947, which united the services under one command, U. S. military air forces operated under the several commands. In the Army, operations came under the Signal Corps until 1918, when the U. S. Air Service was established. In 1926, the U. S. Air Corps came into being and remained until 1942 when the Army Air Forces were formed, composed of the U. S. Air Corps and its supporting services.

In the Navy, ship-based fighters and bombers were originally attached to the several fleets and under the orders of the fleet commanders. Marine Corps aviation came under control of the Navy.

In 1947, the U. S. Air Force was established as an autonomous arm of the Armed Forces. At that time, the name U. S. Air Corps and the names of the services within the Army Air Forces were abolished.

U. S. COAST GUARD

This service was originally created by an act of Congress approved on Jan. 28, 1915, which combined the then Revenue Cutter

Service and the Life-Saving Service. On July 1, 1939, the Lighthouse Service of the Department of Commerce was also consolidated into this unit. The Coast Guard, through its antecedents, is the oldest organization under the Federal government and, until the Navy Department was established in 1798, it served as the only U. S. armed force afloat. It operates under the Treasury Department in time of peace, serving in the capacity of life and property saving, prevention of smuggling, clearance of debris in harbors, maintaining an ice patrol in northern waters, flood service, etc. In time of war it is attached to the Navy Department, and in the recent conflict, it performed admirable service.

U. S. MARINE CORPS

Founded in 1775 and observing its official birthday on Nov. 10, the U. S. Marine Corps was developed to be able to serve to advantage on land or sea.

It has been used successfully in every U. S. war beginning with the Revolution when it consisted of 2 battalions. It reached its high in achievement in the recent war when its some 475,000 men and officers performed historic deeds in the Pacific Theater of Operations.

Veterans' Benefits

Veterans of World War I were the first in our history to receive compensation for injuries, allotments for the support of dependents, life insurance, medical care and vocational rehabilitation. Beginning with 1940, these benefits were slowly broadened.

The following benefits available to veterans of World War II and the Korean War have specific time limitations and, in most cases, are applicable only to those whose discharge was not under dishonorable conditions.

Education and Training: Veterans of World War II: For a period of 1 year plus the time in service up to 4 years, the VA pays $500 a year toward all tuition, books, etc., and a monthly subsistence allowance varying from $65 to $120, depending on the nature of the training and the number of the veteran's dependents.

Veterans of the Korean War: For a maximum period of 1½ times the duration of active service, not exceeding 36 months, the VA pays sums varying from $110 to $160 per month toward subsistence, tuition, supplies, etc.

Re-employment: The veteran is to be reinstated in the same position or an equivalent one unless, in the case of a private employer, changed circumstances make this impossible.

Loans: Only loans for the purchase or construction of a home, to buy a farm and farm equipment or business property and equipment, are permissible. The VA will guarantee the lender against loss up to 60% of a home loan with a maximum of $7,500. On other loans, the guarantee is up to 50% with a maximum of $4,000 involving real estate and $2,000 on non-real estate loans. The interest rate in all cases must not exceed 4½% per year.

The following benefits are also available to those having some service-connected illness or disability:

Disability Compensation: The VA pays from $15.75 to $172.50 per month with additional sums for specific conditions up to $400 per month, plus allowances for wife, children or dependent parents.

Vocational rehabilitation: Necessary training expenses, special equipment, etc., toward a definite job objective are paid for, plus a monthly allowance varying from $65 to $120 in addition to compensation.

Medical and dental care: This includes complete care in VA or certain other Federal hospitals. It also covers treatment (not requiring hospitalization) at a VA field station or by an approved private physician or dentist. Medicine, instruments, appliances, mechanical equipment, etc., are supplied. Full domiciliary care is also provided where necessary.

Death benefits: $10,000, less any government insurance, is paid to survivors in the immediate family. Compensation to a widow is $75 per month, with an allowance for each child.

NOTE: Since our space has permitted only a general statement of the principal benefits available to veterans, the reader is referred to his local office of the Veterans' Administration (VA) for detailed information.

* The minimum registration fee does not provide for indemnification in the event of loss, rifling or damage, and is only applicable to matter having no intrinsic value. Matter having intrinsic value or involving cost of duplication for which the sender desires indemnification in the event of loss, rifling or damage, requires a registration fee in excess of the minimum fee. Items similar to the following are considered as having no intrinsic value, and may be registered upon payment of the minimum registration fee: correspondence, notices, legal documents, birth certificates, contracts, certificates of title, deeds, inventories, mortgages, rights of way, trust deeds, briefs, bank books, blue prints, passports, insurance policies, office reports, checks, bank drafts, cashier's checks, money orders, U. S. savings bonds (series E), postal savings certificates, U. S. Treasury savings notes (series D), way bills, ship manifests, ship trip reports, graphs, commercial letters of credit, motor vehicle drivers' licenses, personal records and files, abstracts of title, immigration papers and stock rights. This includes nonnegotiable securities (including certificates of stock). If registering indemnity is desired, sender may pay a fee higher than the minimum to provide for indemnification for cost of duplication.

When the declared value exceeds the maximum indemnity covered by the registry fee by $1,000 or more, there shall be charged additional fees (surcharges). ## BIOGRAPHIES OF THE PRESIDENTS was born February 22, 1732 (February 11, 1731/2, old style) in Westmoreland County, Virginia. He early trained as a surveyor; but in 1752 he was appointed adjutant in the Virginia militia, and for the next three years he took an active part in the wars against the French and Indians, serving as General Braddock's aide in the disastrous campaign against Fort Duquesne. In 1759 he resigned from the militia, married Martha Dandridge Custis, a widow, and settled down as a gentleman farmer at Mount Vernon.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

As a militiaman, he had been exposed to the arrogance of the British officers, and his experience as a planter with British commercial restrictions increased his anti-British sentiment. He opposed the Stamp Act of 1765 and after 1770 became increasingly prominent in organizing resistance. A delegate to the Continental Congress, Washington was selected as commander in chief of the Continental Army and took command at Cambridge, Massachusetts, on July 3, 1775.

Inadequately supported and sometimes covertly sabotaged by the Congress, in charge of troops who were inexperienced, badly equipped and impatient of discipline, Washington conducted the war on the policy of avoiding major engagements with the British and wearing them down by harassing tactics. His able generalship, along with the French alliance and the growing weariness within Britain, brought the war to a conclusion with the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown on October 19, 1781.

The chaotic years under the Articles of Confederation led Washington to return to public life in the hope of promoting the formation of a strong central government. He presided over the Constitutional Convention and yielded to the universal demand that he serve as first President. In office, he sought to unite the nation in the service of establishing the authority of new government at home and abroad. Greatly distressed by the emergence of the Hamilton-Jefferson rivalry, he worked to maintain neutrality but actually sympathized more with Hamilton. Following his unanimous re-election in 1792, his second term was dominated by the Federalists. His Farewell Address rebuked party spirit and warned against foreign entanglements.

He died at Mt. Vernon on December 14, 1799. Tall, dignified and impressive, Washington gave a public impression of austerity, though he was capable of gaiety in private. His life was characterized by a strict sense of duty to his people. The standard biographies are by Fitzpatrick, Ford, Hughes and Stephenson.

JOHN ADAMS

was born on October 30 (October 19, old style), 1735, at Braintree (now Quincy), Massachusetts. A Harvard graduate, he considered teaching and the ministry but finally turned to law and was admitted to the bar in 1758. He opposed the Stamp Act, served as lawyer for patriots indicted by the British and, by the time of the Continental Congresses, was in the vanguard of the movement for independence. In 1778 he went to France as commissioner. Subsequently he helped negotiate the peace treaty with Britain, and in 1785 became the U. S. envoy to London. Resigning in 1788, he was elected Vice President under Washington, and was re-elected in 1792.

Though a Federalist, Adams did not get along with Hamilton who sought to prevent his election to the presidency in 1796, and thereafter intrigued against his administration. Adams was chosen with 71 electoral votes to 68 for his closest competitor, Thomas Jefferson, who became Vice President. In 1798 Adams' independent policy averted a war with France but completed the break with Hamilton and the right-wing Federalists while, at the same time, the enactment of the Alien and Sedition Acts, directed against foreigners and against critics of the government, exasperated the Jeffersonian opposition. The split between Adams and Hamilton elected Jefferson in 1800. Adams retired to his home in Quincy, Massachusetts. He later corresponded with Jefferson and they died on the same day, July 4, 1826.

Stout, somewhat vain and irascible, Adams was honest, fearless and essentially fair-minded. His Defence of the Constitutions of Government of the United States (1787) contains original and striking if conservative political ideas. He married Abigail Smith in 1764, and their life together was long and happy. The standard biographies are by Morse and Chinard.

THOMAS JEFFERSON

was born on April 13 (April 2, old style), 1743, at Shadwell in Goochland (now Albemarle) County, Virginia. A William and Mary graduate, he studied law but from the start showed an interest in science and philosophy. His literary skill and political clarity brought him to the forefront of the revolutionary movement in Virginia. As delegate to the Continental Congress, he drafted the Declaration of Independence. In 1776 he entered the Virginia House of Delegates and initiated a comprehensive reform program for the abolition of feudal survivals in land tenure and the separation of church and state.

In 1779 he became governor, but constitutional limitations on his power combined with his own lack of executive energy caused an unsatisfactory administration, culminating in Jefferson's virtual abdication when the British invaded Virginia in 1781. He now retired to his beautiful home at Monticello, to his wife, Martha Wayles Skelton, whom he had married in 1772 and who died in 1782, and to his children.

Jefferson's Notes on Virginia (1784-85) illustrate his many-faceted interests, his limitless intellectual curiosity, his deep faith in agrarian democracy. Sent to Congress in 1783, he helped lay down the decimal system and drafted basic reports on the organization of the western lands. In 1785 he was appointed minister to France, where the Anglo-Saxon liberalism he had drawn from Locke was stimulated by contact with the thought which would soon ferment in the French Revolution. In 1789 Washington appointed him Secretary of State. While favoring the Constitution and a strengthened central government, Jefferson came to believe that Hamilton contemplated the establishment of a monarchy. Growing differences resulted in Jefferson's resignation on Dec. 31, 1793.

Elected Vice President in 1796, Jefferson continued to serve as spiritual leader of the opposition to Federalism, particularly to the repressive Alien and Sedition Acts. He was elected President in 1801 by the House of Representatives as a result of Hamilton's decision to throw the Federalist votes to him rather than to Aaron Burr, who had tied him in electoral votes. The purchase of Louisiana from France in 1803, though in violation of his earlier constitutional scruples, was the most notable act of his administration. Re-elected in 1804 with 162 electoral votes to 14 for the Federalist Charles C. Pinckney, Jefferson tried desperately during his second term to keep the United States out of the Napoleonic Wars in Europe, employing to this end the unpopular embargo policy.

After his retirement to Monticello in 1809, he developed his interest in education, founding the University of Virginia and watching its development with never-flagging interest. He died at Monticello on July 4, 1826. Tall, loose-jointed, a poor speaker, Jefferson had an enormous variety of interests and skills, ranging from education and science to architecture and music. Economically his conception of democracy presupposed an essentially rural community of small freeholds; but his deep and abiding faith in the common man provides inspiration for future generations. The standard biographies are by Chinard, Bowers, Kimball, Randall and Malone.

JAMES MADISON

was born in Port Conway, Virginia, on March 16, 1751 (March 5, 1750/1, old style). A Princeton graduate, he joined the struggle for independence on his return to Virginia in 1771. In the seventies and eighties he was active both in state politics, where he championed the Jefferson reform program, and in the Continental Congress. He was influential in the Constitutional Convention as leader of the group favoring a strong central government and as recorder of the debates; and he subsequently wrote, in collaboration with Alexander Hamilton and John Jay, the Federalist papers to aid the campaign for the adoption of the Constitution.

In the new Congress, Madison soon emerged as the leader in the House of the men who opposed Hamilton's financial program and his pro-British leanings in foreign policy. Retiring from Congress in 1797, he continued active in Virginia and drafted the Virginia Resolution protesting the Alien and Sedition Acts. His intimacy with Jefferson made him natural choice for Secretary of State in 1801.

In 1809 Madison succeeded Jefferson as President, with 122 electoral votes to 47 for the Federalist, C. C. Pinckney, and 6 scattering. His attractive wife, Dolly Payne Todd, whom he married in 1794, brought a new social sparkle to the executive mansion. In the meantime, increasing tension with Britain culminated in the War of 1812—a war for which the United States was unprepared, and for which Madison lacked the executive talent to clear out incompetence and mobilize the nation's energies. Madison was re-elected in 1812, with 128 electoral votes to 89 for the Federalist, De Witt Clinton. In 1814 the British actually captured Washington and forced Madison to flee to Virginia.

In his domestic program, Madison capitulated to the Hamiltonian policies that he had resisted twenty years before, signing bills to establish a United States Bank and a higher tariff. Following his presidency, he remained in retirement in Virginia until his death on June 28, 1836. Small, wrinkled, unimpressive, Madison had an acute political intelligence but lacked executive force. The standard lives are by Hunt, Brant and Rives.

JAMES MONROE

was born on April 28, 1758, in Westmoreland County, Virginia. A William and Mary graduate, he served in the army during the first years of the Revolution and was wounded at Trenton. He then entered Virginia politics and later national politics under the sponsorship of Jefferson. In 1786 he married Eliza Kortright.

Fearing centralization, Monroe opposed the adoption of the Constitution and, as senator from Virginia, was highly critical of the Hamiltonian program. In 1794 he was appointed minister to France where his ardent sympathies with the Revolution exceeded the wishes of the State Department. A troubled diplomatic career ended with his recall in 1796. From 1799 to 1802 he was governor of Virginia. In 1803 Jefferson sent him to France to help negotiate the Louisiana Purchase and for the next few years he was active in various continental negotiations.

In 1808 Monroe flirted with the radical wing of the Republican party, which opposed Madison's candidacy; but the presidential boom came to naught and, after a brief term as governor of Virginia in 1811, Monroe accepted Madison's offer of the State Department. During the war he vainly sought a field command and served as Secretary of War from Sept., 1814, to Mar., 1815.

Elected President in 1816 with 183 electoral votes to 34 for the Federalist Rufus King, and re-elected without opposition in 1820, Monroe, the last of the Virginia dynasty, pursued the course of systematic tranquilization which won for his terms the name "the era of good feeling." He continued Madison's surrender to the Hamiltonian domestic program, signed the Missouri Compromise, acquired Florida and, with the able assistance of his Secretary of State, John Quincy Adams, promulgated the Monroe Doctrine in 1823, declaring against foreign colonization or intervention in the Americas. He died in New York City on July 4, 1831.

A sound man of medium abilities, Monroe possessed qualities of judgment rather than of leadership. The standard biographies are by Morgan, Gilman and Styron.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

was born on July 11, 1767, at Braintree (now Quincy), Massachusetts, the son of John Adams. He spent his early years in Europe with his father, graduated from Harvard and entered law practice. His anti-Jeffersonian newspaper articles won him political attention. In 1794 he became minister to the Netherlands, the first of several diplomatic posts which occupied him until his return to Boston in 1801. In 1797 he married Louisa Catherine Johnson.

In 1803 he was elected to the Senate, nominally as a Federalist, but his repeated displays of independence on such issues as the Louisiana Purchase and the embargo caused his party to compel his resignation and ostracize him socially. In 1809 Madison rewarded him for his support of Jefferson by appointing him minister to St. Petersburg. He helped negotiate the Treaty of Ghent in 1814 and in 1815 became minister to London. In 1817 Monroe appointed him Secretary of State where he served with great distinction, gaining Florida from Spain without hostilities and playing an equal part with Monroe in formulating the Monroe Doctrine.

When no presidential candidate received a majority of electoral votes in 1824, Adams, with the support of Henry Clay, was elected by the House in 1825 over Andrew Jackson who had the original plurality. Adams had ambitious plans of government activity to foster internal improvements and promote the arts and sciences; but congressional obstructionism combined with his own unwillingness or inability to play the role of a politician meant that little was accomplished. Retiring to Quincy after his defeat in 1828, he was elected to the House of Representatives in 1831 where, though nominally a Whig, he pursued as ever an independent course. He led the fight to force Congress to receive anti-slavery petitions and fathered the Smithsonian Institution.

Stricken on the floor of the House, he died on February 23, 1848. Tactless, brusque, conscientious, a rough and savage debater, Adams spared neither himself nor his enemies. His long and detailed Diary gives a unique picture of the personalities and politics of the times. The standard biographies are by Morse and Clark.

ANDREW JACKSON

was born on March 15, 1767, in what is now generally agreed to be Waxhaw, South Carolina. After a turbulent boyhood as an orphan and a British prisoner, he moved west to Tennessee where he soon qualified for law practice but found time for such frontier pleasures as horse racing, cock-fighting and dueling. His marriage to Rachel Donelson Robards in 1791 was complicated by subsequent legal uncertainties about the status of her divorce. During the seventeen-nineties Jackson served in the Tennessee constitutional convention, the federal House of Representatives, the federal Senate and the Tennessee supreme court.

After some years as a country gentleman, living at the Hermitage near Nashville, Jackson in 1812 was given command of Tennessee troops sent against the Creeks. He defeated the Indians at Horseshoe Bend in 1814; subsequently he became a major general and won the Battle of New Orleans over veteran British troops though after the treaty of peace had been signed at Ghent. In 1818 General Jackson invaded Florida, captured Pensacola and hanged two Englishmen named Arbuthnot and Ambrister, creating an international incident. A presidential boom began for him in 1821 and in its service he returned to the Senate (1823-25). Though he won a plurality of electoral votes in 1824, he lost in the House when Clay threw his strength to Adams; he won easily in 1828 by an electoral vote of 178 to 83.

As President, Jackson greatly expanded the power and prestige of the presidential office and carried through an unexampled program of domestic reform, vetoing the bill to extend the United States Bank, moving toward a hard-money currency policy and checking the program of federal internal improvements. He also vindicated federal authority against South Carolina with its doctrine of nullification and against France on the question of debts. The support given his policies by the workingmen of the East as well as by the farmers of the East, West and South resulted in his triumphant re-election in 1832 over Clay by an electoral vote of 219 to 49, with 18 scattering and 2 not cast.

After watching the inauguration of his hand-picked successor, Martin Van Buren, Jackson retired to the Hermitage where he maintained a lively interest in national affairs until his death on June 8, 1845. A tall, dignified man with a drawn and wrinkled face, Jackson has been endowed by partisan historians with a violence and irascibility he appears not to have possessed. His great contribution was to adjust the presidential office and the democratic doctrines of Jefferson to the new situation created by the Industrial Revolution. The standard biographies are by James, Bassett and Parton.

MARTIN VAN BUREN

was born on December 5, 1782, at Kinderhook, New York. After graduating from the village school, he became a law clerk, entered practice in 1803 and soon became active in state politics as state senator and attorney general. In 1821 he was elected to the United States Senate. He threw the support of his efficient political organization, known as the Albany Regency, to William H. Crawford in 1824 and to Jackson in 1828. After leading the opposition to Adams' administration in the Senate, he served briefly as governor of New York and resigned to become Jackson's Secretary of State. He soon became on close personal terms with Jackson and played an important part in turning the Jacksonian program from the lines intended by his original Western backers.

In 1832 Van Buren became Vice President; in 1836, President, with an electoral vote of 170 against 124 scattered among four opponents. The Panic of 1837 overshadowed his term. He attributed it to the overexpansion of the credit and favored the establishment of an independent treasury as repository for the federal funds. In 1840 he established a ten-hour day on public works. Defeated by Harrison in 1840, he was the leading contender for the Democratic nomination in 1844 until he publicly opposed immediate annexation of Texas and was subsequently beaten by the Southern delegations at the Baltimore convention. This incident increased his growing misgivings about the slave power.

After working behind the scenes among the antislavery Democrats, Van Buren joined in the movement which led to the Free-Soil party and became its candidate for President in 1848. He subsequently returned to the Democratic party while continuing to object to its pro-Southern policy. He died in Kinderhook on July 24, 1862. His Autobiography throws valuable sidelights on the political history of the times.

Small, erect, dapper, Van Buren had a reputation for slick politicking which won him such sobriquets as the Little Magician and the Red Fox of Kinderhook; but, as his later career showed, he was capable of taking firm and unpopular stands on public issues. His wife Hannah Hoes, whom he married in 1807, died in 1819.

The standard biographies are by Shepard and Lynch.

WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON

was born in Charles City County, Virginia, on February 9, 1773. Joining the army in 1791, he was active in Indian fighting in the Northwest, became secretary of the Northwest Territory in 1798 and governor of Indiana in 1800. He married Anna Symmes in 1795. Growing discontent over white encroachments on Indian lands led to the formation of an Indian alliance under Tecumseh to resist further aggressions. In 1811 Harrison won a nominal victory over the Indians at Tippecanoe and in 1813 a more decisive one at the Battle of the Thames, where Tecumseh was killed.

After resigning from the army in 1814, Harrison had an obscure career in politics and diplomacy, ending up in twenty years as a county recorder in Ohio. Nominated for President in 1835 as a military hero whom the conservative politicians hoped to be able to control, he ran surprisingly well against Van Buren in 1836. Four years later he defeated Van Buren by an electoral vote of 234 to 60 but caught pneumonia and died in Washington a month after his inauguration, April 4, 1841. Harrison's qualities were those of a soldier rather than of a statesman or political leader. The standard biographies are by Cleaves and Goebel.

JOHN TYLER

was born in Charles City County, Virginia, on March 29, 1790. A William and Mary graduate, he entered law practice and politics, serving in the House of Representatives (1816-21) and later as governor of Virginia (1825-27), and as senator. A thorough-going strict constructionist, he supported Crawford in 1824 and Jackson in 1828 but broke with Jackson over his Bank policy and became a member of the Southern state-rights group which co-operated with the Whigs. In 1836 he resigned from the Senate rather than follow instructions from the Virginia legislature to vote for a resolution expunging censure of Jackson from the Senate record.

Elected Vice President on the Whig ticket in 1840, Tyler succeeded to the presidency on Harrison's death. His strict-constructionist views soon caused a split with the Henry Clay wing of the Whig party and a stalemate on domestic questions. Tyler's more considerable achievements were his support of the Webster-Ashburton Treaty with Britain and his success in bringing about the annexation of Texas through joint congressional resolution.

After his presidency he lived in retirement in Virginia until the outbreak of the Civil War when he emerged briefly as chairman of a peace convention and then as delegate to the provisional Congress of the Confederacy. He died on January 18, 1862. He was married first to Letitia Christian March in 1813 and, two years after her death in 1842, to Julia Gardiner. Witty, amiable, courteous, Tyler was a Virginia gentleman whose presidency was hamstrung by the basic contradiction between his own ideas and those of the party which put him on the ticket as Vice President. The standard biographies are by Chitwood and Tyler.

JAMES KNOX POLK

was born in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, on November 2, 1795. A graduate of the University of North Carolina, he moved west to Tennessee, was admitted to the bar and soon became prominent in state politics. In 1825 he was elected to the House of Representatives where he opposed Adams and, after 1829, became Jackson's floor leader in the fight against the Bank. In 1835 he became Speaker of the House. In 1839 he was elected governor of Tennessee but was beaten in tries for re-election in 1841 and 1843.

The supporters of Van Buren for the Democratic nomination in 1844 counted on Polk as his running mate; but, when Van Buren's stand on Texas alienated Southern support, the convention swung to Polk on the ninth ballot. He was elected over Henry Clay, the Whig candidate, by an electoral vote of 170 to 105. Rapidly disillusioning those who thought that he would not run his own administration, Polk proceeded steadily and precisely to achieve four major objectives—the acquisition of California, the settlement of the Oregon question, the reduction of the tariff and the establishment of the independent treasury. He also enlarged the Monroe Doctrine to exclude all non-American intervention in American affairs, whether forcible or not, and he forced Mexico into a war which he waged to a successful conclusion. His wife Sarah Childress, whom he married in 1824, was a woman of charm and ability. Polk died in Nashville, Tennessee, on June 15, 1849.

Serious, hardworking, lacking in color, Polk has long been underrated by historians who mistakenly regarded him as a slaveholders' puppet; in fact, few presidents have so thoroughly controlled their own administration or have so ably accomplished the purposes they set for themselves. Polk's Diary reflects the mood and problems of his presidency. The standard biography is by McCormac.

ZACHARY TAYLOR

was born at Montebello, Orange County, Virginia, on November 24, 1784. Embarking on a military career in 1808, Taylor fought in the War of 1812, the Black Hawk War and the Seminole War, holding in between garrison jobs on the frontier or desk jobs in Washington. A brigadier general as a result of his victory over the Seminoles at Lake Okeechobee (1837), Taylor held a succession of Southwestern commands and in 1846 established a base on the Rio Grande, where his forces engaged in hostilities which precipitated the war with Mexico. He captured Monterrey in Sept., 1846, and, disregarding Polk's orders to stay on the defensive, defeated Santa Anna at Buena Vista in February, 1847, ending the war in the northern provinces.

Though Taylor had never cast a vote for President, his party affiliations were Whiggish, and his availability was increased by his difficulties with Polk. He was elected President over the Democrat Lewis Cass by an electoral vote of 163 to 127. During the revival of the slavery controversy, which was to result in the Compromise of 1850, Taylor began to take an increasingly firm stand against appeasing the South; but he died in Washington on July 9, 1850, in the midst of the fight over the Compromise. He married Margaret Mackall Smith in 1810. His bluff and simple soldierly qualities won him the name of Old Rough and Ready. During his brief term as President he displayed a growing insight into political questions. The standard biographies are by Hamilton and by Bent and McKinley.

MILLARD FILLMORE

was born at Locke, Cayuga County, New York, on January 7, 1800. A lawyer, he entered politics as an Antimason under the sponsorship of Thurlow Weed, editor and party boss, and subsequently followed Weed into the Whig party. He served in the House of Representatives (1833-35 and 1837-43) and played a leading role in writing the tariff of 1842. Defeated for governor of New York in 1844, he became comptroller in 1848, was put on the Whig ticket with Taylor as a concession to the Clay wing of the party and became President upon Taylor's death in 1850.

As President, Fillmore broke with Weed and William H. Seward and associated himself with the pro-Southern Whigs, supporting the Compromise of 1850. Defeated for the Whig nomination in 1852, he ran for President in 1856 as candidate of the American or Know-Nothing party, which sought to unite the country against foreigners in the alleged hope of diverting it from the explosive slavery issue. Fillmore opposed Lincoln during the Civil War. He died in Buffalo on March 8, 1874. He was married in 1826 to Abigail Powers, who died in 1853, and in 1858 to Caroline Carmichael McIntosh. Urbane, gracious, colorless and weak, Fillmore was an undistinguished President. The standard biography is by Griffis.

FRANKLIN PIERCE

was born at Hillsboro, New Hampshire, on November 23, 1804. A Bowdoin graduate and lawyer, he won rapid political advancement in the Democratic party, in part because of the prestige of his father, Governor Benjamin Pierce. By 1831 he was Speaker of the New Hampshire House of Representatives; from 1833 to 1837 he served in the federal House and from 1837 to 1842 in the Senate. His wife, Jane Means Appleton, whom he had married in 1834, disliked Washington and the somewhat dissipated life led by Pierce; and in 1842 Pierce, resigning from the Senate, took up a successful law practice in Concord, New Hampshire.

During the Mexican War Pierce was a brigadier general. Thereafter he continued to oppose antislavery tendencies within the Democratic party. As a result, he was the Southern choice to break the deadlock at the Democratic convention of 1852 and was nominated on the 49th ballot. Pierce rolled up 254 electoral votes to 42 for Winfield Scott, the Whig candidate.

As President, Pierce followed a course of appeasing the South at home and of playing with schemes of territorial expansion abroad. The failure of both his foreign and domestic policies prevented his renomination; and he died in Concord, New Hampshire, on October 8, 1869, in relative obscurity. A kindly and courteous person, Pierce was weak, unstable and lacking in presidential qualities. The standard biography is by Nichols.

JAMES BUCHANAN

was born near Mercersburg, Pennsylvania, on April 23, 1791. A Dickinson graduate and a lawyer, he entered Pennsylvania politics as a Federalist. With the disappearance of the Federalist party, he became a Jacksonian Democrat. He served with ability in the House (1821-31), as minister to St. Petersburg (1832-33) and in the Senate (1834-45), and in 1845 became Polk's Secretary of State. Disappointed in the presidential nomination in 1852, Buchanan became minister to Britain in 1853 where he participated with other American diplomats in Europe in drafting the expansionist Ostend Manifesto.

In 1856 Buchanan received the Democratic nomination and won the election, gaining 174 electoral votes to 114 for John C. Frémont, the Republican candidate, and 8 for Millard Fillmore, American party. The growing crisis over slavery presented Buchanan with problems he lacked the will to tackle. His appeasement of the South alienated the Stephen Douglas wing of the Democratic party without reducing Southern militancy on slavery issues. While denying the right of secession, Buchanan also denied that the federal government could do anything about it. He supported the administration during the Civil War and died in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, on June 1, 1868.

The only President to remain a bachelor throughout his term, Buchanan used his charming niece Harriet Lane as White House hostess. Legalistic, indecisive and timorous as President, Buchanan filled his other public offices capably. The standard biography is by Curtis.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

was born in Hardin (now Larue) County, Kentucky, on February 12, 1809. His family moved to Indiana and then to Illinois, and Lincoln gained what education he could along the way. While reading law, he worked in a store, managed a mill, surveyed, and split rails. In 1834 he went to the state legislature as a Whig and became the party's floor leader. For the next twenty years he remained in law practice in Springfield, except for a single term (1847-49) in Congress where he denounced the Mexican War. In 1855 he was a candidate for senator and in 1856 he joined the new Republican party.

A leading but unsuccessful candidate for the vice-presidential nomination with Frémont, Lincoln gained national attention in 1858 when, as Republican candidate for senator from Illinois, he engaged in a series of debates with Stephen A. Douglas, the Democratic candidate. He lost the senatorial election, but continued to prepare the way for the 1860 Republican convention and was rewarded with the presidential nomination on the third ballot. He polled 180 electoral votes, as against the 123 of his three opponents, but had only a plurality of the popular vote.

From the start, Lincoln made clear that, unlike Buchanan, he believed the national government had the power to crush the rebellion. Not an abolitionist, he held the slavery issue subordinate to that of preserving the Union but soon perceived that the war could not be brought to a successful conclusion without freeing the slaves. His administration was hampered by the incompetence of many Union generals, the inexperience of the troops and the harassing political tactics both of the Republican Radicals, who favored a hard policy toward the South, and the Democratic Copperheads, who desired a negotiated peace. The Gettysburg Address of November 19, 1863, marks the high point in the record of American eloquence. His patient search for a winning combination finally brought Generals Ulysses S. Grant and William T. Sherman to the top; and their series of victories in 1864 dispelled the mutterings from both Radicals and Peace Democrats which at one time seemed to threaten Lincoln's re-election. He received 212 electoral votes to 21 for George B. McClellan, the Democratic candidate. His inaugural address urged leniency toward the South: "With malice toward none, with charity for all . . . let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds . . ." This policy aroused growing opposition on the part of the Republican Radicals, but Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth at Ford's Theater, Washington, on April 14, 1865, before the matter could be put to test. He died the following day.

Lincoln's marriage to Mary Todd in 1842 was often unhappy and turbulent, in part because of his wife's pronounced instability. By his remarkable literary artistry, his essential patience and devotion, his profound sense of the importance of government by, for and of the people, by the manner of his life and of his death, Lincoln has won a unique place in the hearts of Americans. The standard biographies are by Sandburg, Herndon, Nicolay and Hay.

ANDREW JOHNSON

was born at Raleigh, North Carolina, on December 29, 1808. Self-educated, he became a tailor in Greeneville, Tennessee, but soon went into politics where he rose steadily. From 1843 to 1853 he served in the House of Representatives, 1853-57 as governor of Tennessee and in 1857 was elected Senator. Politically he was a Jacksonian Democrat, and his specialty was the fight for a more equitable land policy. Alone among the Southern Senators, he stood by the Union during the Civil War. In 1862 he became war governor of Tennessee and carried out a thankless and difficult job with great courage. Johnson became Lincoln's running mate in 1864 as result of an attempt to give the ticket a nonpartisan and nonsectional character. Succeeding to the presidency on Lincoln's death, Johnson sought to carry out his policy but without his political skill. The result was a hopeless conflict with the Radical Republicans who dominated Congress, passed measures over Johnson's vetoes and attempted to limit the power of the executive concerning appointments and removals. The conflict culminated with Johnson's impeachment for attempting to remove his disloyal Secretary of War in defiance of the Tenure of Office Act which required senatorial concurrence for such dismissals. The opposition failed by one vote to get the two-thirds necessary for conviction.

After his presidency, Johnson maintained an interest in politics and in 1875 was elected to the Senate. He died near Carter Station, Tennessee, on July 31, 1875. He married Eliza McCordle in 1827. An honest, courageous and intelligent man, Johnson lacked the tact, patience and self-control to be an effective President.

The standard biographies are by Winston, Stryker and Milton.

ULYSSES SIMPSON GRANT

was born (as Hiram Ulysses Grant) at Point Pleasant, Ohio, on April 27, 1822. He finished West Point in 1843 and served without particular distinction in the Mexican War. In 1848 he married Julia Dent. He resigned from the army in 1854, following warnings from his commanding officer about his drinking habits, and for the next six years held a wide variety of jobs in the Middle West. With the outbreak of the Civil War, he sought a command and soon, to his surprise, was made a brigadier general. His continuing successes in the western theaters, culminating in the capture of Vicksburg in 1863, brought him national fame and soon the command of all the Union armies. His dogged, implacable policy of concentrating on dividing and destroying the Confederate armies brought the war to an end in 1865. In 1866 he was made full general.

Grant's relations with Johnson grew steadily worse; and in 1868, as the Republican candidate for President, Grant was elected with 214 electoral votes to 80 for the Democrat Horatio Seymour. From the start Grant showed his unfitness for the office. His cabinet was weak, his domestic policy was confused, many of his intimate associates were corrupt. The notable achievement in foreign affairs was the settlement of controversies with Great Britain in the Treaty of London (1871), negotiated by his able Secretary of State, Hamilton Fish.

Nominated for a second term, he defeated Horace Greeley, the Democratic and Liberal Republican candidate, 286 votes to 63. The Panic of 1873 created difficulties for his second term.

After retiring from office, Grant toured Europe for two years and returned in time to accede to a third-term boom, but was beaten in the convention of 1880. Illness and bad business judgment darkened his last years, but he worked steadily at the Personal Memoirs which were to be so successful when published after his death at Mount McGregor, near Saratoga, New York, on July 23, 1885. Inarticulate, taciturn, loyal to his friends, he was an able general who should never have accepted the presidency. The standard biographies are by Hesselstine and Woodward.

RUTHERFORD BIRCHARD HAYES

was born at Delaware, Ohio, on October 4, 1822. A graduate of Kenyon College and the Harvard Law School, he practiced law in Sandusky and then in Cincinnati, Ohio. In 1852 he married Lucy Webb. A Whig, he joined the Republican party in 1855. During the Civil War he rose to the rank of major general. He served in Congress from 1865 to 1867 and then confirmed a reputation for honesty and efficiency in two terms as governor of Ohio. His re-election as governor in 1875 made him the logical candidate for those Republicans who wished to stop James G. Blaine in 1876, and he was successfully nominated.

The result of the election was for some time in doubt and hinged upon disputed returns from South Carolina, Louisiana, Florida and Oregon. Samuel J. Tilden, the Democratic candidate, had the larger popular vote but was adjudged by the strictly partisan decisions of the Electoral Commission to have one less electoral vote, 185 to 184. The national acceptance of this result was due in part to the general understanding that Hayes would pursue a conciliatory policy toward the South. He withdrew the troops from the South, took a conservative position on financial and labor issues and urged civil service reform.

Hayes served only one term by his own wish and spent the rest of his life in various humanitarian endeavors. He died in Fremont, Ohio, on January 17, 1893. A hard-working, conscientious, sensible man, Hayes represented the best type of Republican of his day. The standard biographies are by Eckenrode and Williams.

JAMES ABRAM GARFIELD,

the last President to be born in a log cabin, was born at Cuyahoga County, Ohio, on November 19, 1831. A Williams graduate, he taught school for a time and entered Republican politics in Ohio. In 1858 he married Lucretia Rudolph. During the Civil War he had a promising career, rising to the rank of major general of volunteers; but in 1863 he was elected to the House of Representatives where he served until 1880. His oratorical and parliamentary abilities soon made him the leading Republican in the House, though his record was marred by his unorthodox acceptance of a fee in the DeGolyer paving contract case and by suspicions of his complicity in the Crédit Mobilier scandal.

In 1880 Garfield was elected to the Senate, but instead became the presidential candidate on the 36th ballot as a result of a deadlock in the Republican convention. He gained 214 electoral votes to 155 for General Winfield Scott Hancock, the Democratic candidate. Garfield's administration was barely under way when he was shot by Charles J. Guiteau, a disappointed office seeker, in July. He died in Elberon, New Jersey, on September 19, 1881. An attractive and eloquent man, he was much beloved in his day.

The standard biographies are by Smith and Caldwell.

CHESTER ALAN ARTHUR

was born at Fairfield, Vermont, on October 5, 1830. A graduate of Union College, he became a successful New York lawyer. In 1859 he married Ellen Herndon. During the Civil War he held administrative jobs in the Republican state administration and in 1871 was appointed collector of the Port of New York by Grant. This post gave him control over considerable patronage; and, though not personally corrupt, Arthur managed his power in the interests of the New York machine so openly that President Hayes in 1877 called for an investigation, and in 1878 Arthur was suspended from his responsibilities.

In 1880 Arthur was nominated for Vice President in the hope of conciliating the followers of Grant and the powerful New York machine. As President on Garfield's assassination, Arthur, stepping out of his familiar role as spoilsman, backed civil service reform, reorganized the cabinet and prosecuted political associates accused of post office graft. Losing machine support and failing to gain the reformers, he was not renominated. He died in New York City on November 18, 1886. A tall, handsome, dignified man with real administrative abilities, he was a better President than his previous record promised. The standard biography is by Howe.

STEPHEN GROVER CLEVELAND

was born at Caldwell, New Jersey, on March 18, 1837. He was admitted to the bar in Buffalo, New York, in 1859 and lived there as a lawyer, with occasional incursions into Democratic politics, for more than twenty years. He did not participate in the Civil War. As mayor of Buffalo in 1881, he carried through a reform program so ably that the Democrats ran him successfully for governor in 1882. In 1884 he won the Democratic nomination for President. The campaign contrasted Cleveland's spotless public career with the uncertain record of James G. Blaine, the Republican candidate, and Cleveland received enough Mugwump (Independent Republican) support to win by 219 to 182 electoral votes.

As President, Cleveland pushed civil service reform, opposed the pension grab and attacked the high tariff rates. While in the White House he married Frances Folsom (1886). Renominated in 1888, Cleveland was defeated by Benjamin Harrison, polling more popular but fewer electoral votes. In 1892 he was re-elected over Harrison, 277 to 145, with 22 votes for James B. Weaver, the Populist candidate. When the Panic of 1893 burst upon the country, Cleveland's attempts to solve it by sound-money measures alienated the free-silver wing of the party, while his tariff policy alienated the protectionists. In 1894 he sent troops to break the Pullman strike. In foreign affairs his firmness caused Great Britain to back down in the Venezuela border dispute.

In his last years Cleveland was an active and much respected public figure. He died in Princeton, New Jersey, on June 24, 1908. An honest, stubborn, high-principled man, Cleveland was an old-fashioned liberal in the nineteenth-century sense who was baffled by the new problems of industrial society. The standard biographies are by Nevins and McElroy.

BENJAMIN HARRISON

was born in North Bend, Ohio, on August 20, 1833, the grandson of William Henry Harrison. A graduate of Miami University, he took up the law in Indiana and became active in Republican politics. In 1853 he married Caroline Lavinia Scott. During the Civil War he rose to the rank of brigadier general. A sound-money Republican, he was elected senator from Indiana in 1880 and in 1888 received the Republican nomination for President on the 8th ballot. Though behind on the popular vote, he won over Grover Cleveland in the electoral college by 233 to 168.

As President, Benjamin Harrison failed to please either the bosses or the reform element in the party. In foreign affairs he backed Secretary of State Blaine whose policy foreshadowed later American imperialism. In 1892 Harrison was renominated, but Cleveland beat him in the election. His wife died in the White House in 1892, and Harrison married her niece, Mary Scott (Lord) Dimmick, in 1896. After his presidency, he resumed law practice. He died in Indianapolis, Indiana, on March 13, 1901. Harrison was an honest man of very medium abilities.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY

was born in Niles, Ohio, on January 29, 1843. A graduate of Allegheny College, he rose from the ranks to become a major in the Civil War. Subsequently he opened a law office in Canton, Ohio, and in 1871 married Ida Saxton. Elected to Congress in 1876, he served there steadily till 1891, except for 1883-85. His faithful advocacy of business interests culminated in the passage of the highly protective McKinley Tariff of 1890. With the support of Mark Hanna, a shrewd Cleveland businessman interested in safeguarding tariff protection, McKinley became governor of Ohio in 1892 and Republican presidential candidate in 1896. The business community, alarmed by the progressivism of William Jennings Bryan, the Democratic candidate, spent considerable money to assure McKinley's victory which was by the margin of 271 to 176 in the electoral college.

The chief event of McKinley's administration was the war with Spain which resulted in our acquisition of the Philippines and other islands. With imperialism as an issue, McKinley defeated Bryan again in the election of 1900 by 292 to 155. On September 6, 1901, he was shot at Buffalo by Leon F. Czolgosz, an anarchist, and he died there on September 14.

The standard biography is by Olcott.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

was born in New York City on October 27, 1858. A Harvard graduate, he was early interested in ranching, in politics and in writing picturesque historical narratives. He was a Republican member of the New York Assembly in 1882-84, an unsuccessful candidate for mayor of New York in 1886, a U. S. Civil Service Commissioner under Harrison, Police Commissioner of New York City in 1895 and Assistant Secretary of the Navy under McKinley in 1897. After exuding a belligerence which helped bring on the war with Spain, he resigned in 1898 to help organize a volunteer regiment named the Rough Riders and take a more direct part in the war. Always publicity-shrewd, he won the New York gubernatorial nomination in 1898 in spite of pronounced lack of enthusiasm on the part of the bosses.

After two years of T.R. in Albany, the New York bosses succeeded in getting him the vice-presidential nomination in 1900.

Roosevelt accepted it with reluctance, feeling that his career had been ruined. As President on McKinley's assassination, he perceived the new popular mood of progressivism and initiated a policy of trust busting, designed to control giant corporations. He also strengthened government powers over interstate commerce and launched a conservation program to save natural resources. In foreign affairs he pursued a truculent policy, permitting the instigation of a revolt in Panamá to dispose of Colombian objections to the Panama Canal and helping to maintain the balance of power in the East by bringing the Russo-Japanese war to an end. In 1904 he decisively defeated Alton B. Parker, his conservative Democratic opponent, by an electoral margin of 336 to 140.

Following his second term he went big-game hunting in Africa and toured Europe. On his return to the United States, his increasing coldness toward Taft led him to overlook his earlier disclaimer of third-term ambitions and to re-enter politics. Defeated by the machine in the Republican convention of 1912, he organized the Progressive party and polled more votes than Taft, though the split brought about the election of Wilson. From 1915 on, Roosevelt strongly favored intervention in the European war. He became deeply embittered at Wilson's refusal to allow him to raise a volunteer division. He died in Oyster Bay, New York, on January 6, 1919. He was married twice: in 1880 to Alice Hathaway Lee, who died in 1884; and in 1886 to Edith Kermit Carow.

The athletic advocate of the strenuous life, with his high voice, prominent teeth and thick glasses, Roosevelt captured the imagination of the American people. He was one of the great personalities of American history. The standard biography is by Pringle.

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT

was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, on September 15, 1857. A Yale graduate, he entered Ohio Republican politics in the eighteen eighties. In 1886 he married Helen Herron. From 1887 to 1890, he served on the Ohio superior court; 1890-92, as solicitor general of the United States; 1892-1900, on the federal circuit court. In 1900 McKinley appointed him president of the Philippine Commission and in 1901 governor general. Taft had great success in pacifying the Filipinos, solving the problem of the church lands, improving economic conditions and establishing limited self-government. His period as Secretary of War 1904-08 further demonstrated his capacity as administrator and conciliator; and he was Roosevelt's hand-picked successor in 1908.

In the election he polled 321 electoral votes to 162 for William Jennings Bryan.

As President, though he carried on many of Roosevelt's policies, Taft got into increasing trouble with the progressive wing of the party and displayed mounting irritability and indecision. After his defeat in 1912, he became professor of constitutional law at Yale. In 1921 he was appointed Chief Justice of the United States. He died in Washington on March 8, 1930. Enormously large, deliberate and good-humored, Taft excelled as an administrator and judge, not as a political leader.

The standard biography is by Pringle.

THOMAS WOODROW WILSON

was born in Staunton, Virginia, on December 28, 1856. A Princeton graduate, he turned from law practice to post-graduate work in political science at Johns Hopkins University, receiving his Ph.D. in 1886. He taught at Bryn Mawr, Wesleyan and Princeton, and in 1902 was made president of Princeton. After an unsuccessful attempt to democratize the social life of Princeton, he welcomed an invitation in 1910 to be the Democratic gubernatorial candidate in New Jersey. His success in fighting the machine and putting through a reform program attracted national attention.

In 1912, after a protracted contest at Baltimore, Wilson won the Democratic nomination on the 46th ballot. In the election he received 435 electoral votes to 88 for Roosevelt and 8 for Taft. During his first term Wilson proceeded under the standard of the New Freedom to enact a program of domestic reform, including the Federal Reserve Act, the Clayton Anti-trust Act, the establishment of the Federal Trade Commission and other measures designed to restore competition in the face of the great monopolies. In foreign affairs, while privately sympathetic with the Allies, he strove to maintain strict neutrality in the European war and warned both sides against encroachments on American interests.

Re-elected in 1916 as a peace candidate, he tried to mediate between the warring nations; but, when the Germans resumed unrestricted submarine warfare in 1917, Wilson brought the United States into what he now believed was a war to make the world safe for democracy. He supplied the classic formulations of Allied war aims; and the armistice of November, 1918, was negotiated on the basis of Wilson's Fourteen Points. In 1919 he strove at Versailles to lay the foundations for enduring peace. He accepted the imperfections of the Versailles Treaty in the expectation that they could be remedied by action within the League of Nations. He probably could have secured ratification of the treaty if he had adopted a more conciliatory attitude toward the mild reservationists; but his insistence on all or nothing eventually caused the diehard isolationists and diehard Wilsonites to unite in rejecting a compromise.

In September, 1919, Wilson suffered a paralytic stroke which limited his future activity. After the presidency he lived on in retirement in Washington, dying February 3, 1924. He was married twice—in 1885 to Ellen Louise Axson, who died in 1914, and in 1915 to Edith Bolling Galt. A man of high principle, inspiring eloquence and great intellectual ability, Wilson was the first leader to fire the imagination of the masses of the world with the vision of world peace. The standard biography is by Baker.

WARREN GAMALIEL HARDING

was born in Morrow County, Ohio, on November 2, 1865. After attending Ohio Central College, Harding became interested in journalism and in 1884 bought the Marion (Ohio) Star. In 1891 he married a wealthy widow, Florence Kling De Wolfe. As his paper prospered, he entered Republican politics, serving as state senator (1899–1903), and as lieutenant governor (1904–06). In 1910 he was defeated for governor but in 1914 was elected to the Senate. His reputation as orator made him keynoter in the 1916 convention.

When the 1920 Republican convention was deadlocked between Leonard Wood and Frank O. Lowden, Harding was made the dark-horse nominee on his solemn affirmation that there was no reason in his past that he should not be. Straddling the League question, Harding was elected easily, with 404 electoral votes to 127 for James M. Cox, his Democratic opponent. His cabinet contained some able men, but also some manifestly unfit for public office. Harding's own intimates were mediocre when they were not corrupt. The impending disclosure of scandals in the Interior and Justice departments and in the Veterans' Bureau, as well as political setbacks, profoundly worried him. On his return from Alaska in 1923, he died suddenly at San Francisco on August 2. A handsome and genial man, indiscriminating in his associates, lacking in political ideas or fortitude, Harding was totally unfitted for the presidency.

JOHN CALVIN COOLIDGE was born in Plymouth, Vermont, on July 4, 1872. An Amherst graduate, he went into law practice at Northampton, Massachusetts, in 1897. He married Grace Anna Goodhue in 1905. He entered Republican state politics, becoming successively mayor of Northampton, state senator, lieutenant governor and, in 1919, governor. His conduct in regard to the Boston police strike in 1919 won him a somewhat undeserved reputation for decisive action and brought him the Republican vice-presidential nomination in 1920. After Harding's death Coolidge handled the Washington scandals with care and finally managed to save the Republican party from public blame for the widespread corruption.

In 1924 Coolidge won re-election without difficulty, getting 382 electoral votes to 136 for the Democrat, John W. Davis, and 13 for Robert M. La Follette running on the Progressive ticket. His second term, like his first, was characterized by a general satisfaction with the existing economic order. He stated that he did not choose to run in 1928.

After his presidency, Coolidge lived quietly in Northampton, writing an unilluminating Autobiography and conducting a syndicated column. He died in Northampton, Massachusetts, on January 5, 1933. His dry, Yankee humor, his frugality and glumness made him a paradoxically popular President in the boom period. The standard biographies are by White and Fuess.

HERBERT CLARK HOOVER

was born at West Branch, Iowa, an August 10, 1874. A Stanford graduate, he worked from 1895 to 1913 as a mining engineer and consultant in North America, Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia. In 1899 he married Lou Henry. During the First World War he served with distinction as chairman of the American Relief Committee in London, as chairman of the Commission for Relief in Belgium and as United States Food Administrator. His political affiliations were still sufficiently indeterminate for him to be mentioned as a possibility for both Republican and Democratic nominations in 1920; but after the election he served both Harding and Coolidge as Secretary of Commerce.

In the election of 1928 Hoover received 444 electoral votes to 87 for Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic candidate. He soon faced the worst depression in the nation's history; but his attacks upon it were hampered by his devotion to the theory that the forces which brought the crisis would soon bring the revival, and then by his belief that in too many areas the federal government had no power to act. In a succession of vetoes he struck down measures proposing a national employment system or national relief; he reduced income tax rates; and only at the end of his term did he yield to popular pressure and set up agencies such as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make emergency loans to assist business.

After his 1932 defeat, Hoover returned to private business. In 1946, President Truman charged him with various world food missions; and from 1947-49, he was head of the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government. In 1953, he became head of the Committee on Government Operations.

FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT

was born in Hyde Park, New York, on January 30, 1882. A Harvard graduate, he attended Columbia Law School and was admitted to the New York bar. In 1910 he was elected to the New York state senate as a Democrat. Re-elected in 1912, he was appointed Assistant Secretary of the Navy by Woodrow Wilson in 1913. In 1920 his radiant personality and his war services resulted in his nomination for Vice President as James M. Cox's running mate. After his defeat, he returned to law practice in New York. In August, 1921, Roosevelt was stricken with infantile paralysis while at Campobello, New Brunswick. After a long and gallant fight against the disease he recovered partial use of his legs. In 1924 and 1928 he led the fight at the Democratic national conventions for the nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York; and in 1928 Roosevelt was himself induced to run for governor of New York. He was elected and was re-elected in 1930.

In 1932 Roosevelt received the Democratic nomination for President and immediately launched a campaign which brought new spirit to a weary and discouraged nation. He won the election over Herbert Hoover by a margin of 472 to 59 in the electoral college. His first term was characterized by an unfolding of the New Deal program, with greater benefits for labor, the farmers and the unemployed, and the progressive estrangement of most of the business community.

At an early stage Roosevelt became aware of the menace to world peace involved in the existence of totalitarian fascism, and from 1937 on he tried to focus public attention on the trend of events in Europe and Asia. As a result he was widely denounced as a warmonger. He was re-elected in 1936 over Alfred M. Landon by the overwhelming electoral margin of 523 to 8; and the gathering international crisis caused him to decide to run again in 1940. He defeated Wendell L. Willkie, 449 to 82.

Roosevelt's program to bring maximum aid to Britain and, after June, 1941, to Russia was opposed, until the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor restored national unity. During the war Roosevelt shelved the New Deal in the interests of conciliating the business community, both in order to get full production during the war and to prepare the way for a united acceptance of the peace settlements after the war. A series of conferences with Winston Churchill and Joseph Stalin laid down the bases for the postwar world. In 1944 he was elected to a fourth term, running against Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

On April 12, 1945, Roosevelt died at Warm Springs, Georgia, shortly after his return from the Yalta Conference. His wife, Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, whom he married in 1905, is a woman of great ability who made significant contributions to her husband's policies. No President has been faced with so many staggering responsibilities, both at home and abroad.

HARRY S. TRUMAN

was born on a farm near Lamar, Missouri, on May 8, 1884. During the First World War he served in France with the 129th Field Artillery. After engaging briefly and unsuccessfully in the haberdashery business in Kansas City, Truman entered local politics. Under the sponsorship of Thomas Pendergast, Democratic boss of Missouri, he held a number of local offices, preserving his personal honesty in the midst of a notoriously corrupt political machine. In 1934 he was elected to the Senate and was re-elected in 1940. During his first term he was a loyal but quiet supporter of the New Deal; but in the course of his second term, an appointment as head of a Senate committee to investigate war production brought out his special qualities of honesty, common sense and hard work, and he won widespread respect.

Elected Vice President in 1944, Truman became President upon Roosevelt's death in 1945 and immediately had to face complex postwar problems, both domestic and foreign. His first attempts did not meet with marked success, and the Republicans won control of Congress in 1946. The next two years were distinguished by the Truman Doctrine, the Marshall Plan and civil-rights proposals; and his general record, highlighted by a vigorous Fair Deal campaign, brought about his unexpected and impressive re-election in 1948.

Truman's second term was primarily concerned with the Cold War with the Soviet Union, the implementing of the North Atlantic Pact, the United Nations police action in Korea, and the vast rearmament program with its accompanying problems of economic stabilization.

On Mar. 29, 1952, Truman announced that he would not run again for the Presidency. He campaigned actively for Adlai E. Stevenson. After Eisenhower's inauguration, Truman returned to his Independence, Missouri, home to write his memoirs covering the period 1935-53. He further busied himself with the organization of the Harry S. Truman Library in Grandview, Missouri.

DWIGHT DAVID EISENHOWER

was born in Denison, Texas, on October 14, 1890. His ancestors lived in Germany, and emigrated to America, settling in Pennsylvania, early in the 18th century. His father, David, had a general store in Hope, Kansas, which failed. After a brief time in Texas, the family moved to Abilene, Kansas, when young Dwight was about a year old.

After graduating from Abilene High School in 1909, Dwight Eisenhower did odd jobs for almost two years. He won an appointment to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, but it turned out that he was too old for admittance. Then he received an appointment in 1910 to West Point. He was graduated as a second lieutenant in 1915.

To his regret, he did not see service in World War I, having been assigned to the 19th Infantry at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. There he met Mamie Geneva Doud, whom he married in Denver on July 1, 1916. Their first son died in infancy. Their second son is Major John Sheldon Doud Eisenhower.

Eisenhower's dearest wish in his Army career was to be given a combat command, but the Army recognized his administrative talents and kept him in staff posts.

A paper he wrote about 1930 attracted the attention of General Douglas MacArthur, then Chief of Staff, who asked that Eisenhower be assigned to his office. When MacArthur went to the Philippines as military adviser in 1935, Eisenhower accompanied him and remained with him until 1939.

General George C. Marshall brought him into the War Department General Staff and, in 1942, put him in command of the Allied invasion of North Africa. In 1944, Eisenhower was made Supreme Allied Commander of the invasion of Europe.

After the war, Eisenhower served as Army Chief of Staff from November 1945 until February 1948, when he was appointed president of Columbia University. His book Crusade in Europe sold more than 800,000 copies and brought him $635,000.

In December 1950, President Truman recalled Eisenhower to active duty to command the North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in Europe. He held this post until the end of May 1952.

In the Republican Convention of July 1952 in Chicago, Eisenhower won the Presidential nomination on the first ballot in a close race with Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio. In November, he won the election, defeating Adlai E. Stevenson by an electoral vote of 442 to 89.

How to Number the Presidents

Is President Eisenhower the 33rd President? Or is he the 34th?

The difficulty started with Grover Cleveland. He became our 22nd President back in 1885. Then came Benjamin Harrison, who was obviously the 23rd President, serving from 1889-93. At this point, Cleveland returned to the White House for a second (but nonconsecutive) term.

Cleveland was still the same man who had been our 22nd President. But in his later term, it would look silly—some folks thought—to continue to call him our 22nd President. That would make the 22nd President follow the 23rd. Numbers should go in order—so ran the argument—and Cleveland should therefore be designated both as the 22nd President in his first term and as the 24th in his second term.

The people who argued the other way found an eloquent spokesman in John Kieran. He said: "Write down the names of all the Presidents, and you will only get 33. If you write Cleveland twice, you'll get 34—but in that case you've got to write Franklin D. Roosevelt's name four times. Until they prove to me that Grover Cleveland was two men, Eisenhower can't be the 34th President."

The Congressional Directory, which must be considered the official final authority, grappled with the problem of numbering the Presidents. Until recent years, it has followed John Kieran's theory: it listed Cleveland as the 22nd President, but not as the 24th. No number was given to his second term. On that reckoning, Harry S. Truman was inaugurated, according to the Congressional Directory, the 32nd President in 1949. Cautiously, the Directory printed: "NOTE: The figures indicate the number of persons who have served as President. . . ."

After the election of President Truman, and before the election of President Eisenhower, the Congressional Directory changed its official mind. In the current issue, Truman is the 33rd President, and Eisenhower is listed as the 34th. (Cleveland has two numbers—22nd and 24th.)

In conformity with officialdom, the Information Please Almanac is now recording the numbers of the Presidents in the same manner as the Congressional Directory. But we can't help thinking of John Kieran's remark: "put the busts of all the Presidents in a row and count them and you'll get 33 and only 33."

U. S. Military Actions Other Than Declared Wars

HAWAII (1893): U. S. Marines, ordered to land by U. S. Minister Stevens, aided the revolutionary Committee of Safety in overthrowing the native government. Stevens then proclaimed Hawaii a U. S. protectorate. Annexation, resisted by the Democratic regime in Washington, was not formally accomplished until 1898.

CHINA (1900): Boxers (a group of Chinese revolutionists) occupied Peking and laid siege to foreign legations. U. S. troops joined an international expedition which relieved the city.

PANAMA (1903): After Colombia had rejected a proposed agreement for relinquishing sovereignty over the Panama Canal Zone, revolution broke out, aided by promoters of the Panama Canal Co. Two U. S. warships were standing by to protect American privileges. The U. S. recognized the Republic of Panama on Nov. 6.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC (1904): When the Dominican Republic failed to meet debts owed to the U. S. and foreign creditors, Theodore Roosevelt declared the U. S. intention of exercising "international police power" in the Western Hemisphere whenever necessary. The U. S. accordingly administered customs and managed debt payments of the Dominican Republic from 1905-07.

NICARAGUA (1911): The possibility of foreign control over Nicaragua's canal route lead to U. S. intervention and agreement. The U. S. landed Marines in Nicaragua (Aug. 14, 1912) to protect American interests there. A small detachment remained until 1933.

MEXICO (1914): Mexican Dictator Huerta, opposed by President Wilson, had the support of European governments. An incident involving unarmed U. S. sailors in Tampico lead to the landing of U. S. forces on Mexican soil. Vera Cruz was bombarded by the Navy to prevent the landing of munitions from a German vessel. At the point of war, both powers agreed to mediation by Argentina, Brazil and Chile. Huerta abdicated, and Carranza succeeded to the presidency.

HAITI (1915): U. S. Marines interposed a military occupation. Haiti signed a treaty making it a virtual protectorate of the U. S. until troops were withdrawn in 1934.

MEXICO (1916): Raids by Pancho Villa cost American lives on both sides of the border. President Carranza consented to a punitive expedition lead by Gen. Pershing, but antagonism grew in Mexico. Wilson withdrew the U. S. force when war with Germany became imminent.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC (1916): Renewed intervention in the Dominican Republic with internal administration by U. S. naval officers lasted until 1924.

It renominated Lincoln for President; for Vice President it nominated Johnson, a War Democrat. Although frequently listed as a Republican Vice President and President, Johnson undoubtedly considered himself strictly a member of the Union party. When that party broke apart after 1868, he returned to the Democratic party. <sup>18</sup> Johnson was not a professed church member; however, he admired the Baptist principles of church government.

U. S. Cabinet Members with Dates of Appointment

Although the Constitution made no provision for a President's advisory group, the heads of the three executive departments (State, Treasury and War) and the Attorney General were organized by Washington into such a group; and by about 1793, the name "Cabinet" was applied to it. With the exception of the Attorney General up to 1870 and the Postmaster General from 1829-72, Cabinet members have been heads of executive departments, although other government officials may be called to sit in whenever necessary.

A Cabinet member is appointed by the President, subject to the confirmation of the Senate; and as his term is not fixed, he may be replaced at any time by the President. At a change in Administration, it is customary for him to tender his resignation, but he remains in office until a successor is appointed.

The table of Cabinet members lists only those members who actually served after being duly commissioned. It does not include ad-interim appointments or cases where the appointee declined the office after appointment.

The dates shown are those of appointment. "Contd" indicates that the term continued from the previous Administration for a substantial amount of time. Those cases where the term continued for only a few days, until a new appointment could be made, are not indicated.

The White House

Source: National Park Service.

The White House, the official residence of the President, is located on Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, D. C. The site covering about 18 acres was selected by President Washington and Pierre Charles L'Enfant, and the architect was James Hoban. The design of the mansion is said to have been suggested by the Duke of Leinster's Palace in Ireland. The cornerstone was laid Oct. 13, 1792, and the first residents were President and Mrs. John Adams in Nov., 1800. The building was fired by the British in 1814, and the sandstone exterior was painted white during the course of reconstruction.

The rooms for public functions are on the first floor; on the second are the President's apartments. The most celebrated public room is the East Room, where formal receptions take place. Other public rooms are the Red Room, the Green Room, and the Blue Room. The State Dining Room is used for formal dinners.

The Executive Office, a three-story structure at the west end of the West Terrace, was added to the original building in 1902 to accommodate the President's office staff, and several additions have since been made. In 1942, a three-story building was erected at the end of the East Terrace, and now serves as the White House main entrance. In 1948, a second-story balcony was added to the White House inside the Ionic pillars of the south portico.

From Nov. 1948 to Mar. 1952, the White House was closed for social engagements and sightseers because of the deterioration of the building and the fear that it might collapse at any time. The walls were retained and strengthened, and the interior was rebuilt. There are now 132 rooms instead of the former 62.

The Liberty Bell

The Liberty Bell was cast in England in 1752 for the Pennsylvania Statehouse (now Independence Hall). Damaged in transit, it was recast in Philadelphia in 1753 when it was inscribed with the words, "Proclaim liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof" (Lev. 25:10). The bell was rung on July 8, 1776, for the first public reading of the Declaration of Independence. Hidden in Allentown during the British occupation of Philadelphia, it was replaced in Independence Hall in 1781 where it remains today. The bell cracked on July 8, 1835, while tolling the death of Chief Justice John Marshall.

The Cairo Conference

Important provisions of the Conference, which was held Nov. 22-26, 1943:

The several military missions have agreed upon future military operations against Japan. The Three Great Allies expressed their resolve to bring unrelenting pressure against their brutal enemies by sea, land, and air. This pressure is already rising.

The Three Great Allies are fighting this war to restrain and punish the aggression of Japan. They covet no gain for themselves and have no thought of territorial expansion. It is their purpose that Japan shall be stripped of all the islands in the Pacific which she has seized or occupied since the beginning of the first World War in 1914, and that all the territories Japan has stolen from the Chinese, such as Manchuria, Formosa, and the Pescadores, shall be restored to the Republic of China. Japan will also be expelled from all other territories which she has taken by violence and greed. The aforesaid Three Great Powers, mindful of the enslavement of the people of Korea, are determined that in due course Korea shall become free and independent.

With these objectives in view the three Allies, in harmony with those of the United Nations at war with Japan, will continue to persevere in the serious and prolonged operations necessary to procure the unconditional surrender of Japan.

The Teheran Conference

(Nov. 28-Dec. 1, 1943)

The President of the United States of America, the Premier of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, have consulted with each other and with the Prime Minister of Iran, desire to declare the mutual agreement of their three Governments regarding relations with Iran.

The Governments of the United States of America, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the United Kingdom recognize the assistance which Iran has given in the prosecution of the war against the common enemy, particularly by facilitating transportation of supplies from overseas to the Soviet Union. The three Governments realize that the war has caused special economic difficulties for Iran and they are agreed that they will continue to make available to the Government of Iran such economic assistance as may be possible, having regard to the heavy demands made upon them by their worldwide military operations and to the worldwide shortage of transport, raw materials and supplies for civilian consumption.

With respect to the post-war period, the Governments of the United States of America, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the United Kingdom are in accord with the Government of Iran that any economic problem confronting Iran at the close of hostilities should receive full consideration along with those of the other members of the United Nations by conferences or international agencies held or created to deal with international economic matters.

The Governments of the United States of America, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the United Kingdom are at one with the Government of Iran in their desire for the maintenance of the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Iran. They count upon the participation of Iran together with all other peace-loving nations in the establishment of international peace, security and prosperity after the war in accordance with the principles of the Atlantic Charter, to which all four governments have continued to subscribe

The Yalta Conference

Important provisions of the Conference, which was held Feb. 4-11, 1945:

The Occupation and Control of Germany

We have a need on common policies and plans for enforcing the unconditional surrender terms which we shall impose together on Nazi Germany after German armed resistance has been finally crushed. These terms will not be made known until the final defeat of Germany has been accomplished. Under the agreed plan, the forces of the three powers will each occupy a separate zone of Germany. Coordinated administration and control has been provided for under the plan through a central Control Commission, consisting of the supreme commanders of the three powers, with headquarters in Berlin. It has been agreed that France should be invited by the three powers, if she should so desire, to take over a zone of occupation, and to participate as a fourth member of the Control Commission. The limits of the French zone will be agreed upon by the four Governments concerned through their representatives on the European Advisory Commission.

It is our inflexible purpose to destroy German militarism and nazism and to ensure that Germany will never again be able to disturb the peace of the world. We are determined to disarm and disband all German armed forces; break up for all time the German General Staff that has repeatedly contrived the resurgence of German militarism; remove or destroy all German military equipment; eliminate or control all German industry that could be used for military production; bring all war criminals to just and swift punishment and exact reparation in kind for the destruction wrought by the Germans; wipe out the Nazi Party, Nazi laws, organizations, and institutions, remove all Nazi and militarist influences from public office and from the cultural and economic life of the German people; and take in harmony such other measures in Germany as may be necessary to the future peace and safety of the world. It is not our purpose to destroy the people of Germany, but only when nazism and militarism have been extirpated will there be hope for a decent life for Germans, and a place for them in the comity of nations.

Terms Under Which Russia Entered the War Against Japan

The leaders of the Three Great Powers—the Soviet Union, the United States of America and Great Britain—have agreed that in two or three months after Germany has surrendered and the war in Europe has terminated the Soviet Union shall enter into the war against Japan on the side of the Allies on condition that:

1. The status quo in Outer Mongolia (The Mongolian People's Republic) shall be preserved;

2. The former rights of Russia violated by the treacherous attack of Japan in 1904 shall be restored, viz.:

- (a) the southern part of Sakhalin as well as all the islands adjacent to it shall be returned to the Soviet Union,

- (b) the commercial port of Dairen shall be internationalized, the preeminent interests of the Soviet Union in this port being safeguarded and the lease of Port Arthur as a naval base of the U.S.S.R. restored,

- (c) the Chinese-Eastern Railroad and the South-Manchurian Railroad which provides an outlet to Dairen shall be jointly operated by the establishment of a joint Soviet-Chinese Company, it being understood that the preeminent interests of the Soviet Union shall be safeguarded and that China shall retain full sovereignty in Manchuria;

3. The Kurile Islands shall be handed over to the Soviet Union.

It is understood, that the agreement concerning Outer Mongolia and the ports and railroads referred to above will require concurrence of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. The President will take measures in order to obtain this concurrence on advice from Marshal Stalin.

The Heads of the Three Great Powers have agreed that these claims of the Soviet Union shall be unquestionably fulfilled after Japan has been defeated.

For its part the Soviet Union expresses its readiness to conclude with the National Government of China a pact of friendship and alliance between the U.S.S.R. and China in order to render assistance to China with its armed forces for the purpose of liberating China from the Japanese yoke.

The Potsdam Declaration

Text of the declaration issued at Potsdam, Germany, July 28, 1945, outlining the terms under which Japan would be allowed to surrender:

1. We, the President of the United States, the President of the national government of the Republic of China and the Prime Minister of Great Britain, representing the hundreds of millions of our countrymen, have conferred and agreed that Japan shall be given the opportunity to end this war.

2. The prodigious land, sea, and air forces of the United States, the British Empire and China, many times reinforced by their armies and air fleets from the west, are poised to strike the final blow at Japan. This military power is sustained and inspired by the determination of all allied nations to prosecute the war against Japan until she ceases to resist.

3. The result of the futile and senseless German resistance to the might of the aroused free peoples of the world stands forth in awful clarity as an example to the people of Japan.

The might that now converges on Japan is immeasurably greater than that which, when applied to the resisting Nazis, necessarily laid waste to the land, the industry, and the method of life of the whole German people.

The full application of our military power, backed by our resolve, will mean the inevitable and complete destruction of the Japanese armed forces and just as inevitably the utter devastation of the Japanese homeland.

4. The time has come for Japan to decide whether she will continue to be controlled by these self-willed militaristic advisers whose unintelligent calculations have brought the empire of Japan to the threshold of annihilation, or whether she will follow the path of reason.

5. The following are our terms: we will not deviate from them; there are no alternatives; we shall brook no delay.

6. There must be eliminated for all time the authority and influence of those who have deceived and misled the people of Japan into embarking on world conquest, for we insist that a new order of peace, security, and justice will be impossible until irresponsible militarism is driven from the world.

7. Until such a new order is established and until there is convincing proof that Japan's war-making power is destroyed, points in Japanese territory to be designated by the Allies shall be occupied to secure the achievement of the basic objectives. We are here setting forth.

8. The terms of the Cairo declaration shall be carried out and Japanese sovereignty shall be limited to the Islands of Honshu, Hokkaido, Kyushu, Shikoku and such minor islands as we determine.

9. Japanese military forces after being completely disarmed shall be permitted to return to their homes with the opportunity to lead peaceful and productive lives.

10. We do not intend that the Japanese shall be enslaved as a race or destroyed as a nation, but stern justice shall be meted out to all war criminals, including those who have visited cruelties upon our prisoners.

The Japanese government shall remove all obstacles to the revival and strengthening of democratic tendencies among the Japanese people. Freedom of speech and religion and of thought, as well as respect for the fundamental human rights, shall be established.

11. Japan shall be permitted to maintain such industries as will sustain her economy and permit the payment of just reparation in kind, but not those industries which will enable her to rearm for war.

To this end, access to, as distinguished from control of, raw materials shall be permitted. Eventual Japanese participation in world trade relations shall be permitted.

12. The occupying forces of the Allies shall be withdrawn from Japan as soon as these objectives have been accomplished and there has been established in accordance with the freely expressed will of the Japanese people a peacefully inclined and responsible government.

13. We call upon the government of Japan to proclaim now the unconditional surrender of all Japanese armed forces, and to provide proper and adequate assurances of their good faith in such action. The alternative for Japan is prompt and utter destruction.

North Atlantic Treaty

Signed at Washington, D.C., April 4, 1949

The Parties to this Treaty reaffirm their faith in the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations and their desire to live in peace with all peoples and all governments.

They are determined to safeguard the freedom, common heritage and civilization of their peoples, founded on the principles of democracy, individual liberty and the rule of law.

They seek to promote stability and well-being in the North Atlantic area.

They are resolved to unite their efforts for collective defense and for the preservation of peace and security.

They therefore agree to this North Atlantic Treaty:

Article 1

The Parties undertake, as set forth in the Charter of the United Nations, to settle any international disputes in which they may be involved by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security, and justice, are not endangered, and to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

Article 2

The Parties will contribute toward the further development of peaceful and friendly international relations by strengthening their free institutions, by bringing about a better understanding of the principles upon which these institutions are founded, and by promoting conditions of stability and well-being. They will seek to eliminate conflict in their international economic policies and will encourage economic collaboration between any or all of them.

Article 3

In order more effectively to achieve the objectives of this Treaty, the Parties, separately and jointly, by means of continuous and effective self-help and mutual aid, will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack.

Article 4

The Parties will consult together whenever, in the opinion of any of them, the territorial integrity, political independence or security of any of the Parties is threatened.

Article 5

The Parties agree that an armed attack against one or more of them in Europe or North America shall be considered an attack against them all; and consequently they agree that, if such an armed attack occurs, each of them, in exercise of the right of individual or collective self-defense recognized by Article 51 of the Charter of the United Nations, will assist the Party or Parties so attacked by taking forthwith, individually and in concert with the other Parties, such action as it deems necessary, including the use of armed force, to restore and maintain the security of the North Atlantic area.

Any such armed attack and all measures taken as a result thereof shall immediately be reported to the Security Council. Such measures shall be terminated when the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to restore and maintain international peace and security.

Article 6

For the purpose of Article 5 an armed attack on one or more of the Parties is deemed to include an armed attack on the territory of any of the Parties in Europe or North America, on the Algerian departments of France, on the occupation forces of any Party in Europe, on the islands under the jurisdiction of any Party in the North Atlantic area north of the Tropic of Cancer or on the vessels or aircraft in this area of any of the Parties.

Article 7

This Treaty does not affect, and shall not be interpreted as affecting, in any way the rights and obligations under the Charter of the Parties which are members of the United Nations, or the primary responsibility of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 8

Each Party declares that none of the international engagements now in force between it and any other of the Parties or any third state is in conflict with the provisions of this Treaty, and undertakes not to enter into any international engagement in conflict with this Treaty.

Article 9

The Parties hereby establish a council, on which each of them shall be represented, to consider matters concerning the implementation of this Treaty. The council shall be so organized as to be able to meet promptly at any time. The council shall set up such subsidiary bodies as may be necessary; in particular it shall establish immediately a defense committee which shall recommend measures for the implementation of Articles 3 and 5.

Article 10

The Parties may, by unanimous agreement, invite any other European state in a position to further the principles of this Treaty and to contribute to the security of the North Atlantic area to accede to this Treaty. Any state so invited may become a party to the Treaty by depositing its instrument of accession with the Government of the United States of America. The Government of the United States of America will inform each of the Parties of the deposit of each such instrument of accession.

Article 11

This Treaty shall be ratified and its provisions carried out by the Parties in accordance with their respective constitutional processes. The instruments of ratification shall be deposited as soon as possible with the Government of the United States of America, which will notify all the other signatories of each deposit. The Treaty shall enter into force between the states which have ratified it as soon as the ratifications of the majority of the signatories, including the ratifications of Belgium, Canada, France, Luxemburg, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom and the United States, have been deposited and shall come into effect with respect to other states on the date of the deposit of their ratifications.

Article 12

After the Treaty has been in force for ten years, or at any time thereafter, the Parties shall, if any of them so requests, consult together for the purpose of reviewing the Treaty, having regard for the factors then affecting peace and security in the North Atlantic area, including the development of universal as well as regional arrangements under the Charter of the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 13

After the Treaty has been in force for twenty years, any Party may cease to be a party one year after its notice of denunciation has been given to the Government of the United States of America, which will inform the Governments of the other Parties of the deposit of each notice of denunciation.

Article 14

This Treaty, of which the English and French texts are equally authentic, shall be deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America. Duly certified copies thereof will be transmitted by that Government to the Governments of the other signatories.

Tripartite Security Treaty

(United States, Australia, New Zealand)

Major provisions of the Tripartite agreement signed on Sept. 1, 1951, at San Francisco:

1. The parties undertake to settle by peaceful means any international disputes in which they may be involved.

2. The parties will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack.

3. The parties will consult together whenever the territorial integrity, political independence or security of any of the parties is threatened in the Pacific.

4. Each party recognizes that an armed attack in the Pacific area on either of the other parties would be dangerous to its own peace and safety.

5. The parties hereby establish a council, consisting of their foreign ministers or their deputies, to consider matters concerning the implementation of this treaty.

6. This treaty shall remain in force indefinitely.

A Defense Treaty similar in its provisions to the Tripartite Security Treaty was signed by the United States and the Philippines in Washington, D. C., Aug 30, 1951.

United States-Japanese Treaty

Main provisions of the U. S.-Japanese Security Treaty signed at San Francisco on Sept. 8, 1951:

1. Japan grants and the U. S. accepts the right to dispose U. S. land, air and sea forces in and about Japan. Such forces may be utilized to contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security in the Far East and to the security of Japan against armed attack from without, including assistance given at the express request of the Japanese government to put down large scale riots and disturbances in Japan caused through instigation or intervention by an outside power or powers.

2. Japan will not grant without the prior consent of the U. S. any bases or any rights, powers or authority whatsoever relating to bases, or the right of garrison or maneuver or transit of ground, air or naval forces of any third power.

3. This treaty shall expire whenever in the opinion of the governments of the U. S. and of Japan, U. N. arrangements or alternate individual or collective dispositions satisfactorily provide for the maintenance of international peace and security in the Japan area.

Japanese Peace Treaty

The Japanese Peace Treaty was signed at San Francisco on September 8, 1951, by 49 nations; the U.S.S.R., Poland and Czechoslovakia were present but refused to sign. Among the major provisions of the treaty are the following:

Peace: The state of war between Japan and the Allies is terminated.

Sovereignty: Japan's full sovereignty is recognized as is its right to apply for U. N. membership.

Territory: Japan recognizes the independence of Korea; renounces all rights, titles or claims to Formosa, the Pescadores, the Kuriles, Sakhalin, the Pacific Islands formerly under mandate to Japan, the Antarctic area, Spratly Island and the Paracels.

Japan agrees to U. N. trusteeship over the Ryukyu and Daito Islands, the Bonins, Rosario Island, the Volcano Islands, Parece Vela and Marcus Island. Disposition of Japanese property on these islands is to be negotiated by Japan and the administering authorities.

Security: Japan agrees to settle its international disputes peaceably, to refrain from the threat of or the use of force and to abide by the principles of the U. N.

All occupation forces are to be withdrawn as soon as possible but not later than 90 days after a majority of the signatory countries have given notice of ratification of this treaty. Nothing in this provision shall, however, prevent the stationing or retention of foreign armed forces in Japanese territory by agreement with one or more of the Allies.

Political-Economic Clauses: Japan may enter into fisheries treaties; may negotiate most-favored-nation trade and maritime treaties with the Allies; renounces all special rights and interests in China.

Japan accepts the judgments of the International Military Tribunal and Allied War Crimes Courts.

Claims and Property: Japan recognizes its responsibility to pay reparations but the Allies recognize its limited economic capacity; therefore, Japan shall pay through goods to be manufactured in Japan from raw materials provided by the victimized nations and by services. The Allies may retain certain properties seized from Japan but require the latter to return their properties within 6 months. Japan recognizes Allied industrial, literary and artistic property rights. It agrees to indemnify prisoners of war who suffered unduly but renounces similar claims against the Allies.

Settlement of Disputes: Any disagreements arising out of the interpretation of this treaty and not otherwise settled shall be submitted to the International Court of Justice.

1. Under the English Flag

The land now comprehended within the United States once belonged to Spain, France, England, Holland and Sweden. Spain, colonizing from Mexico in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, expanded over most of the Gulf Coast, Texas and the border zone westward through California. France, moving down from Canada in the eighteenth century, annexed the Mississippi Valley from the Appalachians to the Rockies. Meanwhile, in the seventeenth century, the English began peopling the Atlantic shore, and finding the Dutch already established in the present New York and the Swedes in Delaware, seized their possessions.

Notwithstanding this varied international background, United States history has been largely the product of influences emanating from the seaboard communities. Unlike the Spanish and French, the English regarded their colonies as genuine extensions of the homeland, and the settlers sowed English customs, institutions and speech so thoroughly that they eventually spread everywhere. True, the transplanted ways underwent modification, but this arose from necessities imposed by a wilderness existence and, as time went on, from a growing sense of self-sufficiency.

Organized settlement began in 1607 at Jamestown, where the first representative assembly was set up in 1619. The Pilgrims followed at Plymouth in 1620, spearheading a much larger migration of Puritans into New England. Later in the century the Quakers occupied a midway region owned by William Penn, making Philadelphia their headquarters and fanning out in every direction. By 1700 all the thirteen colonies existed but the southernmost, Georgia, which came into being in 1733. The settlers crossed the ocean to escape economic, religious and political oppression and to start anew in a land of greater opportunity.

In time, other strains reinforced the original English population: French Huguenots, Scotch Irish, Germans and minor groups, including the Dutch and Swedes already on hand. African slaves, first introduced at Jamestown in 1619, were welcomed in all the colonies, though the economic need for them was greater in the South, and the system took deeper root there than elsewhere. The people in the North engaged mainly in small farming, fishing and commerce, the Southerners largely in plantation production. Everywhere the colonists practiced self-government. When they clashed with the English-appointed governors, the colonists usually won out by withholding appropriations.

As the population penetrated farther inland, the settlers encountered the French guarding Canada and the eastern fringes of the Mississippi Valley. In a succession of wars (1689-1763), paralleling greater struggles between the parent nations abroad, France was finally ejected from North America and Britain's dominion extended to the Mississippi. Spain fell heir to the country west of the river, though some years later Napoleon was temporarily to reclaim it for France.

2. Birth of the Nation

With the removal of the Gallic menace the colonists felt less dependent upon the mother country militarily, and England's change from her former policy of "salutary neglect" aroused active resentment. A series of revenue measures, starting with the Sugar Act of 1764, provoked meetings of protest, nonimportation pacts and mob demonstrations in America. Colonial home rule was at stake, also freedom of trade, and the provincials appealed to the principle: "No taxation without representation." Parliament's action in 1774 penalizing all Massachusetts for the deed of a few in dumping dutied tea into Boston Harbor led to the first armed clash at Concord and Lexington on April 19, 1775; but a year and more passed before the patriots resolved upon the hazardous step of independence. The famous Declaration of July 4, 1776, penned by Thomas Jefferson for the Second Continental Congress, justified revolution as the only means to guarantee the "unalienable Rights" of "Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness." Under George Washington as commander in chief the fighting shifted from New England into the middle states and then into the south. General Gates's victory at Saratoga on October 17, 1777, brought England's ancient enemy, France, into the war; just four years later the British yielded to the Allies at Yorktown. The Peace Treaty in 1783 recognized the United States as stretching to the Mississippi.

The infant, though born and baptized, had yet to be weaned. The league of states, formed under the Articles of Confederation in 1781, proved too weak either to deal effectively with foreign countries, or to raise necessary funds, or to ensure unrestricted domestic trade. Within the states, however, Revolutionary idealism prompted action to forbid primogeniture and tax-supported religions, and the Northern commonwealths abolished slavery, a prohibition which Congress's Ordinance of 1787 extended to the territory north of the Ohio. Feebleness of government, combined with social disturbances culminating in Shay's Rebellion in Massachusetts, made sober men tremble for the sanctity of property rights and seemed to cloud the nation's future. The Federal Convention, summoned in 1787, designed a new framework after much wrangling between rival interests and sections.

The Constitution established a government of three separate and co-ordinate departments—legislative, executive and judicial—each endowed with adequate power, and each to serve as a check and balance on the others. Within its own sphere the general government was supreme, and it exerted its will not through state officials, as under the Articles of Confederation, but immediately upon individuals. Direct popular representation was limited to the House of Representatives, the Senate being chosen by the legislatures (a system which lasted till 1913), the President designated by Electors (who in practice, however, quickly lost their deliberative function), and the Supreme Court appointed by the President and Senate for life. Opposed in many states because of its centralizing and undemocratic features, the Constitution eventually won adoption on the assurance that a bill of rights would be added to preclude federal interference with civil liberties such as freedom of speech, the press and religion. The first ten amendments, in 1791, fulfilled the promise.

Perhaps no convention would have ratified the Constitution if it had been realized that an indivisible Union would ensue. The framers, engaged in the practical task of curing the defects of the Confederation government, strewed phrases through the document that had contradictory implications. On the basis of the text it was possible for equally honest men to maintain that the states were more powerful than the nation, or that the nation overtopped the states. At one time or other nearly every legislature, given what it considered sufficient provocation, asserted the right of nullification or secession. Short of such extreme doctrines, controversy began almost immediately over the question of whether the Constitution should be construed broadly to enhance the national authority or narrowly to lessen it.

Under George Washington, President from 1789 to 1797, the new government became a going concern. Congress, guided by Secretary of the Treasury Alexander Hamilton, buttressed the public credit by arranging to pay at par the national debt and the war-incurred state debts and by creating a United States Bank modeled upon the Bank of England. These measures, especially the last, alarmed Jefferson, veteran liberal and Washington's Secretary of State. Fearing that the legislation would build up a dangerous moneyed class, he urged a strict interpretation of the Constitution in opposition to Hamilton's loose-construction views. The French Revolution widened the breach, for the Jeffersonian Democrats applauded as an upsurge of liberty what the Federalists dreaded as an eruption of chaos. But both men, knowing America's defenseless state, backed Washington's decision to maintain neutrality in France's war with England. Returned to power under John Adams, the Federalists in 1798, however, declared naval hostilities against France and passed the Alien and Sedition Acts to muzzle opposition criticism. Though Adams, defying his party, prevented a full-scale war, he lost the election of 1800 to Jefferson. The Federalists never saw office again.

3. Democracy and Nationalism

The farming interest, which Jefferson deemed the bulwark of free government, had steadily increased since the Revolution. As settlers trekked inland, new states joined the original thirteen: Vermont, Kentucky and Tennessee in the 1790's, with Ohio and others shortly to follow. Western pioneer life begot an intense individualism, fostered political and economic democracy, stimulated nationalism. In the South, by contrast, Eli Whitney's invention of the cotton gin in 1793 opened the way for plantation agriculture and Negro slavery to expand westward beyond the Mississippi. The growth of manufacturing in the Northeast introduced a third element into the scene. The rivalries of these sectional forces wove the principal strands of American history until the Civil War. Toward the mid-century the situation was further confused by the spread of manhood suffrage and a sudden mass immigration from Ireland and Germany.

Jefferson inaugurated the "Virginia Dynasty," his eight years giving way to two terms each of James Madison and James Monroe. He performed his greatest service by purchasing Louisiana from Napoleon in 1803, an act which, though violating his constitutional scruples, carried the flag to the Rockies and vastly enlarged the agricultural domain. With France and England again locked in conflict, depredations on American commerce gave constant provocation to war, but the peace-loving Jefferson applied economic sanctions in the form of an embargo keeping merchantmen at home. Such measures failed, however, and under Madison in 1812 Congress, goaded by the Warhawks, mostly Westerners, declared war on England. Unlike France, she had compounded her offenses by impressing American sailors and, moreover, lay exposed to land attack in Canada. But the assaults on Canada miscarried, and Britain's attempts at counter-invasion with veterans freed by Napoleon's defeat in 1814 fared little better. Unhappily, Andrew Jackson's victory at New Orleans on January 8, 1815, occurred two weeks too late to affect the Peace Treaty of Ghent, which settled none of the prewar disputes.

Nevertheless the war experience greatly accelerated American nationalism. In 1816 Congress enacted the first protective tariff and chartered a new United States Bank on the model of Hamilton's. In 1819 the country acquired the Gulf region from Spain, who chose to sell rather than have it seized. In 1823 the President, prompted by successful revolutions in Latin America, proclaimed the Monroe Doctrine, warning Europe to keep hands off this new area of freedom.

Other events, however, prefigured growing sectional discord. Opposition to admitting Missouri as a slave state was ended in 1820 only by Congress's agreeing that the rest of the Louisiana Purchase north of the parallel marking her southern boundary should be free soil. Successive tariffs alienated Southerners as class legislation discriminating against their welfare. Tutored by the astute South Carolinian, John C. Calhoun, they refurbished the doctrine of state rights as defensive armor. John Quincy Adams's administration (1825-1829) did nothing to improve conditions, and the advent of his successor, Jackson, precipitated a crisis.

Old Hickory, as indomitable in peace as in war, acted boldly against divisive tendencies, whether from the slavocracy or the money power. When South Carolina nullified the Tariff of 1832, he prepared for military action, whereupon the state accepted Congress's olive branch of a lower scale of duties. He smote financial privilege by destroying the Second United States Bank, which wielded monopolistic control over the nation's credit facilities. After eight years Jackson's lieutenant, Martin Van Buren, took over, but a business depression following the Panic of 1837 so discredited his administration that in 1840 the Whigs uproariously elected William Henry Harrison in the famous log-cabin campaign. He died after a month in office, however, and the Whigs fared hardly better with his unintended successor, John Tyler, whose strict-constructionist predilections foiled their plan to establish a third national bank.

Within the free states these years witnessed a ceaseless ferment of humanitarian agitation: crusades for public education, temperance, prison reform, labor's rights, women's rights. Humane people, viewing slavery as an anachronism and a sin, formed organizations to urge its abolition. The moderate-minded, content with demanding its exclusion from the territories, founded a series of unsuccessful parties, beginning with the election of 1840. The South, frightened by these threats to its cherished institution, found little good in any of the movements and regarded the restless North with mounting apprehension.

4. Sectional Conflict

Western expansionist zeal plus the Southern desire for more slave territory elected James K. Polk over his Whig rival, Henry Clay, in 1844. When the outgoing Congress executed the Democratic pledge to annex Texas, Polk proceeded to high-pressure England into partitioning the jointly held Oregon country at the forty-ninth parallel, and in 1846, while that was still under way, contrived a war with Mexico to acquire California and the territory eastward to Texas. American forces quickly overran northern Mexico and California, but a fiercely contested march from Veracruz through the mountains to Mexico City proved necessary before Polk achieved his goal in the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo early in 1848.

The conquests approximately completed the present continental boundaries. The immediate effect, however, was to arouse sectional dissention over the question of slavery in the new Southwest. Zachary Taylor, elected by the Whigs in 1848, died in office after sixteen months, leaving the crisis in the lap of Millard Fillmore. The Compromise of 1850, piloted through Congress by Henry Clay, admitted California as a free state, left slavery in Utah and New Mexico territories to future judicial determination, and disposed of other disputes. But the settlement soon turned into unsettlement, for Fillmore's Democratic successors, Franklin Pierce and James Buchanan, supported pro-Southern policies.

The Kansas-Nebraska Act of 1854, authorizing slavery by "popular sovereignty" in the country just west of Missouri and Iowa, outraged Northerners as a base repudiation of the historic Missouri Compromise. Guerrilla warfare followed in Kansas, while in the free states the old-time antislavery elements joined with dissident Whigs and Democrats to organize the Republican party. The Republicans insisted that slavery be kept out of all federal territories. Angry contests on the floors of Congress operated like a war of nerves, convincing each side that the other was plotting its ruin. John Brown's insane attempt in 1859 to incite a servile insurrection merely poured oil on the flames. When the Republicans in 1860 elected Abraham Lincoln over a divided Democratic opposition, eleven slave states, appealing to state-rights principles, seceded and established the Confederate States of America.

For the hostilities that ensued, the North possessed the long-run advantage of superior economic resources and man power, but before these could come into play, the South hoped to win by military prowess and perhaps by the intervention of England, which needed Southern cotton. England, however, never went quite so far, and the Southern authorities failed also to reckon with the inspired leadership of President Lincoln, who taught his people that the preservation of the Union involved not only their country's future but the democratic hope everywhere. While the North went about establishing a blockade by sea, the Confederates under Robert E. Lee brilliantly repulsed repeated land attacks on their capital, Richmond, and countered with battles on Northern soil at Antietam in 1862 and Gettysburg in 1863. But in the west they steadily lost ground until the Union forces late in 1864 swept around the southern tip of the mountains into Lee's rear and, by a pincers movement with Ulysses S. Grant before Richmond, brought final defeat the following April. As soon as military fortunes favored, Lincoln under his war powers proclaimed the emancipation of slaves in all unconquered states and districts, and the Thirteenth Amendment in 1865 universalized the decree. America at long last had caught up with the preamble of the Declaration of Independence.

Even prior to his re-election in 1864, Lincoln "with malice toward none" announced a plan to ease the return of the Southern states to their former place in the Union; but before much could be accomplished, his assassination in April, 1865, brought into office Andrew Johnson, who shared his views of reconstruction without his gifts of persuasion. Over Johnson's vetoes the radical Republicans adopted a punitive program. They imposed military rule upon the South, impeached and almost ousted the President, and exacted ratification of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments before readmitting the last states in 1870. These amendments were designed to make the freedman a full-fledged citizen and voter. Even so, federal bayonets kept Northern-controlled carpet-bag governments in power for several years more.

5. Business and Government

Already the Republicans were changing from a humanitarian party to one of conservative business. The war gave an immense stimulus to economic life, speeding the construction of railways, the exploitation of minerals and other resources, the development of large-scale manufacturing, the accumulation of wealth, and bringing to the fore great captains of industry and finance, who naturally turned for favors to the dominant party. Despite economic depressions after the Panics of 1873 and 1893, this alliance of business and politics governed the country almost uninterruptedly for the rest of the century, putting successively into office Grant (for eight years), Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield, Chester A. Arthur (for Garfield's unexpired term), Benjamin Harrison and William McKinley (for two terms).

In the Hayes-Tilden election of 1876, however, the Republicans nearly came to grief, partly because of revelations of widespread graft in Grant's second administration, and partly because of disputed electoral returns from the surviving carpetbag states. A special commission, created by Congress, decided for Hayes by a strictly partisan vote. The Democrats actually won eight years later, the voters preferring Grover Cleveland to James G. Blaine, whom they suspected of political corruption. Cleveland, though defeated in 1888, triumphed again in 1892 largely because the Republicans had claimed too much for the beneficence of tariff protection. The Republicans avoided other disasters by harping upon Democratic disloyalty during the Civil War ("waving the bloody shirt") and by catering to the Northern veterans' vote with generous pensions.

Conservative Republicanism met its principal difficulties in Congress, where the Western members, supported usually by Southern Democrats, uneasily resisted capitalistic domination. The Farther West, peopling rapidly after the war, gave a fresh dimension to the nation. Thanks to the attractions of precious minerals, cattle raising and free homesteads, this last frontier yielded steadily to settled communities, and between 1876 and 1896 eight additional states entered the Union. A new sectionalism emerged in politics, for Western needs and aspirations differed at many points from those of the East. The wage earners, too, feared the growing power of Big Business, but despite mounting numbers they lacked political representation and hence concentrated on trade-union methods, forming the American Federation of Labor in 1881. The two depression periods produced violent strikes and upheavals. Labor, however, prevailed upon Congress to place restraints on immigration in order to discourage competition by underpaid workers, especially from Southern and Eastern Europe.

Legislative struggles nearly always pivoted on issues affecting the new industrial order. The problem of greenback inflation, arising from the war, was finally settled to Eastern satisfaction by the Resumption Act of 1875. The drive for higher and yet higher protection succeeded with occasional reverses until the Dingley Tariff in 1897 set a record. Congress under Western pressure took ineffective steps in 1887 and 1890 to regulate railways and business combinations, and it made some early concessions also to the Western demand for free silver. During the Panic of 1893, however, Cleveland induced Congress to stop the inflation; and after the silverites, capturing the Democratic convention in 1896, failed to elect their nominee, William Jennings Bryan, the Republicans reduced silver to a minor coin and committed the country to the gold standard.

Foreign relations reflected similar tendencies, for the expanding industrial system demanded new markets, openings for investment and sources of raw materials. Cleveland withstood imperialistic sentiment, and in 1898 the McKinley administration intervened in the Cuban insurrection under the whip of popular anger at Spanish methods of repression and the explosion of the battleship Maine in Havana Harbor. Spain was quickly routed not only in the West Indies but also in her possessions off Asia. Though the "splendid little war" was prompted less by Wall Street than by a superheated sensational press, it bore fruit in the annexation of Puerto Rico, the Philippines and Guam, and brought businessmen further advantages through the quasi protectorate imposed on Cuba (later extended to other Caribbean countries). About the same time Hawaii and American Samoa were acquired, and Secretary of State John Hay's "open door" policy promised a growing trade with China. Theodore Roosevelt, raised to the presidency by McKinley's assassination in September, 1901, further advanced the cause by abetting a revolution against Colombia, thereby assuring the construction of the Panama Canal and much shorter distances within the colonial empire.

In domestic politics, however, Roosevelt aligned himself with the rising sentiment against business-dominated government, preaching with gusto the doctrine of the "square deal," and in his seven years breaking ground for later and more substantial advances. Despite party reactionaries he put teeth into the enforcement of the Antitrust Act of 1890, bullied Congress into tightening control over railroads and industrial monopolies, and initiated measures for conserving the nation's natural resources. William Howard Taft, his choice as successor, quietly pursued similar policies; but Taft's endorsement of the steep Payne-Aldrich Tariff together with other missteps so embittered the reformers that, failing to prevent his renomination in 1912, they organized the Progressive party to run their idol "Teddy" again. The Democrats, facing a divided opposition, elected their candidate, Woodrow Wilson.

Superbly endowed intellectually, and gifted with Jefferson's power to express democratic aspirations, Wilson proceeded with magisterial authority to climax the earlier efforts at reform. The Underwood Tariff enacted the lowest rates since the Civil War; the Federal Reserve Act superseded an outworn national banking system; and the Clayton Act created the Federal Trade Commission to stop "unfair methods of competition." Two other measures, launched by popular demand during World War I, involved changes in the Constitution. The Eighteenth Amendment in 1920 enacted national prohibition, which ran its stormy course in thirteen years and required the Twenty-first for its undoing. The Nineteenth Amendment (1920) extended to all women the suffrage which in some states they already possessed.

6. World War and After

With America a neutral in 1914 when the European struggle began, the administration's chief energies turned to the protection of maritime rights. Wilson and his countrymen, hating war and traditionally isolationist, only gradually perceived the threat to national security if a militaristic Germany should supplant Britain as mistress of the Atlantic; but Berlin's revival of ruthless submarine operations a few months after Wilson's second election clarified men's minds. Congress, stirred by his appeal that "The world must be made safe for democracy," declared war on April 6, 1917. The government, racing against time, swiftly put the nation on a battle footing, enacting universal conscription, taking over the railways, and regimenting industry, labor and agriculture. It was the country's introduction to total war. In the summer of 1918 Yankee troops under General John J. Pershing helped repulse a great German drive on the Marne and in September shared in the mighty Meuse-Argonne counteroffensive, which ended the struggle on November 11.

At the Paris Peace Conference, Wilson fought stubbornly for the democratic settlement he had earlier outlined under Fourteen Points, but gained principally his proposal of a League of Nations, which he saw as a sort of continuing peace conference. At home the Republican-controlled Senate, whipping up isolationist sentiment, completed his rout, for when Wilson spurned efforts to amend the treaty, that body under the two-thirds requirement rejected it by a minority vote. The tide was turning from wartime idealism to what Warren G. Harding, overwhelmingly elected by the Republicans in 1920, called "normalcy." Disclosures of corruption in high government circles hastened Harding's death, elevating Calvin Coolidge, who renewed his presidency by election a year later and was followed in 1929 by Herbert Hoover. All three, while keeping out of the League, nevertheless co-operated with some of its minor activities and, on their own, concluded a number of collective treaties for temporary naval disarmament and the outlawry of war.

These part-way steps were offset, however, by an upsurge of economic nationalism: a skyward trend of protective duties, a relaxing of controls over giant corporations, and a quota limitation on European immigration. "Rugged individualism" produced the dizzy prosperity the country had ever known, only to collapse in 1929 into the worst depression ever known. Hoover, striving vainly to repair the damage, met abject defeat in 1932 at the hands of the socially minded Franklin D. Roosevelt, who pledged a "new deal" by the Democrats. Under Roosevelt's thrilling leadership Congress, casting precedent to the winds, voted billions for relief, "primed the pump" of business and agriculture to hasten recovery, and inaugurated long-range reforms to increase foreign trade through reciprocal tariff reductions, reorganize banking practices, safeguard trade-union activities, guarantee minimum wages, destroy electrical holding companies, and provide for social insurance and a government-planned development of the Tennessee Valley.

7. World War Again

Toward Latin America Franklin Roosevelt adopted the "good neighbor" policy, relinquishing the Caribbean protectorates and transforming the Monroe Doctrine into a mutual nonaggression pact. As further evidence of the retreat from imperialism, Congress made provision for Philippine freedom in 1946. Relations with other parts of the world, however, posed increasing problems. As the Axis dictators and their Oriental partner, Japan, began overrunning weaker peoples, Congress under isolationist influences directed Roosevelt, against his wish, to embargo munition sales to both victim and assailant; but public opinion forced a lifting of the ban after England and France in September, 1939, took up arms against Nazi aggression. Hitler's subjugation of France the following June emboldened Roosevelt to more active steps, for crippled England now alone defended the Atlantic from totalitarian domination. Congress at his behest voted vast sums for rearmament and adopted peacetime conscription, and Roosevelt, without consulting Congress, gave England fifty destroyers in exchange for a string of naval bases off North America.

Isolationists, mostly Republicans, denounced Roosevelt's "warmongering," while he, still clinging to measures "short of war," stressed insistently the gathering dangers to the American way of life—to freedom of speech, freedom of worship, freedom from want and freedom from fear. The people responded by choosing him in 1940 as their first third-term President. In March, 1941, he secured adoption of the lend-lease plan and soon began using the navy to safeguard the supplies en route.

Before matters reached a crisis, the Japanese war lords, irked by America's stiffening attitude toward their own conquests and gambling upon an Axis victory in Europe, treacherously attacked Pearl Harbor on December 7, clearing the way for the seizure of Guam, the Philippines and two of the Aleutians, as well as many Dutch and British holdings. Within four days Germany and Italy declared war against the United States.

America quickly girded herself for the mightiest struggle in history. Enlarging upon Wilson's wartime methods, the government completely reorganized the national economy for an unparalleled output of arms and food. By summer, sea, land and air forces were attacking the enemy all over the globe. In May, 1943, after bitter fighting, Anglo-American armies expelled the Axis from North Africa, then invaded southern Italy and forced the government's submission in September, though the Nazis there kept up the fight. Landing in Normandy in June, 1944, the Allies under Dwight D. Eisenhower's supreme command battered their way through France and across the Rhine, while the Russians pounded the Nazis from the east. On May 7, 1945, Germany unconditionally surrendered. The Pacific war was no less desperately contested; but the Allies, based on Australia, slowly won control of the sea and, pressing onward from island to island, hastened Japan's unconditional surrender on August 14, 1945, by loosing the atomic bomb and by Soviet Russia's last-minute entry into the conflict.

World War II was at an end, but what would be the nature of the peace? The Atlantic Charter, signed in August, 1941, by Roosevelt and Churchill and later agreed to by all the Allies, pledged them against "aggrandizement, territorial or other," but subsequent conferences by the major powers—at Cairo, Teheran, Yalta, Potsdam and elsewhere—foreshadowed a different outcome. Russia in particular demanded substantial territorial advantages. In July, 1946, the Allies gathered at Paris to draw up terms for Italy and the Axis satellites: Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland. Germany and Japan, under armed occupation, were reserved for later handling.

Without waiting for final military victory, fifty countries, at Roosevelt's initiative and with bipartisan support in America, had set up a successor to the League: the United Nations. Roosevelt, elected a fourth time in 1944, died suddenly on April 12, 1945, several weeks too soon to assist in framing the charter at San Francisco.

His successor, Harry S. Truman, urged a broadened New Deal under the name Fair Deal but met with limited success, partly because of a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats in Congress, partly because of mounting world crises. His tax program, accentuated by growing national-defense requirements, was considerably altered; and his labor program was defeated by the enactment, over his veto, of the Taft-Hartley law. In spite of strong Republican opposition, the rise of a States' Rights Democratic party in the South, and poll predictions of certain defeat, Truman was the people's choice in 1948. The Twenty-second Amendment, ratified during his second administration and limiting Presidents to two terms or ten years, did not apply to him.

Domestic affairs became secondary to increasingly acute world problems involving communism. As more nations came under Soviet domination, the concept of "One World" dimmed. A new policy, designed to contain communism within its existing limits and to prevent its spread by aggression, was evolved. Under this, the United States gave military and economic aid to Greece and Turkey, implemented the Marshall Plan with billions of dollars to speed European recovery and to halt the growth of communism, fostered the regeneration of Western Germany, negotiated the North Atlantic Defense Pact, and assisted Western Europe militarily. When Tito and Yugoslavia broke with the U.S.S.R. and the Cominform, the United States rendered economic aid.

In advancing its policies both before and after these American-sponsored measures, Moscow embarked upon the Cold War. Its blockade of Berlin necessitated the successful Anglo-American Airlift. It backed Communist activities in European countries, nursed rebellions in Asia and sabotaged the United Nations by its use of the veto. A peak of its offensive was reached when it supported North Korea and Red China with arms in their invasion of South Korea. This action caused the United States to co-operate with the United Nations in a massive police action, under General Douglas MacArthur, against the Reds. In spite of Russian opposition, a peace treaty was also concluded with Japan. The Republicans, abandoning the World War II bipartisan foreign policy, attacked the State Department and Secretary Dean Acheson, and seized upon Truman's recall of MacArthur for insubordination as the occasion for a senatorial investigation of Far Eastern policy.

During the tense period of the Cold War, American Communist-party leaders were convicted of conspiring against the United States, and several persons were found guilty of supplying Russia with atom-bomb secrets.

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION of the thirteen united STATES of AMERICA.

WHEN in the Course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed,—That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.—Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their Public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the Legislative Powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the mean time exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

NOTE: On April 12, 1776, the legislature of North Carolina authorized its delegates to the Continental Congress to join with others in a declaration of separation from Great Britain; the first colony to instruct its delegates to take the actual initiative was Virginia on May 15. On June 7, 1776, Richard Henry Lee of Virginia offered a resolution to the Congress to the effect "that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States. . . ." A committee, consisting of Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Robert R. Livingston and Roger Sherman was organized to "prepare a declaration to the effect of the said first resolution." The Declaration of Independence was adopted on July 4, 1776.

Most delegates signed the Declaration August 2, but George Wythe (Va.) signed August 27; Richard Henry Lee (Va.), Elbridge Gerry (Mass.) and Oliver Wolcott (Conn.) in September; Matthew Thornton (N. H.), not a delegate until September, in November; and Thomas McKean (Del.), although present on July 4, not until 1781 by special permission, having served in the army in the interim.

He has endeavoured to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary Powers.

He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil Power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock Trial, from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent:

For depriving us in many cases, of the benefits of Trial by Jury:

For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences:

For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighbouring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies:

For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments:

For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to compleat the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty & Perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have We been wanting in attentions to our Brittish brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.

WE, THEREFORE, the Representatives of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do.—And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

The Statue of Liberty

The Statue of Liberty ("Liberty Enlightening the World") is a 225-ton copper female figure, 152 ft. 5 in. in height, facing the ocean from Bedloe's Island in New York Harbor. The right hand holds aloft a torch, and the left hand carries a tablet upon which is inscribed: "July 4, 1776."

The statue was designed by Frédéric Auguste Bartholdi, at the request of the French government, as a present to the U. S. to commemorate the centennial of American independence. It cost $450,000.

The pedestal, 151 ft. 1 in. in height, was erected by the U. S., and its cost of $350,000 was met by popular subscription in this country. The cornerstone was laid Aug.

5, 1884, and the unveiling of the statue took place Oct. 28, 1886.

On a tablet inside the main entrance of the pedestal is engraved the following sonnet, written by Emma Lazarus:

The New Colossus

Not like the brazen giant of Greek fame,
With conquering limbs astride from land to land;
Here at our sea-washed, sunset gates shall stand
A mighty woman with a torch, whose flame
Is the imprisoned lightning, and her name
Mother of Exiles. From her beacon hand
Glooms world-wide welcome; her mild eyes command
The air-bridged harbor that twin cities frame.
"Keep, ancient lands, your storied pomp!" cries she
With silent lips. "Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore.
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

CONSTITUTION of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

THE oldest federal constitution in existence was framed by a convention of delegates from twelve of the thirteen original states in Philadelphia in May 1787, Rhode Island failing to send a delegate. George Washington presided over the session, which lasted until September 17, 1787. The draft (originally a preamble and seven Articles) was submitted to all thirteen states and was to become effective when ratified by nine states. It went into effect on the first Wednesday in March 1789, having been ratified by New Hampshire, the ninth state to approve, on June 21, 1788. The states ratified the Constitution in the following order:

Delaware	December 7, 1787	South Carolina	May 23, 1788
Pennsylvania	December 12, 1787	New Hampshire	June 21, 1788
New Jersey	December 18, 1787	Virginia	June 25, 1788
Georgia	January 2, 1788	New York	July 26, 1788
Connecticut	January 9, 1788	North Carolina	November 21, 1789
Massachusetts	February 6, 1788	Rhode Island	May 29, 1790
Maryland	April 28, 1788

The Constitution of the United States of America

PREAMBLE.—WE THE PEOPLE of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

ARTICLE I

Section 1

Legislative powers vested in Congress.—All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

Section 2

Composition of the House of Representatives.—1. The House of Representatives shall be composed of Members chosen every second Year by the People of the several States, and the Electors in each State shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature.

Qualifications of Representatives.—2. No Person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the Age of twenty-five Years, and been seven Years a Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.

Apportionment of Representatives and direct taxes—census.*—3. [Representatives and direct Taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective Numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole Number of free Persons, including those bound to Service for a Term of Years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other Persons.] The actual Enumeration shall be made within three Years after the first Meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent Term of ten Years, in such Manner as they shall by Law direct. The Number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty Thousand, but each State shall have at Least one Representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to chuse three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations one, Connecticut five, New York six, New Jersey four, Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, North Carolina five, South Carolina five, and Georgia three.

Filling of vacancies in representation.—4. When vacancies happen in the Representation from any State, the Executive

* The clause included in brackets is amended by the 14th Amendment, Section 2.

Authority thereof shall issue Writs of Election to fill such Vacancies.

Selection of officers; power of impeachment.—5. The House of Representatives shall chuse their Speaker and other Officers; and shall have the sole Power of Impeachment.

Section 3*

The Senate.—[1. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six Years; and each Senator shall have one Vote.]

Classification of Senators; filling of vacancies.—2. Immediately after they shall be assembled in Consequence of the first Election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three Classes. The Seats of the Senators of the first Class shall be vacated at the Expiration of the second Year, of the second Class at the Expiration of the fourth Year, and of the third Class at the Expiration of the sixth Year, so that one-third may be chosen every second Year; and if Vacancies happen by Resignation, or otherwise, during the Recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary Appointments [until the next Meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such Vacancies].

Qualification of Senators.—3. No Person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the Age of thirty Years, and been nine Years a Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.

Vice President to be President of Senate.—4. The Vice President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no Vote, unless they be equally divided.

Selection of Senate officers; President pro tempore.—5. The Senate shall chuse their other Officers, and also a President pro tempore, in the Absence of the Vice President, or when he shall exercise the Office of President of the United States.

Senate to try Impeachments.—6. The Senate shall have the sole Power to try all Impeachments. When sitting for that Purpose, they shall be on Oath or Affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief Justice shall preside: And no Person shall be convicted without the Concurrence of two thirds of the Members present.

Judgment in cases of impeachment.—7. Judgment in Cases of Impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from Office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any Office of honor, Trust, or Profit under the United States: but the Party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to Indictment, Trial, Judgment and Punishment, according to Law.

Section 4

Control of congressional elections.—1. The Times, Places and Manner of holding Elections for Senators and Representatives, shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by Law make or alter such Regulations, except as to the Places of chusing Senators.

Time for assembling of Congress.—2. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every Year, and such Meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by Law appoint a different Day.

Section 5

Each house to be the judge of the election and qualifications of its members; regulations as to quorum.—1. Each House shall be the Judge of the Elections, Returns and Qualifications of its own Members, and a Majority of each shall constitute a Quorum to do Business; but a smaller Number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the Attendance of absent Members, in such Manner, and under such Penalties as each House may provide.

Each house to determine its own rules.—2. Each House may determine the Rules of its Proceedings, punish its Members for disorderly Behaviour, and, with the Concurrence of two thirds, expel a Member.

Journals and yeas and nays.—3. Each House shall keep a Journal of its Proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such Parts as may in their Judgment require Secrecy; and the Yeas and Nays of the Members of either House on any question shall, at the Desire of one fifth of those Present, be entered on the Journal.

Adjournment.—4. Neither House, during the Session of Congress shall, without the Consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other Place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.

Section 6

Compensation and privileges of Members of Congress.—1. The Senators and Representatives shall receive a Compensation for their Services, to be ascertained by Law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. They shall in all Cases, except Treason, Felony and Breach of the

* The 1st paragraph of this section and as much of the 2nd paragraph as relates to filling vacancies are amended by the 17th Amendment.

† Amended by the 20th Amendment, Section 2.

Peace, be privileged from Arrest during their Attendance at the Session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any Speech or Debate in either House, they shall not be questioned in any other Place.

Incompatible offices; exclusions.—2. No Senator or Representative shall, during the Time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil Office under the Authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the Emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no Person holding any Office under the United States, shall be a Member of either House during his Continuance in Office.

Section 7

Revenue bills to originate in House.—1. All Bills for raising Revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives; but the Senate may propose or concur with Amendments as on other Bills.

Manner of passing bills; veto power of President.—2. Every Bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it becomes a Law, be presented to the President of the United States; If he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his Objections to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the Objections at large on their Journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such Reconsideration two thirds of that House shall agree to pass the Bill, it shall be sent, together with the Objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two thirds of that House, it shall become a Law. But in all such Cases the Votes of both Houses shall be determined by Yeas and Nays, and the Names of the Persons voting for and against the Bill shall be entered on the Journal of each House respectively. If any Bill shall not be returned by the President within ten Days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the Same shall be a Law, in like Manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their Adjournment prevent its Return, in which Case it shall not be a Law.

Concurrent orders or resolutions, to be passed by President.—3. Every Order, Resolution, or Vote to which the Concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States; and before the Same shall take Effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the Rules and Limitations prescribed in the Case of a Bill.

Section 8

General powers of Congress.*

The Congress shall have Power.—1. To lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts and Excises, to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;

Borrowing of money.—2. To borrow Money on the credit of the United States;

Regulation of commerce.—3. To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes;

Naturalization and bankruptcy.—4. To establish a uniform Rule of Naturalization, and uniform Laws on the subject of Bankruptcies throughout the United States;

Money, weights and measures.—5. To coin Money, regulate the Value thereof, and of foreign Coin, and fix the Standard of Weights and Measures;

Counterfeiting.—6. To provide for the Punishment of counterfeiting the Securities and current Coin of the United States;

Post offices.—7. To establish Post Offices and post Roads;

Patents and copyrights.—8. To promote the Progress of Science and useful Arts, by securing for limited Times to Authors and Inventors the exclusive Right to their respective Writings and Discoveries;

ARTICLE II

Section 1

The President; the executive power.—1. The executive Power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his Office during the Term of four Years, and, together with the Vice President, chosen for the same Term, be elected, as follows

Appointment and qualifications of presidential electors.—2. Each State shall appoint, in such Manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a Number of Electors, equal to the whole Number of Senators and * See the 16th Amendment.

Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress: but no Senator or Representative, or Person holding an Office of Trust or Profit under the United States, shall be appointed an Elector.

Original method of electing the President and Vice-President.*—[The Electors shall meet in their respective States, and vote by Ballot for two Persons, of whom one at least shall not be an Inhabitant of the same State with themselves. And they shall make a List of all the Persons voted for, and of the Number of Votes for each; which List they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the Seat of the Government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate. The President of the Senate shall, in the Presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the Certificates, and the Votes shall then be counted. The Person having the greatest Number of Votes shall be the President, if such Number be a Majority of the whole Number of Electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such Majority, and have an equal Number of Votes, then the House of Representatives shall immediately chuse by Ballot one of them for President; and if no person have a Majority, then from the five highest on the List the said House shall in like Manner chuse the President. But in chusing the President, the Votes shall be taken by States, the Representation from each State having one Vote; A quorum for this Purpose shall consist of a Member or Members from two thirds of the States, and a Majority of all the States shall be necessary to a Choice. In every Case, after the Choice of the President, the Person having the greatest Number of Votes of the Electors shall be the Vice President. But if there should remain two or more who have equal Votes, the Senate should chuse from them by Ballot the Vice President.]

Congress may determine time of choosing electors and day for casting their votes.—3. The Congress may determine the Time of chusing the Electors, and the Day on which they shall give their Votes; which Day shall be the same throughout the United States.

Qualifications for the office of President.†—4. No Person except a natural born Citizen, or a Citizen of the United States, at the time of the Adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the Office of President; neither shall any Person be eligible to that Office who shall not have attained to the Age of thirty five Years, and been fourteen Years a Resident within the United States.

Filling vacancy in the office of Presi- dent.‡—5. In Case of the Removal of the President from Office, or of his Death, Resignation, or Inability to discharge the Powers and Duties of the said Office, the same shall devolve on the Vice President, and the Congress may by Law provide for the Case of Removal, Death, Resignation or Inability, both of the President and Vice President, declaring what Officer shall then act as President, and such Officer shall act accordingly, until the Disability be removed, or a President shall be elected.

Compensation of the President.—6. The President shall, at stated Times, receive for his Services, a Compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the Period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that Period any other Emolument from the United States, or any of them.

Oath to be taken by the President.—7. Before he enter on the Execution of his Office, he shall take the following Oath or Affirmation:—"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the Office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my Ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Section 2

The President to be commander-in-chief of army and navy and head of executive departments; may grant reprieves and pardons.—1. The President shall be Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, and of the Militia of the several States, when called into the actual Service of the United States; he may require the Opinion, in writing, of the principal Officer in each of the executive Departments, upon any subject relating to the Duties of their respective Offices, and he shall have Power to grant Reprieves and Pardons for Offences against the United States, except in Cases of Impeachment.

President may, with concurrence of Senate, make treaties, appoint ambassadors, etc.; appointment of inferior officers, authority of Congress over.—2. He shall have Power, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, to make Treaties, provided two thirds of the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, shall appoint Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, Judges of the supreme Court, and all other Officers of the United States, whose Appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by Law: but the Congress may by Law vest the Appointment of such inferior Officers, as they think proper, in the President alone, in * This clause has been superseded by the 12th Amendment.

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

(Amendments I to X inclusive, popularly known as the Bill of Rights, were proposed and sent to the states by the first session of the First Congress. They became effective Dec. 15, 1791.)

ARTICLE I

Freedom of religion, speech, of the press, and right of petition.—Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

ARTICLE II

Right of people to bear arms not to be infringed.—A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.

ARTICLE III

Quartering of troops.—No Soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house, without the consent of the Owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV

Persons and houses to be secure from unreasonable searches and seizures.—The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

ARTICLE V

Trials for crimes; just compensation for private property taken for public use.—No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

ARTICLE VI

Civil rights in trials for crimes enumerated.—In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defence.

ARTICLE VII

Civil rights in civil suits.—In Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury, shall be otherwise re-examined in any Court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

ARTICLE VIII

Excessive bail, fines and punishments prohibited.—Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

ARTICLE IX

Reserved rights of people.—The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

ARTICLE X

Powers not delegated, reserved to states and people respectively.—The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

ARTICLE XI

(The proposed amendment was sent to the states Mar. 5, 1794, by the Third Congress. It became effective Jan. 8, 1798.)

Judicial power of United States not to extend to suits against a State.—The Judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by Citizens of another State, or by Citizens or Subjects of any Foreign State.

ARTICLE XII

(The proposed amendment was sent to the states Dec. 12, 1803, by the Eighth Congress. It became effective Sept. 25, 1804.)

Present mode of electing President and Vice-President by electors.*—The Electors shall meet in their respective states, and vote by ballot for President and Vice-President, one of whom, at least, shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as President, and in distinct ballots the person voted for as Vice-President, and they shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as President, and of all persons voted for as Vice-President, and of the number of votes for each, which lists they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate;—The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates and the votes shall then be counted;—The person having the greatest number of votes for President, shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers not exceeding three on the list of those voted for as President, the House of Representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each State having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. And if the House of Representatives shall not choose a President whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the Vice-President shall act as President, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the President.—The person having the greatest number of votes as Vice-President, shall be the Vice-President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list, the Senate shall choose the Vice-President; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of Senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice. But no person constitutionally ineligible to the office of President shall be eligible to that of Vice-President of the United States.

ARTICLE XIII

(The proposed amendment was sent to the states Feb. 1, 1865, by the Thirty-eighth Congress. It became effective Dec. 18, 1865.)

Section 1

Slavery prohibited.—Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

Section 2

Congress given power to enforce this article.—Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

ARTICLE XIV

(The proposed amendment was sent to the states June 16, 1868, by the Thirty-ninth Congress. It became effective July 28, 1868.)

Section 1

Citizenship defined; privileges of citizens.—All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Section 2

Apportionment of Representatives.—Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for President and Vice-President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, the Executive and Judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion, or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

Section 3

Disqualification for office; removal of disability.—No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or elector of President and Vice President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath, as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall * Amended by the 20th Amendment, Sections 3 and 4.

have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

Section 4

Public debt not to be questioned; payment of debts and claims incurred in aid of rebellion forbidden.—The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned. But neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

Section 5

Congress given power to enforce this article.—The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

ARTICLE XV

(The proposed amendment was sent to the states Feb. 27, 1869, by the Fortieth Congress. It became effective Mar. 30, 1870.)

Section 1

Right of certain citizens to vote established.—The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

Section 2

Congress given power to enforce this article.—The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

ARTICLE XVI

(The proposed amendment was sent to the states May 12, 1909, by the Sixty-first Congress. It became effective Feb. 25, 1913.)

Taxes on income; Congress given power to lay and collect.—The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration.

ARTICLE XVII

(The proposed amendment was sent to the states May 16, 1912, by the Sixty-second Congress. It became effective May 31, 1913.)

Election of United States Senators; filling of vacancies; qualifications of electors.

1. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State legislatures.

2. When vacancies happen in the representation of any State in the Senate, the executive authority of such State shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, That the legislature of any State may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointment until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct.

3. This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any Senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution.

ARTICLE XVIII*

(The proposed amendment was sent to the states Dec. 18, 1917, by the Sixty-fifth Congress. It was approved by three-quarters of the states by Jan. 16, 1919, and became effective Jan. 16, 1920.)

Manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors, for beverage purposes, prohibited.—1. After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

Congress and the several States given concurrent power to pass appropriate legislation to enforce this article.—2. The Congress and the several States shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Provisions of article to become operative, when adopted by three-fourths of the States.—3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by Congress.

ARTICLE XIX

(The proposed amendment was sent to the states June 4, 1919, by the Sixty-sixth Congress. It became effective Aug. 26, 1920.)

The right of citizens to vote shall not be denied because of sex.—The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any States on account of sex.

Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

ARTICLE XX

(The proposed amendment, sometimes called the "Lame Duck Amendment," was sent to the states Mar. 3, 1932, by the Seventy-second Congress. It became effective Feb. 6, 1933; but, in accordance with Section 5, Sections 1 and 2 did not go into effect until Oct. 15, 1933.)

* Repealed by the 21st Amendment.

Section 1

Terms of President, Vice-President, Senators and Representatives.—The terms of the President and Vice-President shall end at noon on the twentieth day of January, and the terms of Senators and Representatives at noon on the third day of January, of the years in which such terms would have ended if this article had not been ratified; and the terms of their successors shall then begin.

Section 2

Time of assembling Congress.—The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall begin at noon on the third day of January, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Section 3

Filling vacancy in office of President.—If, at the time fixed for the beginning of the term of the President, the President-elect shall have died, the Vice-President-elect shall become President. If a President shall not have been chosen before the time fixed for the beginning of his term, or if the President-elect shall have failed to qualify, then the Vice-President-elect shall act as President until a President shall have qualified; and the Congress may by law provide for the case wherein neither a President-elect nor a Vice-President-elect shall have qualified, declaring who shall then act as President, or the manner in which one who is to act shall be selected, and such person shall act accordingly until a President or Vice-President shall have qualified.

Section 4

Power of Congress in Presidential succession.—The Congress may by law provide for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the House of Representatives may choose a President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them, and for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the Senate may choose a Vice-President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them.

Section 5

Time of taking effect.—Sections 1 and 2 shall take effect on the 15th day of October following the ratification of this article.

Section 6

Ratification.—This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years from the date of its submission.

ARTICLE XXI

(The proposed amendment was sent to the states Feb. 20, 1933, by the Seventy-second Congress. It became effective Dec. 6, 1933.)

Section 1

Repeal of Prohibition Amendment.—The eighteenth article of amendment to the Constitution of the United States is hereby repealed.

Section 2

Transportation of intoxicating liquors.—The transportation or importation into any State, Territory, or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited.

Section 3

Ratification.—This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by convention in the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission thereof to the States by the Congress.

ARTICLE XXII

(The proposed amendment was sent to the states Mar. 21, 1947, by the Eightieth Congress. It became effective Feb. 26, 1951.)

Section 1

Limit to number of terms a President may serve.—No person shall be elected to the office of the President more than twice, and no person who has held the office of President, or acted as President, for more than two years of a term to which some other person was elected President shall be elected to the office of the President more than once. But this Article shall not apply to any person holding the office of President when this Article was proposed by the Congress, and shall not prevent any person who may be holding the office of President, or acting as President, during the term within which this Article becomes operative from holding the office of President or acting as President during the remainder of such term.

Section 2

Ratification.—This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years from the date of its submission to the States by the Congress.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address

The Battle of Gettysburg, one of the most noted battles of the Civil War, was fought on July 1, 2, and 3, 1863. On November 19, 1863, the field was dedicated as a national cemetery by President Lincoln in a two-minute speech that was to become immortal. At the time of its delivery the speech was relegated to the inside pages of the papers, while a two-hour address by Edward Everett, the leading orator of the time, caught the headlines. The following is the text of the address revised by President Lincoln from his own notes:

FOURSCORE and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting-place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain, that this nation under God shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth.

The Monroe Doctrine

The Monroe Doctrine was announced in President James Monroe's message to Congress, during his second term on December 2, 1823 in part as follows:

"In the discussions to which this interest has given rise, and in the arrangements by which they may terminate, the occasion has been deemed proper for asserting as a principle in which rights and interests of the United States are involved, that the American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintain, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European power. . . . We owe it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence and maintain it, and whose independence we have, on great consideration and on just principles, acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling in any other manner their destiny by any European power in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States."

Minority Presidents

Thirteen candidates have become President of the U. S. with a popular vote less than 50 per cent of the total vote cast. It should be noted, however, that in elections before 1872, presidential electors were not chosen by popular vote in all states. Adams' election in 1824 was by the House of Representatives, which chose him over Jackson, who had a plurality of both electoral and popular votes, but not a majority in the electoral college.

Besides Jackson in 1824, only two other candidates receiving the largest popular vote have failed to gain a majority in the electoral college—Samuel J. Tilden (D) in 1876 and Grover Cleveland (D) in 1888.

The "minority" Presidents follow:

Year	President	Elec- toral	Popular vote
		Pct.	Pct.
1824	John Q. Adams.....	31.8	29.8
1844	James K. Polk (D).....	61.8	49.3
1848	Zachary Taylor (W).....	56.2	47.3
1856	James A. Buchanan (D).....	58.7	45.3
1860	Abraham Lincoln (R).....	59.4	39.9
1876	Rutherford B. Hayes (R).....	50.1	47.9
1880	James A. Garfield (R).....	57.9	48.3
1884	Grover Cleveland (D).....	54.6	48.8
1888	Benjamin Harrison (R).....	58.1	47.8
1892	Grover Cleveland (D).....	62.4	46.0
1912	Woodrow Wilson (D).....	81.9	41.8
1916	Woodrow Wilson (D).....	52.1	49.3
1948	Harry S. Truman (D).....	57.1	49.5

The Mayflower Compact

On September 6, 1620, the Mayflower, a sailing vessel of about 180 tons, started her memorable voyage from Plymouth, England with 100 or 102* pilgrims aboard, bound for Virginia to establish a private permanent colony in North America. Arriving at Provincetown, Mass., on November 11 (November 21, new style calendar), forty-one of the passengers signed the famous "Mayflower Compact" as the boat lay at anchor in that Cape Cod harbor. A small detail of the pilgrims, led by William Bradford, assigned to select a place for permanent settlement landed at what is now Plymouth, Mass., on December 21, N.S.

The text of the compact follows:

IN THE NAME OF GOD, Amen. We, whose names are underwritten, the Loyal Subjects of our dread Sovereign Lord, King James, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &

Having undertaken for the Glory of God, and Advancement of the Christian Faith, and the Honour of our King and Country, a voyage to plant the first colony in the northern Parts of Virginia; do by these Presents, solemnly and mutually in the Presence of God and one of another, covenant and combine ourselves together into a civil Body Politick, for our better Ordering and Preservation, and Furtherance of the Ends aforesaid; And by Virtue hereof to enact, constitute, and frame, such just and equal Laws, Ordinances, Acts, Constitutions and Offices, from time to time, as shall be thought most meet and convenient for the General good of the Colony; unto which we promise all due Submission and Obedience.

In WITNESS whereof we have hereunto subscribed our names at Cape Cod the eleventh of November, in the Reign of our Sovereign Lord, King James of England, France and Ireland, the eighteenth, and of Scotland the fifty-fourth. Anno Domini, 1620

The Early Congresses

At the urging of Massachusetts and Virginia, the First Continental Congress met in Philadelphia on September 5, 1774, and was attended by representatives of all the colonies except Georgia. Patrick Henry of Virginia declared: "The distinctions between Pennsylvanians, New Yorkers and New Englanders are no more. I am not a Virginian but an American." This Congress, which adjourned October 26, 1774, passed intercolonial resolutions calling for extensive boycott by the colonies against British trade.

The following year, most of the delegates from the colonies were chosen by popular election to attend the Second Continental Congress, which assembled in Philadelphia on May 10. As war had already begun between the colonies and England, the chief problems before the Congress were the procuring of military supplies, the establishment of an army and proper defenses, the issuing of continental bills of credit, etc. On June 15, 1775, George Washington was elected to command the Continental army. Congress adjourned Dec. 12, 1776.

Other Continental Congresses were held in Baltimore (1776-77), Philadelphia (1777), Lancaster, Pa. (1777), York, Pa. (1777-78) and Philadelphia (1778-81).

In 1781, the Articles of Confederation, although establishing a league of the thirteen states rather than a strong central government, provided for the continuance of Congress. Known thereafter as the Congress of the Confederation, it held sessions in Philadelphia (1781-83), Princeton, N. J. (1783), Annapolis, Md. (1783-84) and Trenton, N. J. (1784). Five sessions were held in New York City between the years 1785 and 1789.

The Congress of the United States, established by the ratification of the Constitution, held its first meeting on Mar. 4, 1789, in N. Y. C. Several sessions of Congress were held in Philadelphia, and the first meeting in Washington D. C., was on Nov. 17, 1800.

The Star-Spangled Banner

Francis Scott Key, 1814

O say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
 What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming?
 Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro' the perilous fight,
 O'er the ramparts we watch'd, were so gallantly streaming?
 And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
 Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there.
 O say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
 O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

On the shore dimly seen thro' the mists of the deep,
 Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
 What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
 As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?
 Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
 In full glory reflected, now shines on the stream:
 'T is the star-spangled banner: O, long may it wave
 O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

And where is that band who so vauntingly swore
 That the havoc of war and the battle's confusion,
 A home and a country should leave us no more?
 Their blood has wash'd out their foul footsteps' pollution.
 No refuge could save the hireling and slave
 From the terror of flight or the gloom of the grave:
 And the star-spangled banner in triumph doth wave
 O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

O thus be it ever when free-men shall stand
 Between their lov'd home and the war's desolation;
 Blest with vict'ry and peace, may the heav'n-rescued land
 Praise the Pow'r that hath made and preserv'd us a nation!
 Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
 And this be our motto: "In God is our trust!"
 And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
 O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

ON SEPTEMBER 13, 1814, Francis Scott Key visited the British fleet in Chesapeake Bay to secure the release of Dr. William Beanes, who had been captured after the burning of Washington, D. C. The release was secured, but Key was detained on ship overnight during the shelling of Fort McHenry, one of the forts defending Baltimore. In the morning, he was so delighted to see the American flag still flying over the fort that he began a poem to commemorate the occasion. Entitled "The Star-Spangled Banner," the poem soon attained wide popularity as sung to the tune "Anacreon in Heaven." The origin of this tune is obscure, but it may have been written by John Stafford Smith, a British composer born in 1750. "The Star-Spangled Banner" was officially made the National Anthem by Congress in 1931, although already adopted as such by the Army and Navy.

History of the Flag

Source: Encyclopædia Britannica.

THE FIRST OFFICIAL AMERICAN flag, the Continental or Grand Union flag, was displayed on Prospect Hill, Jan. 1, 1776, in the American lines besieging Boston. It had thirteen alternate red and white stripes, with the British Union Jack in the upper left corner.

On June 14, 1777, the Continental Congress adopted the design for a new flag, which actually was the Continental flag with the red cross of St. George and the white cross of St. Andrew replaced on the blue field by thirteen stars, one for each state. No rule was made as to the arrangement of the stars, and while they were usually shown in a circle, there were various other designs. It is uncertain when the new flag was first flown, but its first official announcement is believed to have been on Sept. 3, 1777.

The first public assertion that Betsy Ross made the first Stars and Stripes appeared in a paper read before the Historical Society of Pennsylvania on March 14, 1870, by William J. Canby, a grandson. However, Mr. Canby on later investigation found no official documents of any action by Congress on the flag before June 14, 1777. Betsy Ross' own story, according to her daughter, was that Washington, Robert Morris and George Ross, as representatives of Congress, visited her in Philadelphia in June, 1776, showing her a rough draft of the flag and asking her if she could make one. However, the only actual record of the manufacture of flags by Betsy Ross is a voucher in Harrisburg, Pa., for 14 pounds and some shillings for flags for the Pennsylvania navy.

On Jan. 13, 1794, Congress voted to add two stars and two stripes to the flag in recognition of the admission of Vermont and Kentucky to the Union. By 1818, there were twenty states in the Union, and as it was obvious that the flag would soon become unwieldy, Congress voted April 18 to return to the original thirteen stripes and to indicate the admission of a new state simply by the addition of a star the following July 4. The last two stars were added July 4, 1912, for New Mexico and Arizona.

The first Confederate flag, adopted in 1861 by the Confederate convention in Montgomery, Ala., was called the Stars and Bars; but because of its similarity in colors to the American flag, there was much confusion in the Battle of Bull Run. To remedy this situation, Gen. G. T. Beauregard suggested a battle flag, which was used by the Southern armies throughout the war. The flag consisted of a red field on which was placed a blue cross of St. Andrew separated from the field by a white fillet and adorned with thirteen* white stars for the Confederate states. In May, 1863, at Richmond, an official flag was adopted by the Confederate Congress. This flag was white and twice as long as wide; the union, two-thirds the width of the flag, contained the battle flag designed for Gen. Beauregard. A broad transverse stripe of red was added Feb. 4, 1865, so that the flag might not be mistaken for a signal of truce.

* 11 states formally seceded, and unofficial groups in Kentucky and Missouri adopted ordinances of secession. On this basis, these two states were admitted to the Confederacy, although the official state governments remained in the Union.

Flag Etiquette

(Public Law 829—77th Congress)

JOINT RESOLUTION

To amend Public Law Numbered 623, approved June 22, 1942, entitled "Joint resolution to codify and emphasize existing rules and customs pertaining to the display and use of the flag of the United States of America."

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled, That Public Law Numbered 623, approved June 22, 1942, entitled "Joint resolution to codify and emphasize existing rules and customs pertaining to the display and use of the flag of the United States of America," be, and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

That the following codification of existing rules and customs pertaining to the display and use of the flag of the United States of America be, and it is hereby established for the use of such civilians or civilian groups or organizations as may not be required to conform with regulations promulgated by one or more executive departments of the Government of the United States.

SEC. 2. (a) It is the universal custom to display the flag only from sunrise to sunset on buildings and on stationary flag-staffs in the open. However, the flag may be displayed at night upon special occasions when it is desired to produce a patriotic effect.

(b) The flag should be hoisted briskly and lowered ceremoniously.

(c) The flag should not be displayed on days when the weather is inclement.

(d) The flag should be displayed on all days when the weather permits, especially on New Year's Day, January 1; Inauguration Day, January 20; Lincoln's Birthday, February 12; Washington's Birthday, February 22; Army Day*, April 6; Easter Sunday (variable); Mother's Day, second Sunday in May; Memorial Day (half-staff until noon), May 30; Flag Day, June 14; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, first Monday in September; Constitution Day, September 17; Columbus Day, October 12; Navy Day*, October 27; Armistice Day, November 11†; Thanksgiving Day, fourth Thursday in November; Christmas Day, December 25; such other days as may be proclaimed by the President of the United States; the birthdays of States (dates of admission); and on State holidays.

(e) The flag should be displayed daily, weather permitting, on or near the main administration building of every public institution.

(f) The flag should be displayed in or near every polling place on election days.

(g) The flag should be displayed during school days in or near every schoolhouse.

SEC. 3. That the flag, when carried in a procession with another flag or flags, should be either on the marching right; that is, the flag's own right, or, if there is a line of other flags, in front of the center of that line.

(a) The flag should not be displayed on a float in a parade except from a staff, or as provided in subsection (i).

(b) The flag should not be draped over the hood, top, sides, or back of a vehicle or of a railroad train or a boat. When the flag is displayed on a motorcar, the staff shall be fixed firmly to the chassis or clamped to the radiator cap.

(c) No other flag or pennant should be placed above or, if on the same level, to the right of the flag of the United States of America, except during church services conducted by naval chaplains at sea, when the church pennant may be flown above the flag during church services for the personnel of the Navy.

(d) The flag of the United States of America, when it is displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, should be on the right, the flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

(e) The flag of the United States of America should be at the center and at the highest point of the group when a number of flags of States or localities or pennants of societies are grouped and displayed from staffs.

(f) When flags of States, cities, or localities, or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the flag of the United States, the latter should always be at the peak. When the flags are flown from adjacent staffs, the flag of the United States should be hoisted first and lowered last. No such flag or pennant may be placed above the flag of the United States or to the right of the flag of the United States.

(g) When flags of two or more nations are displayed, they are to be flown from separate staffs of the same height. The flags should be of approximately equal size. International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace.

(h) When the flag of the United States is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony, or front of a building, the union of the flag should be placed at the peak of the staff unless the flag is at half-staff. When the flag is suspended over a sidewalk from a rope extending from a house to a pole at the edge of the sidewalk, the flag should be hoisted out, union first, from the building.

(i) When the flag is displayed otherwise than by being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out, or so suspended that its folds fall as free as though the flag were staffed.

(j) When the flag is displayed over the middle of the street, it should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street.

(k) When used on a speaker's platform, the flag, if displayed flat, should be displayed above and behind the speaker. When displayed from a staff in a church or public auditorium, if it is displayed in the chancel of a church, or on the speaker's platform in a public auditorium, the flag should occupy the position of honor and be placed at the clergyman's or speaker's right as he faces the congregation or audience. Any other flag so displayed in the chancel or on the platform should be placed at the clergyman's or speaker's left as he faces the congregation or audience. But when the flag is displayed from a staff in a church or public auditorium elsewhere than in the chancel or on the platform it shall be placed in the position of honor at the right of the congregation or audience as they face the chancel or platform. Any other flag so displayed should be placed on the left of the congregation or audience as they face the chancel or platform.

(l) The flag should form a distinctive feature of the ceremony of unveiling a statue or monument, but it should never be used as the covering for the statue or monument.

(m) The flag, when flown at half-staff, should be first hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position. The flag should be again raised to the peak before it is lowered for the day. By "half-staff" is meant lowering the flag to one-half the distance between the top and bottom of the staff. Crepe streamers may be affixed to spearheads or flag-staffs in a parade only by order of the President of the United States.

* In 1949, Army Day and Navy Day were abandoned; Armed Forces Day is celebrated the 3rd Saturday of May. † In 1954, changed to Veterans Day.

(n) When the flag is used to cover a casket, it should be so placed that the union is at the head and over the left shoulder. The flag should not be lowered into the grave or allowed to touch the ground.

SEC. 4. That no disrespect should be shown to the flag of the United States of America, the flag should not be dipped to any person or thing. Regimental colors, State flags, and organization or institutional flags are to be dipped as a mark of honor.

(a) The flag should never be displayed with the union down save as a signal of dire distress.

(b) The flag should never touch anything beneath it, such as the ground, the floor, water, or merchandise.

(c) The flag should never be carried flat or horizontally, but always aloft and free.

(d) The flag should never be used as drapery of any sort whatsoever, never festooned, drawn back, nor up, in folds, but always allowed to fall free. Bunting of blue, white, and red, always arranged with the blue above, the white in the middle, and the red below, should be used for covering a speaker's desk, draping the front of a platform, and for decoration in general.

(e) The flag should never be fastened, displayed, used, or stored in such a manner as will permit it to be easily torn, soiled, or damaged in any way.

(f) The flag should never be used as a covering for a ceiling.

(g) The flag should never have placed upon it, nor on any part of it, nor attached to it any mark, insignia, letter, word, figure, design, picture, or drawing of any nature.

(h) The flag should never be used as a receptacle for receiving, holding, carrying, or delivering anything.

(i) The flag should never be used for advertising purposes in any manner whatsoever. It should not be embroidered on such articles as cushions or handkerchiefs and the like, printed or otherwise impressed on paper napkins or boxes or anything that is designed for temporary use and discard; or used as any portion of a costume or athletic uniform. Advertising signs should not be fastened to a staff or halyard from which the flag is flown.

(j) The flag, when it is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning.

SEC. 5. That during the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag or when the flag is passing in a parade or in a review, all persons present should face the flag, stand at attention, and salute. Those present in uniform should render the military salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the headdress with the right hand holding it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Men without hats should salute in the same manner. Aliens should stand at attention. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the flag in the moving column should be rendered at the moment the flag passes.

SEC. 6. That when the national anthem is played and the flag is not displayed, all present should stand and face toward the music. Those in uniform should salute at the first note of the anthem, retaining this position until the last note. All others should stand at attention, men removing the headdress. When the flag is displayed, all present should face the flag and salute.

SEC. 7. That the pledge of allegiance to the flag, "I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, under God,† indivisible, with liberty and justice for all," be rendered by standing with the right hand over the heart. However, civilians will always show full respect to the flag when the pledge is given by merely standing at attention, men removing the headdress. Persons in uniform shall render the military salute.

SEC. 8. Any rule or custom pertaining to the display of the flag of the United States of America, set forth herein, may be altered, modified, or repealed, or additional rules with respect thereto may be prescribed, by the Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, whenever he deems it to be appropriate or desirable; and any such alteration or additional rule shall be set forth in a proclamation.

Approved, December 22, 1942.

The American's Creed*

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

"I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies."

* William Tyler Page, Clerk of the United States House of Representatives, wrote "The American's Creed" in 1917. It was accepted by the House of Representatives on behalf of the American people on April 3, 1918.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Its Major Cases and Actions

by Marcus Duffield

IRAN

Iran presented the first case before the Security Council on Jan. 19, 1946, demanding an end to Russian "interference" in Azerbaijan province, which Russia had brought under its control through a puppet government. Iran also demanded that Russia keep her promise to withdraw all occupation troops by Mar. 2. The Council kept the matter on the agenda. Russia withdrew her troops May 6.

GREECE

On Dec. 3, 1946, Greece complained to the Security Council that Communist-led rebels in northern Greece were being aided by Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia. The Council named an investigating committee, which reported May 23, 1947, that those 3 nations were guilty. A Russian veto of July 29 prevented the Council's acceptance of the report. In Sept. 1948, the U. N. Balkan Commission, which continued to watch developments, again condemned the 3 nations for continuing aid to the Greek rebels. However, 3 months previously, on June 28, 1948, Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia had broken with Moscow. Thereafter, the Greek Communist-led rebellion faded out.

ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL

On Dec. 31, 1946, a U. N. commission of 11 nations recommended the "Baruch plan" sponsored by the U. S. for international control and inspection. Only Russia dissented. In June 1947, she submitted a vastly different control plan, limiting international inspection so greatly that the secret making of atomic bombs could not be discovered. On May 17, 1948, the U. N. commission voted (9-2) to suspend work on international atomic control, blaming Russia for the deadlock. A Russian veto of June 22 prevented the Security Council from approving the majority-approved control plan. The topic then went to the General Assembly, which, on Nov. 4, 1948, adopted (40-6) the U. S.-sponsored plan; but nothing could be done to put it into effect because of Soviet-bloc opposition.

PALESTINE

A General Assembly special session met Apr. 28, 1947, at the request of Great Britain to consider Palestine. An 11-nation investigating committee recommended Aug. 31 that Britain give up control and that an Arab and a Jewish state be established. This partition plan was approved by the Assembly in Nov. 1947, but proved impossible to enforce.

Britain ceased to govern Palestine on May 14, 1948. Israel proclaimed her independence and was attacked by 5 neighboring Arab nations. The U. N. made 6 appeals to both sides to stop the war; the last brought about a truce from June 11 to July 9. Intermittent fighting took place thereafter. Count Folke Bernadotte, the U. N. mediator, was murdered Sept. 17 near Jerusalem. He was succeeded by Dr. Ralph J. Bunche.

Israel signed an armistice with Egypt on Feb. 24, 1949, and with Jordan on Apr. 3. On May 11, the U. N. voted (37-12) to admit Israel as the 59th member.

INDONESIA

On July 30, 1947, Australia called the Security Council's attention to the fighting between the Netherlands and the Indonesian Republic. The Council, on Aug. 1, ordered both sides to cease hostilities. A Good Offices Commission was sent to Indonesia, and it effected a truce Jan. 17, 1948. In Dec. 1948, the Dutch attacked Jokjakarta, then the Indonesian capital, and the Council again issued a cease-fire order. Dutch troops were withdrawn from around Jokjakarta in July 1949. Indonesia thereafter peacefully achieved independence from the Netherlands.

ITALIAN COLONIES

On Sept. 15, 1948, after 3 years of argument, the Big 4 failed to agree on the disposition of the colonies which the peace treaty required Italy to give up. So, by a clause in the treaty, the question was referred to the General Assembly for settlement. The Assembly decided Nov. 21, 1949, that Libya should become independent on Jan. 1, 1952, and that Somaliland should be a U. N. trusteeship under Italian administration for 10 years, after which it would be independent. Eritrea was later federated with Ethiopia.

INDIA-PAKISTAN

On Jan. 2, 1948, India appealed to the U. N. to stop alleged aggression by Pakistan. Fighting had broken out over which nation should control the province of Kashmir. The Security Council sent a commission, which proposed that Kashmir's future be determined by a plebiscite. The Council agreed on Apr. 21, but both sides raised objections. Early in 1949, the U. N. commission succeeded in obtaining a truce; and, on Mar. 14, 1950, the Council substituted a mediator, who was to seek demilitarization of the areas of Kashmir held by India and Pakistan and to try for a plebiscite. Two mediators failed.

MEMBERSHIP

In 1949, 13 nations sought membership in the U. N. The West regarded 5 of them as Russian satellites—Albania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Mongolian People's Republic and Rumania. They failed to get sufficient votes for membership. The West favored membership of the other 8 nations—Austria, Ceylon, Finland, Ireland, Italy, Jordan, Nepal and Portugal. Russia, however, vetoed them all.

On Sept. 18-19, 1952, Russia vetoed Japan and Indo-China as members.

RUSSIAN BOYCOTT

Soviet Delegate Malik walked out of the Security Council on Jan. 13, 1950, because it had refused (6-3) Russia's demand that Nationalist China be replaced in the U. N.

by Communist China. The boycott ended on Aug. 1. Again the Council voted (8-3) to refuse membership to Communist China.

KOREA

Russia occupied the northern half of Korea after World War II, and the U. S. occupied the southern half below the 38th parallel. The understanding was that the occupying powers would set up an independent republic to govern the entire country. Russia refused to co-operate. The U. S. then referred the problem to the U. N., and the General Assembly voted Nov. 5, 1947, to send a commission to Korea to set up a free government. Russia, however, boycotted the commission and refused to allow it to enter North Korea. The commission therefore supervised free elections in South Korea and assisted in setting up the Republic of Korea with its capital at Seoul.

ORGANS OF THE UNITED NATIONS

PRINCIPAL ORGANS AND SUBSIDIARY BODIES

CHARTER OF THE UNITED NATIONS

WE the peoples of the United Nations determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and

To reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small, and

To establish conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, and

To promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom, and for these ends

To practice tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbors, and

To unite our strength to maintain international peace and security, and

To insure, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods, that armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest, and

To employ international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all peoples, have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims.

Accordingly, our respective Governments, through representatives assembled in the city of San Francisco, who have exhibited their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed to the present Charter of the United Nations and do hereby establish an international organization to be known as the United Nations.

CHAPTER I

Purposes and Principles

Article 1

The purposes of the United Nations are:

1. To maintain international peace and security, and to that end: to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace, and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace, and to bring about by peaceful means, and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, adjustment or settlement of international disputes or situations which might lead to a breach of the peace;

2. To develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, and to take other appropriate measures to strengthen universal peace;

3. To achieve international cooperation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural, or humanitarian character, and in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion; and

4. To be a center for harmonizing the actions of nations in the attainment of these common ends.

Article 2

The Organization and its Members, in pursuit of the Purposes stated in Article 1, shall act in accordance with the following Principles:

1. The Organization is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all its Members.

2. All Members, in order to ensure to all of them the rights and benefits resulting from membership, shall fulfill in good faith the obligations assumed by them in accordance with the present Charter.

3. All Members shall settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security, and justice, are not endangered.

4. All Members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the Purposes of the United Nations.

5. All Members shall give the United Nations every assistance in any action it takes in accordance with the present Charter, and shall refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking preventive or enforcement action.

6. The Organization shall ensure that states which are not Members of the United Nations act in accordance with these Principles so far as may be necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security.

7. Nothing contained in the present Charter shall authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state or shall require the Members to submit such matters to settlement under the present Charter; but this principle shall not prejudice the application of enforcement measures under Chapter VII.

CHAPTER II

Membership

Article 3

The original Members of the United Nations shall be the states which, having participated in the United Nations Conference on International Organization at San Francisco, or having previously signed the Declaration by United Nations of January 1, 1942, sign the present Charter and ratify it in accordance with Article 110.

Article 4

1. Membership in the United Nations is open to all other peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the present Charter and, in the judgment of the Organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

2. The admission of any such state to membership in the United Nations will be effected by a decision of the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 5

A Member of the United Nations against which preventive or enforcement action has been taken by the Security Council may be suspended from the exercise of the rights and privileges of membership by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. The exercise of these rights and privileges may be restored by the Security Council.

Article 6

A Member of the United Nations which has persistently violated the Principles contained in the present Charter may be expelled from the Organization by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

CHAPTER III

Organs

Article 7

1. There are established as the principal organs of the United Nations; a General Assembly, a Security Council, an Economic and Social Council, a Trusteeship Council, an International Court of Justice, and a Secretariat.

2. Such subsidiary organs as may be found necessary may be established in accordance with the present Charter.

Article 8

The United Nations shall place no restrictions on the eligibility of men and women to participate in any capacity and under conditions of equality in its principal and subsidiary organs.

CHAPTER IV

The General Assembly Composition

Article 9

1. The General Assembly shall consist of all the members of the United Nations.

2. Each Member shall have not more than five representatives in the General Assembly.

Functions and Powers

Article 10

The General Assembly may discuss any questions or any matters within the scope of the present Charter or relating to the powers and functions of any organs provided for in the present Charter, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations to the Members of the United Nations or to the Security Council or to both on any such questions or matters.

Article 11

1. The General Assembly may consider the general principles of cooperation in the maintenance of international peace and security, including the principles governing disarmament and the regulation of armaments, and may make recommendations with regard to such principles to the Members or to the Security Council or to both.

2. The General Assembly may discuss any questions relating to the maintenance of international peace and security brought before it by any Member of the United Nations, or by the Security Council, or by a state which is not a Member of the United Nations, in accordance with Article 35, paragraph 2, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations with regard to any such question to the state or states concerned or to the Security Council or to both. Any such question on which action is necessary shall be referred to the Security Council by the General Assembly either before or after discussion.

3. The General Assembly may call the attention of the Security Council to situations which are likely to endanger international peace and security.

4. The powers of the General Assembly set forth in this Article shall not limit the general scope of Article 10.

Article 12

1. While the Security Council is exercising in respect of any dispute or situation the functions assigned to it in the present Charter, the General Assembly shall not make any recommendations with regard to that dispute or situation unless the Security Council so requests.

2. The Secretary-General, with the consent of the Security Council, shall notify the General Assembly at each session of any matters relative to the maintenance of international peace and security which are being dealt with by the Security Council and shall similarly notify the General Assembly, or the Members of the United Nations if the General Assembly is not in session, immediately the Security Council ceases to deal with such matters.

Article 13

1. The General Assembly shall initiate studies and make recommendations for the purpose of:

(a) promoting international cooperation in the political field and encouraging the progressive development of international law and its codification;

(b) promoting international cooperation in the economic, social, cultural, educational, and health fields, and assisting in the realization of human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion.

2. The further responsibilities, functions and powers of the General Assembly with respect to matters mentioned in paragraph 1 (b) above are set forth in Chapters IX and X.

Article 14

Subject to the provisions of Article 12, the General Assembly may recommend measures for the peaceful adjustment of any situation, regardless of origin, which it deems likely to impair the general welfare or friendly relations among nations, including situations resulting from a violation of the provisions of the present Charter setting forth the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations.

Article 15

1. The General Assembly shall receive and consider annual and special reports from the Security Council; these reports shall include an account of the measures that the Security Council has decided upon or taken to maintain international peace and security.

2. The General Assembly shall receive and consider reports from the other organs of the United Nations.

Article 16

The General Assembly shall perform such functions with respect to the international trusteeship system as are assigned to it under Chapters XII and XIII, including the approval of the trusteeship agreements for areas not designated as strategic.

Article 17

1. The General Assembly shall consider and approve the budget of the Organization.

2. The expenses of the Organization shall be borne by the Members as apportioned by the General Assembly.

3. The General Assembly shall consider and approve any financial and budgetary arrangements with specialized agencies referred to in Article 57 and shall examine the administrative budgets of such specialized agencies with a view to making recommendations to the agencies concerned.

Voting

Article 18

1. Each member of the General Assembly shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the General Assembly on important questions shall be made by a two-thirds majority of the members present and voting. These questions shall include: recommendations with respect to the maintenance of international peace and security, the election of the non-permanent members of the Security Council, the election of the members of the Economic and Social Council, the election of members of the Trusteeship Council in accordance with paragraph 1 (c) of Article 86, the admission of new Members to the United Nations, the suspension of the rights and privileges of membership, the expulsion of Members, questions relating to the operation of the trusteeship system, and budgetary questions.

3. Decisions on other questions, including the determination of additional categories of questions to be decided by a two-thirds majority, shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Article 19

A Member of the United Nations which is in arrears in the payment of its financial contributions to the Organization shall have no vote in the General Assembly if the amount of its arrears equals or exceeds the amount of the contributions due from it for the preceding two full years. The General Assembly may, nevertheless, permit such a Member to vote if it is satisfied that the failure to pay is due to conditions beyond the control of the Member.

Procedure

Article 20

The General Assembly shall meet in regular annual sessions and in such special sessions as occasion may require. Special sessions shall be convoked by the Secretary-General at the request of the Security Council or of a majority of the Members of the United Nations.

Article 21

The General Assembly shall adopt its own rules of procedure. It shall elect its President for each session.

Article 22

The General Assembly may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions

CHAPTER V

The Security Council
Composition

Article 23

1. The Security Council shall consist of eleven Members of the United Nations. The Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America shall be permanent members of the Security Council. The General Assembly shall elect six other Members of the United Nations to be non-permanent members of the Security Council, due regard being specially paid, in the first instance to the contribution of members of the United Nations to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization, and also to equitable geographical distribution.

2. The non-permanent members of the Security Council shall be elected for a term of two years. In the first election of the non-permanent members, however, three shall be chosen for a term of one year. A retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. Each member of the Security Council shall have one representative.

Functions and Powers

Article 24

1. In order to insure prompt and effective action by the United Nations, its Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security, and agree that in carrying out its duties under this responsibility the Security Council acts on their behalf.

2. In discharging these duties the Security Council shall act in accordance with the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations. The specific powers granted to the Security Council for the discharge of these duties are laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII, and XII.

3. The Security Council shall submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly for its consideration.

Article 25

The Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the present Charter.

Article 26

In order to promote the establishment and maintenance of international peace and security with the least diversion for armaments of the world's human and economic resources, the Security Council shall be responsible for formulating, with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee referred to in Article 47, plans to be submitted to the Members of the United Nations for the establishment of a system for the regulation of armaments.

Voting

Article 27

1. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members.

3. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members including the concurring votes of the permanent members; provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

Procedure

Article 28

1. The Security Council shall be so organized as to be able to function continuously. Each member of the Security Council shall for this purpose be represented at all times at the seat of the Organization.

2. The Security Council shall hold periodic meetings at which each of its members may, if it so desires, be represented by a member of the government or by some other specially designated representative.

3. The Security Council may hold meetings at such places other than the seat of the Organization as in its judgment will best facilitate its work.

Article 29

The Security Council may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions.

Article 30

The Security Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

Article 31

Any Member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council may participate, without vote, in the discussion of any question brought before the Security Council whenever the latter considers that the interests of that Member are specially affected.

Article 32

Any Member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council or any state which is not a Member of the United Nations, if it is a party to a dispute under consideration by the Security Council, shall be invited to participate, without vote, in the discussion relating to the dispute. The Security Council shall lay down such conditions as it deems just for the participation of a state which is not a Member of the United Nations.

CHAPTER VI

Pacific Settlement of Disputes

Article 33

1. The parties to any dispute, the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, shall, first of all, seek a solution by negotiation, enquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement, resort to regional agencies or arrangements, or other peaceful means of their own choice.

2. The Security Council shall, when it deems necessary, call upon the parties to settle their dispute by such means.

Article 34

The Security Council may investigate any dispute, or any situation which might lead to international friction or give rise to a dispute, in order to determine whether the continuance of the dispute or situation is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 35

1. Any Member of the United Nations may bring any dispute, or any situation of the nature referred to in Article 34 to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly.

2. A state which is not a Member of the United Nations may bring to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly any dispute to which it is a party if it accepts in advance, for the purposes of the dispute, the obligations of pacific settlement provided in the present Charter.

3. The proceedings of the General Assembly in respect of matters brought to its attention under this Article will be subject to the provisions of Articles 11 and 12.

Article 36

1. The Security Council may, at any stage of a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 or of a situation of like nature, recommend appropriate procedures or methods of adjustment.

2. The Security Council should take into consideration any procedures for the settlement of the dispute which have already been adopted by the parties.

3. In making recommendations under this Article the Security Council should also take into consideration that legal disputes should as a general rule be referred by the parties to the International Court of Justice in accordance with the provisions of the Statute of the Court.

Article 37

1. Should the parties to a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 fail to settle it by the means indicated in that Article, they shall refer it to the Security Council.

2. If the Security Council deems that the continuance of the dispute is in fact likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, it shall decide whether to take action under Article 36 or to recommend such terms of settlement as it may consider appropriate.

Article 38

Without prejudice to the provisions of Articles 33 to 37, the Security Council may, if all the parties to any dispute so request, make recommendations to the parties with a view to a pacific settlement of the dispute.

CHAPTER VII

Action with Respect to Threats to the Peace, Breaches of the Peace, and Acts of Aggression

Article 39

The Security Council shall determine the existence of any threat to the peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression and shall make recommendations, or decide what measures shall be taken in accordance with Articles 41 and 42, to maintain or restore international peace and security.

Article 40

In order to prevent an aggravation of the situation, the Security Council may, before making the recommendations or deciding upon the measures provided for in Article 39, call upon the parties concerned to comply with such provisional measures as it deems necessary or desirable. Such provisional measures shall be without prejudice to the rights, claims, or position of the parties concerned. The Security Council shall duly take account of failure to comply with such provisional measures.

Article 41

The Security Council may decide what measures not involving the use of armed force are to be employed to give effect to its decisions, and it may call upon the Members of the United Nations to apply such measures. These may include complete or partial interruption of economic relations and of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic, radio, and other means of communication, and the severance of diplomatic relations.

Article 42

Should the Security Council consider that measures provided for in Article 41 would be inadequate or have proved to be inadequate, it may take such action by air, sea, or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security. Such action may include demonstrations, blockade, and other operations by air, sea, or land forces of Members of the United Nations.

Article 43

1. All Members of the United Nations, in order to contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security, undertake to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with a special agreement or agreements, armed forces, assistance, and facilities, including rights of passage, necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

2. Such agreement or agreements shall govern the numbers and types of forces, their degree of readiness and general location, and the nature of the facilities and assistance to be provided.

3. The agreement or agreements shall be negotiated as soon as possible on the initiative of the Security Council. They shall be concluded between the Security Council and Members or between the Security Council and groups of Members and shall be subject to ratification by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

Article 44

When the Security Council has decided to use force it shall, before calling upon a Member not represented on it to provide armed forces in fulfillment of the obligations assumed under Article 43, invite that Member, if the Member so desires, to participate in the decisions of the Security Council concerning the employment of contingents of that Member's armed forces.

Article 45

In order to enable the United Nations to take urgent military measures, Members shall hold immediately available national air-force contingents for combined international enforcement action. The strength and degree of readiness of these contingents and plans for their combined action shall be determined, within the limits laid down in the special agreement or agreements referred to in Article 43, by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

Article 46

Plans for the application of armed force shall be made by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

Article 47

1. There shall be established a Military Staff Committee to advise and assist the Security Council on all questions relating to the Security Council's military requirements for the maintenance of international peace and security, the employment and command of forces placed at its disposal, the regulation of armaments, and possible disarmament.

2. The Military Staff Committee shall consist of the Chiefs of Staff of the permanent members of the Security Council or their representatives. Any Member of the United Nations not permanently represented on the Committee shall be invited by the Committee to be associated with it when the efficient discharge of the Committee's responsibilities requires the participation of that Member in its work.

3. The Military Staff Committee shall be responsible under the Security Council for the strategic direction of any armed forces placed at the disposal of the Security Council. Questions relating to the command of such forces shall be worked out subsequently.

4. The Military Staff Committee, with the authorization of the Security Council and after consultation with appropriate regional agencies, may establish regional subcommittees.

Article 48

1. The action required to carry out the decisions of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security shall be taken by all the Members of the United Nations or by some of them, as the Security Council may determine.

2. Such decisions shall be carried out by the Members of the United Nations directly and through their action in the appropriate international agencies of which they are members.

Article 49

The Members of the United Nations shall join in affording mutual assistance in carrying out the measures decided upon by the Security Council.

Article 50

If preventive or enforcement measures against any state are taken by the Security Council, any other state, whether a Member of the United Nations or not, which finds itself confronted with special economic problems arising from the carrying out of those measures shall have the right to consult the Security Council with regard to a solution of those problems.

Article 51

Nothing in the present Charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs against a Member of the United Nations, until the Security Council has taken measures necessary to maintain international peace and security. Measures taken by Members in the exercise of this right of self-defense shall be immediately reported to the Security Council and shall not in any way affect the authority and responsibility of the Security Council under the present Charter to take at any time such action as it deems necessary in order to maintain or restore international peace and security.

CHAPTER VIII

Regional Arrangements

Article 52

1. Nothing in the present Charter precludes the existence of regional arrangements or agencies for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security as are appropriate for regional action, provided that such arrangements or agencies and their activities are consistent with the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations.

2. The Members of the United Nations entering into such arrangements or constituting such agencies shall make every effort to achieve pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies before referring them to the Security Council.

3. The Security Council shall encourage the development of pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies either on the initiative of the states concerned or by reference from the Security Council.

4. This Article in no way impairs the application of Articles 34 and 35.

Article 53

1. The Security Council shall, where appropriate, utilize such regional arrangements or agencies for enforcement action under its authority. But no enforcement action shall be taken under regional arrangements or by regional agencies without the authorization of the Security Council, with the exception of measures against any enemy state, as defined in paragraph 2 of this Article, provided for pursuant to Article 107 or in regional arrangements directed against renewal of aggressive policy on the part of any such state, until such time as the Organization may, on request of the Governments concerned, be charged with the responsibility for preventing further aggression by such a state.

2. The term enemy state as used in paragraph 1 of this Article applies to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory of the present Charter.

Article 54

The Security Council shall at all times be kept fully informed of activities undertaken or in contemplation under regional arrangements or by regional agencies for the maintenance of international peace and security.

CHAPTER IX

International Economic and Social Cooperation

Article 55

With a view to the creation of conditions of stability and well-being which are necessary for peaceful and friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, the United Nations shall promote:

(a) higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development;

(b) solutions of international economic, social, health, and related problems; and international cultural and educational cooperation; and

(c) universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion.

Article 56

All Members pledge themselves to take joint and separate action in cooperation with the Organization for the achievement of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 57

1. The various specialized agencies, established by intergovernmental agreement and having wide international responsibilities, as defined in their basic instruments, in economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related fields, shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations in accordance with the provisions of Article 63.

2. Such agencies thus brought into relationship with the United Nations are hereinafter referred to as specialized agencies.

Article 58

The Organization shall make recommendations for the coordination of the policies and activities of the specialized agencies.

Article 59

The Organization shall, where appropriate, initiate negotiations among the states concerned for the creation of any new specialized agencies required for the accomplishment of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 60

Responsibility for the discharge of the functions of the Organization set forth in this Chapter shall be vested in the General Assembly and, under the authority of the General Assembly, in the Economic and Social Council, which shall have for this purpose the powers set forth in Chapter X.

CHAPTER X

Economic and Social Council Composition

Article 61

1. The Economic and Social Council shall consist of eighteen Members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly.

2. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 3, six members of the Economic and Social Council shall be elected each year for a term of three years. A retiring member shall be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. At the first election, eighteen members of the Economic and Social Council shall be chosen. The term of office of six members so chosen shall expire at the end of one year, and of six other members at the end of two years, in accordance with arrangements made by the General Assembly.

4. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one representative.

Functions and Powers

Article 62

1. The Economic and Social Council may make or initiate studies and reports with respect to international economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related matters and may make recommendations with respect to any such matters to the General Assembly, to the Members of the United Nations, and to the specialized agencies concerned.

2. It may make recommendations for the purpose of promoting respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all.

3. It may prepare draft conventions for submission to the General Assembly, with respect to matters falling within its competence.

4. It may call, in accordance with the rules prescribed by the United Nations, international conferences on matters falling within its competence.

Article 63

1. The Economic and Social Council may enter into agreements with any of the agencies referred to in Article 57, defining the terms on which the agency concerned shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations. Such agreements shall be subject to approval by the General Assembly.

2. It may coordinate the activities of the specialized agencies through consultation with and recommendations to such agencies and through recommendations to the General Assembly and to the Members of the United Nations.

Article 64

1. The Economic and Social Council may take appropriate steps to obtain regular reports from the specialized agencies. It may make arrangements with the Members of the United Nations and with the specialized agencies to obtain reports on the steps taken to give effect to its own recommendations and to recommendations on matters falling within its competence made by the General Assembly.

2. It may communicate its observations on these reports to the General Assembly.

Article 65

The Economic and Social Council may furnish information to the Security Council and shall assist the Security Council upon its request.

Article 66

1. The Economic and Social Council shall perform such functions as fall within its competence in connection with the carrying out of the recommendations of the General Assembly.

2. It may, with the approval of the General Assembly, perform services at the request of Members of the United Nations and at the request of specialized agencies.

3. It shall perform such other functions as are specified elsewhere in the present Charter or as may be assigned to it by the General Assembly.

Voting

Article 67

1. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Economic and Social Council shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Procedure

Article 68

The Economic and Social Council shall set up commissions in economic and social fields and for the promotion of human rights, and such other commissions as may be required for the performance of its functions.

Article 69

The Economic and Social Council shall invite any Member of the United Nations to participate, without vote, in its deliberations on any matter of particular concern to that Member.

Article 70

The Economic and Social Council may make arrangements for representatives of the specialized agencies to participate, without vote, in its deliberations and in those of the commissions established by it, and for its representatives to participate in the deliberations of the specialized agencies.

Article 71

The Economic and Social Council may make suitable arrangements for consultation with non-governmental organizations which are concerned with matters within its competence. Such arrangements may be made with international organizations and, where appropriate, with national organizations after consultation with the Member of the United Nations concerned.

Article 72

1. The Economic and Social Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

2. The Economic and Social Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members.

CHAPTER XI

Declaration Regarding Non-Self-Governing Territories

Article 73

Members of the United Nations which have or assume responsibilities for the administration of territories whose peoples have not yet attained a full measure of self-government recognize the principle that the interests of the inhabitants of these territories are paramount, and accept as a sacred trust the obligation to promote to the utmost, within the system of international peace and security established by the present Charter, the well-being of the inhabitants of these territories, and, to this end:

(a) to ensure, with due respect for the culture of the peoples concerned, their political, economic, social, and educational advancement, their just treatment, and their protection against abuses;

(b) to develop self-government, to take due account of the political aspirations of the peoples, and to assist them in the progressive development of their free political institutions, according to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and their varying stages of advancement;

(c) to further international peace and security;

(d) to promote constructive measures of development, to encourage research, and to cooperate with one another and, when and where appropriate, with specialized international bodies with a view to the practical achievement of the social, economic and scientific purposes set forth in this Article; and

(e) to transmit regularly to the Secretary-General for information purposes, subject to such limitation as security and constitutional considerations may require, statistical and other information of a technical nature relating to economic, social, and educational conditions in the territories for which they are respectively responsible other than those territories to which Chapters XII and XIII apply.

Article 74

Members of the United Nations also agree that their policy in respect of the territories to which this Chapter applies, no less than in respect of their metropolitan areas, must be based on the general principle of good-neighborliness, due account being taken of the interests and well-being of the rest of the world, in social, economic, and commercial matters.

CHAPTER XII

International Trusteeship System

Article 75

The United Nations shall establish under its authority an international trusteeship system for the administration and supervision of such territories as may be placed thereunder by subsequent individual agreements. These territories are herein-after referred to as trust territories.

Article 76

The basic objectives of the trusteeship system, in accordance with the Purposes of the United Nations laid down in Article 1 of the present Charter, shall be:

(a) to further international peace and security;

(b) to promote the political, economic, social, and educational advancement of the inhabitants of the trust territories, and their progressive development towards self-government or independence as may be appropriate to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned, and as may be provided by the terms of each trusteeship agreement;

(c) to encourage respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion, and to encourage recognition of the interdependence of the peoples of the world; and

(d) to ensure equal treatment in social, economic, and commercial matters for all Members of the United Nations and their nationals, and also equal treatment for the latter in the administration of justice, without prejudice to the attainment of the foregoing objectives and subject to the provisions of Article 80.

Article 77

1. The trusteeship system shall apply to such territories in the following categories as may be placed thereunder by means of trusteeship agreements:

(a) territories now held under mandate;

(b) territories which may be detached from enemy states as a result of the Second World War; and

(c) territories voluntarily placed under the system by states responsible for their administration.

2. It will be a matter for subsequent agreement as to which territories in the foregoing categories will be brought under the trusteeship system and upon what terms.

Article 78

The trusteeship system shall not apply to territories which have become Members of the United Nations, relationship among which shall be based on respect for the principle of sovereign equality.

Article 79

The terms of trusteeship for each territory to be placed under the trusteeship system, including any alteration or amendment, shall be agreed upon by the states directly concerned, including the mandatory power in the case of territories held under mandate by a Member of the United Nations, and shall be approved as provided for in Articles 83 and 85.

Article 80

1. Except as may be agreed upon in individual trusteeship agreements, made under Articles 77, 79, and 81, placing each territory under the trusteeship system, and until such agreements have been concluded, nothing in this Chapter shall be construed in or of itself to alter in any manner the rights whatsoever of any states or any peoples or the terms of existing international instruments to which Members of the United Nations may respectively be parties.

2. Paragraph 1 of this Article shall not be interpreted as giving grounds for delay or postponement of the negotiation and conclusion of agreements for placing mandated and other territories under the trusteeship system as provided for in Article 77.

Article 81

The trusteeship agreement shall in each case include the terms under which the trust territory will be administered and designate the authority which will exercise the administration of the trust territory. Such authority, hereinafter called the administering authority, may be one or more states or the Organization itself.

Article 82

There may be designated, in any trusteeship agreement, a strategic area or areas which may include part or all of the trust territory to which the agreement applies, without prejudice to any special agreement or agreements made under Article 43.

Article 83

1. All functions of the United Nations relating to strategic areas, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the Security Council.

2. The basic objectives set forth in Article 76 shall be applicable to the people of each strategic area.

3. The Security Council shall, subject to the provisions of the trusteeship agreements and without prejudice to security considerations, avail itself of the assistance of the Trusteeship Council to perform those functions of the United Nations under the trusteeship system relating to political, economic, social, and educational matters in the strategic areas.

Article 84

It shall be the duty of the administering authority to ensure that the trust territory shall play its part in the maintenance of international peace and security. To this end the administering authority may make use of volunteer forces, facilities, and assistance from the trust territory in carrying out the obligations towards the Security Council undertaken in this regard by the administering authority, as well as for local defense and the maintenance of law and order within the trust territory.

Article 85

1. The functions of the United Nations with regard to trusteeship agreements for all areas not designated as strategic, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the General Assembly.

2. The Trusteeship Council, operating under the authority of the General Assembly, shall assist the General Assembly in carrying out these functions.

CHAPTER XIII

The Trusteeship Council Composition

Article 86

1. The Trusteeship Council shall consist of the following Members of the United Nations:

(a) those Members administering trust territories;

(b) such of those Members mentioned by name in Article 23 as are not administering trust territories; and

(c) as many other Members elected for three-year terms by the General Assembly as may be necessary to ensure that the total number of members of the Trusteeship Council is equally divided between those Members of the United Nations which administer trust territories and those which do not.

2. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall designate one specially qualified person to represent it therein.

Functions and Powers

Article 87

The General Assembly and, under its authority, the Trusteeship Council, in carrying out their functions, may:

(a) consider reports submitted by the administering authority;

(b) accept petitions and examine them in consultation with the administering authority;

(c) provide for periodic visits to the respective trust territories at times agreed upon with the administering authority; and

(d) take these and other actions in conformity with the terms of the trusteeship agreements.

Article 88

The Trusteeship Council shall formulate a questionnaire on the political, economic, social, and educational advancement of the inhabitants of each trust territory, and the administering authority for each trust territory within the competence of the General Assembly shall make an annual report to the General Assembly upon the basis of such questionnaire.

Voting

Article 89

1. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Trusteeship Council shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Procedure

Article 90

1. The Trusteeship Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

2. The Trusteeship Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members.

Article 91

The Trusteeship Council shall, when appropriate, avail itself of the assistance of the Economic and Social Council and of the specialized agencies in regard to matters with which they are respectively concerned.

CHAPTER XIV

The International Court of Justice

Article 92

The International Court of Justice shall be the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. It shall function in accordance with the annexed Statute, which is based upon the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice and forms an integral part of the present Charter.

Article 93

1. All Members of the United Nations are ipso facto parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice.

2. A state which is not a Member of the United Nations may become a party to the Statute of the International Court of Justice on condition to be determined in each case by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 94

1. Each Member of the United Nations undertakes to comply with the decision of the International Court of Justice in any case to which it is a party.

2. If any party to a case fails to perform the obligations incumbent upon it under a judgment rendered by the Court, the other party may have recourse to the Security Council, which may, if it deems necessary, make recommendations or decide upon measures to be taken to give effect to the judgment.

Article 95

Nothing in the present Charter shall prevent Members of the United Nations from entrusting the solution of their differences to other tribunals by virtue of agreements already in existence or which may be concluded in the future.

Article 96

1. The General Assembly or the Security Council may request the International Court of Justice to give an advisory opinion on any legal question.

2. Other organs of the United Nations and specialized agencies, which may at any time be so authorized by the General Assembly, may also request advisory opinions of the Court on legal questions arising within the scope of their activities.

CHAPTER XV

The Secretariat

Article 97

The Secretariat shall comprise a Secretary-General and such staff as the Organization may require. The Secretary-General shall be appointed by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. He shall be the chief administrative officer of the Organization.

Article 98

The Secretary-General shall act in that capacity in all meetings of the General Assembly, of the Security Council, of the Economic and Social Council, and of the Trusteeship Council, and shall perform such other functions as are entrusted to him by these organs. The Secretary-General shall make an annual report to the General Assembly on the work of the Organization.

Article 99

The Secretary-General may bring to the attention of the Security Council any matter which in his opinion may threaten the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 100

1. In the performance of their duties the Secretary-General and the staff shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or from any other authority external to the Organization. They shall refrain from any action which might reflect on their position as international officials responsible only to the Organization.

2. Each Member of the United Nations undertakes to respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the Secretary-General and the staff and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities.

Article 101

1. The staff shall be appointed by the Secretary-General under regulations established by the General Assembly.

2. Appropriate staffs shall be permanently assigned to the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, and, as required, to other organs of the United Nations. These staffs shall form a part of the Secretariat.

3. The paramount consideration in the employment of the staff and in the determination of the conditions of service shall be the necessity of securing the highest standards of efficiency, competence, and integrity. Due regard shall be paid to the importance of recruiting the staff on as wide a geographical basis as possible.

CHAPTER XVI

Miscellaneous Provisions

Article 102

1. Every treaty and every international agreement entered into by any Member of the United Nations after the present Charter comes into force shall as soon as possible be registered with the Secretariat and published by it.

2. No party to any such treaty or international agreement which has not been registered in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article may invoke that treaty or agreement before any organ of the United Nations.

Article 103

In the event of a conflict between the obligations of the Members of the United Nations under the present Charter and their obligations under any other international agreement, their obligations under the present Charter shall prevail.

Article 104

The Organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its Members such legal capacity as may be necessary for the exercise of its functions and the fulfillment of its purposes.

Article 105

1. The Organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its Members such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the fulfillment of its purposes.

2. Representatives of the Members of the United Nations and officials of the Organization shall similarly enjoy such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the independent exercise of their functions in connection with the Organization.

3. The General Assembly may make recommendations with a view to determining the details of the application of paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article or may propose conventions to the Members of the United Nations for this purpose.

CHAPTER XVII

Transitional Security Arrangements

Article 106

Pending the coming into force of such special agreements referred to in Article 43 as in the opinion of the Security Council enable it to begin the exercise of its responsibilities under Article 42, the parties to the Four-Nation Declaration, signed at Moscow, October 30, 1943, and France, shall, in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 5 of that Declaration, consult with one another and, as occasion requires with other Members of the United Nations with a view to such joint action on behalf of the Organization as may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

Article 107

Nothing in the present Charter shall invalidate or preclude action, in relation to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory to the present Charter, taken or authorized as a result of that war by the Governments having responsibility for such action.

CHAPTER XVIII

Amendments

Article 108

Amendments to the present Charter shall come into force for all Members of the United Nations when they have been adopted by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

Article 109

1. A General Conference of the Members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present Charter may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council. Each Member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the conference.

2. Any alteration of the present Charter recommended by a two-thirds vote of the conference shall take effect when ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the Members of the United Nations including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

3. If such a conference has not been held before the tenth annual session of the General Assembly following the coming into force of the present Charter, the proposal to call such a conference shall be placed on the agenda of that session of the General Assembly, and the conference shall be held if so decided by a majority vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council.

CHAPTER XIX

Ratification and Signature

Article 110

1. The present Charter shall be ratified by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

2. The ratifications shall be deposited with the Government of the United States of America, which shall notify all the signatory states of each deposit as well as the Secretary-General of the Organization when he has been appointed.

3. The present Charter shall come into force upon the deposit of ratifications by the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America, and by a majority of the other signatory states. A protocol of the ratifications deposited shall thereupon be drawn up by the Government of the United States of America which shall communicate copies thereof to all the signatory states.

4. The states signatory to the present Charter which ratify it after it has come into force will become original Members of the United Nations on the date of the deposit of their respective ratifications.

Article 111

The present Charter, of which the Chinese, French, Russian, English, and Spanish texts are equally authentic, shall remain deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America. Duly certified copies thereof shall be transmitted by that Government to the Governments of the other signatory states.

IN FAITH WHEREOF the representatives of the Governments of the United Nations have signed the present Charter.

DONE at the city of San Francisco the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and forty-five.

A Quick Look Backward

Memories of a Generation

Just for the sake of contrast with what was to come later, let's take a quick look at that fabulous era—the late 1920s.

It was an era of champions. That young man Lindbergh must be crazy, we thought, when he took off to fly the Atlantic alone. But what a thrill went around the world when The Spirit of St. Louis circled into the searchlights of Paris!

There were sports champs we'll never forget. Remember how surprised we were when Gene Tunney—later to become a Shakespearean scholar—knocked the mighty Jack Dempsey off his throne? And all the hoopla when Gertrude Ederle swam the English Channel? Bobby Jones ruled the golf links here and abroad, Big Bill Tilden ruled the tennis courts and Babe Ruth was crowned Sultan of Swat.

Speaking of golf, what ever became of those miniature courses that in the late 20s messed up the landscape from one end of the land to the other? And who plays mah-jongg any more?

There were champs even in the underworld. Al Capone finally got behind the bars, but only on an income-tax charge. And Outlaw John Dillinger was so famous they put songs about him on phonograph records.

Of course, that wondrous thing known as the Noble Experiment helped the underworld to prosper. And millions of us became lawbreakers, mixing dreadful concoctions out of raw alcohol and flavoring drops. Dress suits had big pockets in the tails to accommodate hip flasks.

Radio was just coming into its own in a big way. Sales shot up from $425 million in 1927 to $842 million in 1929. In the bookstores, the American Babbitt was paying out good money for books that kidded the daylights out of him—books by such great champions of yesteryear as Sinclair Lewis, H. L. Mencken and F. Scott Fitzgerald.

Wasn't Everybody Happy?

Oh, were we a Good-Time Charley nation! And why not? Everybody was going to get rich. Just buy a lot in Florida, hold it a week, and sell it for twice as much. Simple! Or, get in on the Stock Exchange bonanza. Blindfold yourself and pick a stock—any stock—in the spring of 1928, and watch the profits roll in. By the autumn of 1929 you had doubled your money, or tripled it, and in some cases quintupled it.

Paper profits, of course. And you had bought the stocks on margin, of course. But what matter? Prosperity was here forever. Two chickens in every pot. Two cars in every garage. Everybody felt great. Fantastic era. Crazy era.

Came the 24th day of October, 1929. An era blew up in our faces.

Just as the boom had been the champion of all time, so was the crash. Prosperity, instead of being permanent, was soon to be described as "just around the corner." And that prediction was a champion in its way; few have been worse.

The long queues that used to form at movie theaters vanished—and reappeared at banks. Get your money out before it folded! Wall Street brokers were jumping out of 37th-story windows. Apple-sellers were standing despondently on the street corners. Even our songs reflected the misery: "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?"

The New Deal

Panic lay heavy on the land when Franklin Delano Roosevelt took office.

"The only thing we have to fear is fear itself," the new President told the nation.

Then came an alphabetical torrent of governmental agencies to try to pull us up by the bootstraps. Can you remember now what these initials stood for: NRA, CCC, WPA, PWA?

Things happened fast. First we got 3.2 beer . . . we recognized Soviet Russia . . . the end of prohibition put the rumrunners out of business.

In this early Roosevelt era, we went to see a movie called It Happened One Night, and we read a novel named Lamb in His Bosom. We became enthralled by the greatest crime story of the century—the trial and execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the kidnaping and murder of Charles A. Lindbergh's son.

A pleasanter fascination was the birth of quintuplets to the Dionnes in Canada. Those 5 little girls stared at us from Scripps-Howard newspapers and breakfast-food boxes until, eventually, their novelty wore off and we quietly forgot about them.

While we were absorbed in our Depression troubles, we but dimly realized how sinister were the storm clouds building up in the rest of the world. Grim dress rehearsals for World War II were under production in Spain, Ethiopia and Manchuria. Hitler, Mussolini and the militarists of Japan were reveling in dreams of grandeur.

Our fancy was caught, our emotions were stirred, by the abdication of a King of England because he loved an American divorcee, Wallis Simpson. A Calypso record sang to us: "'Twas love and love alone caused King Edward to leave the throne."

Much more important—although how many of us knew it at the time?—was a British umbrella. The umbrella of Brime Minister Chamberlain. He took it to Munich, where he sacrificed Czechoslovakia to Hitler. He brought it home, proclaiming "Peace in our time!" Another wrong prediction.

Hitler and War

One year later, Nazi Germany plunged the world into war. Many of us in the U. S. were honest isolationists. We wanted to have no part in the war. It seemed a "phony" war, anyway—until Hitler drove the Panzer knife into France.

We had troubles aplenty at home. Automobile workers in Michigan devised a new type of labor warfare—the sit-down strike. They just stayed in the factory.

President Roosevelt tried a new technique, too. Let's pack the Supreme Court, said he, with 15 instead of 9 members. Then the elderly justices couldn't thwart the New Deal. He did not get his idea across, and blood pressure was raised all over the place.

People calmed down and grew misty-eyed when Kate Smith sang "God Bless America!" There was a play that opened in 1939 and it did right well. Ran until 1947, with 3,224 performances. It was Life With Father, which beat the previous all-time record set by Tobacco Road, with a mere 3,182 performances.

Radio was a big boy by now, and Information Please, which started in 1938, proved that millions of listeners liked a high-brow quiz program.

For soothing reading in these parlous times, we went all the way back to the Civil War and read Gone With the Wind. But we didn't blink the Depression entirely, because we also read The Grapes of Wrath about the Okies.

The lightning burst out of those storm clouds that had been building abroad. Japan must be crazy, we thought, on that unbelievable Sunday afternoon of Pearl Harbor. Little did we know, that afternoon, how many of our young men would die in places they never before had heard of—Kwajalein, Anzio, Okinawa, Bizerte.

For the whole first year, the news was black. After what seemed to be a long, long time there came the turning points—the Battle of the Coral Sea, the Battle of Stalingrad, the awful suspense of the Normandy invasion.

At home we couldn't drive very far on an "A" gasoline ration card. Nor could we eat too much meat on a red ration coupon. When a store got a few nylon stockings, women stood in lines a block long. Our cigarettes disappeared toward the end of the war, and nobody yet has figured out where they went.

You couldn't buy aluminum porch furniture; but then you shouldn't have been sitting around, anyway. The nation was hard at work, with a unity of spirit that seems wonderful now that we look back.

We began to read war books, starting with Ernest Hemingway's For Whom the Bell Tolls. For lighter diversion we saw Bing Crosby in Going My Way.

"A massive cerebral hemorrhage." That was what the physicians announced on that spring day of 1945 when Franklin Delano Roosevelt died. The war was not yet quite won. Great decisions were to be made, including the atomic bombing of Japan. Into the Presidency was pitched a man from Missouri, who was at first awed and bewildered—Harry S. Truman.

We looked to the United Nations to usher in an era of everlasting peace. We were blissful, maybe naive. Disillusion was to come all too soon. We found ourselves shipping billions of dollars across the Atlantic to shore up the dikes of European democracy against communism.

Things weren't too peaceful at home, either. Rarely had labor and management fought on so vast a scale. Involved in strikes in 1946 were 4½ million persons. Truman quarreled with a Republican Congress. Wives quarreled with husbands; 11,000 divorces set a record for Reno in 1946.

Postwar Turbulence

Prices shot up. Eggs were $1 a dozen. In this turbulent, uncertain era, no wonder the nonfiction best-seller was Joshua Loth Liebman's Peace of Mind. Also doing well was Dale Carnegie with his book How to Stop Worrying and Start Living. Among the movies we liked was one about war veterans—The Best Years of Our Lives. And one about a sot—The Lost Weekend.

The greatest psychological mystery of our time unfolded before our astonished eyes. Whittaker Chambers, an editor of Time, accused his erstwhile friend, Alger Hiss, of having slipped him government secrets for Russia in the 1930s when Hiss held a high position in the State Department. In the end, penitentiary doors closed on Hiss, convicted of perjury.

A Red scare already had been sweeping the country. Back in 1938, Representative Martin Dies had thrown suspicion on little Shirley Temple. Maybe she was a Red! Now it was to become a favorite sport for eager-eyed legislators to hunt for Communists in government, schools, movies, and even the clergy.

Bigger Red scares were developing abroad. A 14-word White House announcement broke the news that Russia had exploded an atomic bomb. The "secret" was no longer ours.

"No Man's Land" Again

Nine months later, the Communists started a shooting war in Korea. We and the United Nations shot back. It was like a nightmare repeating itself when the boys went once more to the battlefield.

As the tides of war shifted, gloom and joy alternately seized the nation. When Truman fired MacArthur, people wept as the General said: "I now close my military career and just fade away . . ."

Amid all the turmoil, we found time to get excited about radio give-away shows. The $64 question actually was just a pup. You could get a washing machine, or maybe a trip around the world, if you answered the question: "Who was buried in Grant's Tomb?"

These were the days of the new nylon shirts, some of which popped their buttons.

Television was coming up in the same big way that radio did back in the 1920s. We could look at plunging necklines. We could look at the ugly mugs of the racketeers whom Senator Kefauver brought into our parlor when he was televising the underworld.

The year 1952 was a turning point in several respects.

By now we had recovered from our delicious fright over the Flying Saucers—those eerie aeronautical apparitions that sped through the night skies, undoubtedly piloted either by "teensy little mens" from Mars or else by "gwate big mens" from Russia.

The women were changing their hairdo. The big argument was which looked funnier the horsetail or the poodle.

Chlorophyll—life-giving, breath-killing chlorophyll—was creeping into toothpaste, chewing gum, dog food.

The Big Change

Politically speaking, 1952 was the end of an era. For almost 20 years the Democrats had reigned. Now the New Deal-Fair Deal had its back to the wall. The word had got around that there was "influence" reaching into high places in Washington—tales of mink coats and deep freezers. The Republican chant went across the land: "It's time for a change!"

Change we did. Into the White House came a General.

End of an era! Looking back on those two decades of depression and war, how better to characterize the era than in the famous phrase of Britain's Winston Churchill: "Blood, toll, tears and sweat."

Depression and Recovery

WITH the middle of 1915, a war boom began to develop in the U. S.; it continued until the middle of 1920. There was a brief postwar recession; and then, in the spring of 1922, prosperity once more appeared. Americans were convinced it was to be everlasting. Unemployment dropped; wages went up; corporate profits began to mount; and the purchasing capacity of the American people to absorb new durable consumer goods became the wonder of the world.

The important factors for this unparalleled prosperity were these: (1) construction led to a great building boom which provided almost 5 million new jobs; (2) the expansion of the automobile industry had widening effects on employment and profits; (3) there was new public investment in highways, schools and hospitals; (4) there was a vast expansion of the utility industries, particularly in the production of electric light and power (during the 1920s America's electric power capacity was doubled); (5) foreign trade revived.

In the face of all this, there were structural weaknesses in the economy, so that the collapse of 1929 really was inevitable. Agriculture was in depression, as were the coal and cotton-textile industries. Our high tariffs kept out foreign goods, so that Europeans and others could not sell to us or pay interest on American-owned foreign securities. The result was simply a compounding of debt. Prices—because of the great advances in productivity—should have dropped and real wages should have risen. Neither occurred; therefore, a profit inflation was actually taking place.

Two consequences followed. First, business profits moved into securities speculation, and here prices soared. Second, a great credit expansion also developed, particularly on the part of consumers. Through installment purchasing they were able to acquire new durable consumer goods; also, on credit, to buy stocks, bonds, and real estate. Nor did businessmen and corporations find the processes of going into debt any hardship. This credit inflation, in its turn, encouraged overexpansion of business enterprise.

On all this, Washington smiled, giving its approval to the boom and failing to apply brakes to speculation. As normal opportunities for investment dwindled, the stock market increasingly attracted idle funds and the gamblers. And so we went on into 1929—and to the stock market collapse of October 1929, which ushered in a recession lasting a decade.

U. S. in World Affairs

America Becomes a World Power

ISOLATION is never fully a reality; for the United States has always participated in world affairs. The assumption of responsibility is another matter, particularly when a country is powerful economically. From the end of World War I to 1936, America denied its responsibilities: by refusing to join the League of Nations and the World Court, by raising high barriers to the entrance of foreign goods, by failing to forgive interallied debts incurred during the war in a common cause. Even when depression hit, America assumed it could go it alone; in fact, programs for reform and recovery did not link our efforts with those of the outside world, notably as regards currency convertibility and the reopening of world trading channels.

The United States took alarm with 1936 and after: Hitler, Spain, Ethiopia, Manchuria—these demonstrated that the dis-ordering of the peace anywhere was of vital concern to the safety of America. We strengthened our relations with the Latin-American nations, abandoned "neutrality" as an official position, began to give attention to the Navy's needs. When France fell in 1940 we saw that America really was in peril. From thence on, events marched swiftly as the United States stood by Britain and its allies, entered the war itself, and was a prime architect in building and defending the United Nations, the International Bank and the International Monetary Fund, and in leading the fight against communism.

- 1918
Jan. 8—Wilson's 14-point address to Congress calls for self-determination, removal of economic barriers, League of Nations.

Soviet Russia: 1917-1954

WHEN the U.S.S.R. was established, many throughout the world were ready to hail it as the first socialist commonwealth and to watch its initial efforts with sympathy. But from social revolution—in which despotism of the Tsar was overthrown—Russia moved to dictatorship by a small party clique; and to the suppression of its farming populations, the establishment of forced labor camps, the curbing of dissident opinion in every sector. Purges became a common device for compelling compliance. In foreign affairs, the U.S.S.R. became one of the most aggressive nations in the world, expanding at the expense of Poland and China and surrounding itself with subservient satellite peoples. Seemingly a member of the U.N. and therefore committed to the maintenance of peace, the U.S.S.R. directly or through its agents was fomenting disorders throughout most of the Asian and a good part of the European continents. Its hand was suspected in the Guatemalan government (overthrown June 1954) in the Western Hemisphere. Russia's history since 1917 indicates that Utopias are hard, if not impossible, to realize; and that oppression in the name of the "people" can be as bitter as the worst days of Byzantine absolutism.

1917

Mar. 8—Strikes and riots mark beginning of Revolution in Petrograd.

Mar. 11—Duma refuses to disperse on Tsar's decree.

The Rise of Hitler

THE CONSTITUTION of the Weimar Republic never really was given a chance by Germany's leaders; all culminated against the Treaty of Versailles instead of putting their house in order. When depression broke in 1930, Hitler's star really began to rise; and he was put into power because the antidemocratic forces of Germany believed he could be their pawn. He quickly became their master—of the army, the industrialists, the great eastern land owners.

Hitler destroyed the free unions and co-operatives, began his terrible extermination of the Jews, and co-ordinated the whole domestic economy to serve the needs for an expanding military machine. War frankly entered into his every calculation; the "crimes" of the Versailles Treaty were to be rectified; Germany's "legitimate claims" for expansion to the east and overseas must be recognized.

The year 1936 was a turning point: then began those pressures in every direction, while the creation of the Axis formally gave him allies. The belief of British and French leaders that they could buy Hitler off was really idle; Munich represented the failure of the West. Hitler had once again convinced the Germans they were the master race; the alliance with the U.S.S.R. was accepted despite the earlier crusade against communism; the attack on Poland was cheered. A great people needed war to strengthen itself and to purge the world of the unfit.

Conflicts Preliminary to World War II

THE UNITED STATES cannot blink away its share of the responsibility for the disorders the world over in the 1930s: for it refused to participate in the creation of an international machinery to preserve the peace. The depression of the decade and the rise of dictators in the Axis countries permitted adventurers to fish in troubled waters. Civil war was kept alive in Spain because of German and Russian intervention; the League of Nations would not impose sanctions against Italy for its assault on Ethiopia; the U. S. was willing to halt Japan's movement into Manchuria—but Britain held back. Undeclared war therefore raged in many quarters of the globe; it turned out to be a dress rehearsal—as new weapons were being tested—for the war that swept the whole world in 1939.

World War II

HITLER had planned his grand campaign with impressive skill: he gained time for his invasion of Poland through his alliance with Russia; he bought time in the West through the "phony" war. With Poland conquered, he turned on France, and by June 1940 it had fallen. Britain, however, stood firm despite the great havoc of the Blitz; Hitler's generals warned him that landings from the sea would fail. Now he swung east, cynically repudiating his treaty with the Russians—and was at the gates of Moscow before winter.

But there were two miscalculations: Russia held; and America's lend-lease program was beginning to pour desperately needed supplies to Britain, Russia, and the other powers standing off Germany, Italy, and Japan.

Now Japan tried to eliminate the U. S., and almost did so by the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor when a good part of the American fleet was immobilized. Japan drove south and east, overextending its lines but containing a large part of the American military strength. Up to 1943 our action in the East was defensive, for it had been agreed among the Allies that Europe had to be won first. Supplies through lend-lease built up the resistance of Britain, Free France, Russia; and when the Russians won their great victory at Stalin-grad and American armies landed in Africa, Italy, and France, Hitler was done.

Then MacArthur, covered by a new and large American navy and air fleet, was able to move north; and it was only a matter of time, too, as far as Japan was concerned. The Germans accepted unconditional surrender in May 1945, following Hitler's suicide; the Japanese did similarly in August, following the dropping of the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. A new century of peace was to open up; but peace among the Allies lasted about a year.

Cold War

IT TOOK about a year for the Western Powers to learn that "peace" to the U.S.S.R. meant the opportunity to spread the influence of communism either by infiltration or direct assistance or open aggression. The U.S.S.R. made solemn commitments at Yalta and Potsdam, and through its membership in the United Nations. This did not prevent Communists—with the aid of Russia—from fomenting disorders in France, Italy and Greece, and also in the Far East. Again—with Russian aid—Communists seized power in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Albania, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria; and the satellite states were created. Russia itself moved into Manchuria and Mongolia.

In 1947, America realized that there was war in a good part of the world; but it was a "cold war." The Truman Doctrine of 1947 offered help to Greece and Turkey against the Communists. The Marshall Plan of the same year offered loans and grants to nations seeking their economic rehabilitation to strengthen their own defenses against communism. Meanwhile China had gone Red; and, in 1950, the North Korean Communists (backed up by Russia and China) challenged the West by their invasion of South Korea. The world's fate hung in the balance; and then the decision of President Truman to support the U. N. to the full to check aggression decided events for many years. For the "cold war" did not become a "hot war" in the sense that arms universally were taken up. Yet the peace of the world hung precariously in the balance. France's 7-year conflict in Indo-China with Communist bands took on the major proportions of war in 1954 until a truce highly favorable to the Communists was reached in July. No peace treaty for Korea emerged. The Western Allies developed internal differences: over the arming of Germany and the creation of a European Defense Community. America seemed to be losing its arms superiority, and unhappy on-lookers seemed to see 1938 and perhaps even 1939 repeating themselves. And the "cold war" goes on because the West is on the alert—through the creation of the North Atlantic Community and talks of a European Defense Community—while the Russians and their satellites maintain pressures.

1945

June 28—Polish government under Russian influence installed, despite protests of government-in-exile.

July 5—U. S. and Britain recognize Polish provisional government in place of government-in-exile.

Korea

KOREA, an independent kingdom in ancient times, was placed under Chinese sovereignty in 1627, and was annexed by Japan in 1910. At the end of World War II in 1945, Russian troops occupied the northern half of Korea down to the 38th parallel, and U. S. troops occupied the southern half.

Russia set up a puppet government, which, on May 1, 1948, proclaimed jurisdiction over the whole country. Its capital was Pyongyang. With U. N. supervision, elections were held in South Korea, and the Republic of Korea was proclaimed, with Seoul as capital, Aug. 15, 1948.

Russia announced on Jan. 1, 1949, that its occupation troops had been withdrawn from North Korea. The U. S. withdrew its last troops from South Korea on June 29, 1949.

Early on the morning of Sunday, June 25, 1950, Korean time, the Communist North Korean army invaded the Republic of Korea, attacking southward across the 38th parallel. This was Saturday afternoon, June 24, New York time.

In the following chronology, Korean dates are used for events that took place there, American dates for events that took place here.

1950

June 25—North Koreans invade Republic of Korea.

June 27—Truman orders U. S. air and sea aid to South Koreans.

June 28—Reds capture Seoul.

July 8—Truman names MacArthur commander of U. N. forces in Korea.

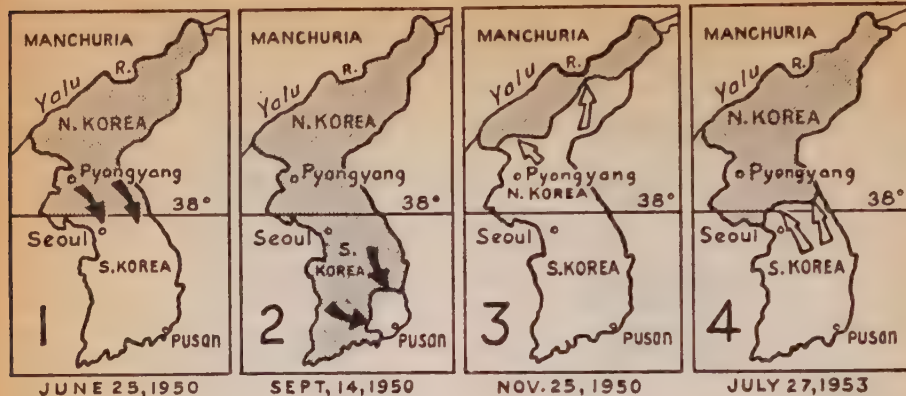

(During the rest of July, the small

U. N. forces were swept back in retreat down the peninsula.)

Aug. 3—Allied forces set up Pusan perimeter defense behind Nakdong River.

Sept. 6—Reds capture Pohang, high point of their offensive that failed to drive U. N. forces out of Korea.

Sept. 15—U. S. 10th Corps makes amphibious landing at Inchon, port for Seoul; cuts behind North Koreans, Sept. 26—MacArthur announces capture of Seoul.

Oct. 7—U. S. 1st Cavalry make 1st U. S. crossing of 38th parallel.

Oct. 15—Truman and MacArthur meet on Wake Island.

Oct. 20—Allies capture Pyongyang.

Oct. 26—South Korean troops reach Manchurian border.

Oct. 27—Chinese Communist troops encountered in combat below Yalu River.

Nov. 6—MacArthur notifies U. N. that Chinese Reds have entered war.

Nov. 20—U. S. 7th Division unit reaches Manchurian border.

Nov. 26—Chinese open massive offensive; hurl U. N. forces back.

Dec. 4—U. N. troops abandon Pyongyang.

Nov. 29-Dec. 11—U. N. forces stranded at Changjin Reservoir; escape to Hungnam; are evacuated by sea Dec. 12-24.

Dec. 26—U. N. ground forces in Korea unified under command of Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

1951

Jan. 4—Reds recapture Seoul.

Mar. 14—Allies reoccupy Seoul; abandoned by Reds without fight.

Mar. 24—MacArthur intimates U. N. will attack Red China; says he will meet with Reds at any time for truce talks.

(As MacArthur had not cleared his truce bid with Washington, it became a large factor in his subsequent dismissal. Previously, the U. S. had given its U. N. allies a proposed statement of war aims.)

Mar. 31—U. S. tank patrol recrosses 38th parallel into North Korea.

Apr. 5—MacArthur's letter to Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr. (R., Mass.) disclosed; favors stronger war measures, including use of Chinese Nationalists.

Apr. 11—Truman removes MacArthur from all commands; replaces him with Ridgway.

Apr. 19—MacArthur addresses joint session of Congress.

July 10—Top-level truce talks open at Kaesong.

(As a result of various disputes, truce talks were suspended July 12-14, July 21-24, Aug. 5-10 and Aug. 23-Oct. 25.)

Oct. 25—Truce talks resume in Panmunjom.

Nov. 14—Col. James Hanley, chief of U. S. 8th Army's Judge Advocate Section, says Reds have killed 5,500 U. S. POWs in Korea.

Nov. 20—Ridgway says 365 U. S. POWs known killed and over 6,000 believed killed by Reds; regrets Hanley's statement was issued without proper coordination.

Nov. 27—Both sides agree present battlefront will be cease-fire line if armistice is signed in 30 days. (It isn't.)

1952

Feb. 26—Churchill reveals secret Labour government agreement with Truman to bomb Manchurian air bases if Red air attack in Korea increases.

Apr. 28—Ridgway appointed successor to Eisenhower in Europe; succeeded in Korea by Gen. Mark W. Clark, May 12.

May 7—Truman says U. N. will never return Chinese and Korean Communist prisoners who fear to go back.

May 10—Communist war prisoners on Koje Island release Brig. Gen. Francis T. Dodd, held captive since May 7.

June 10—38 Reds and 1 American killed in fighting to clear Compound 76 on Koje Island.

June 23-26—500 U. N. planes cripple 5 North Korean power plants.

(As truce talks entered their 2nd year July 10, only one dispute separated the two sides; whether or not all Communist POWs should be forced to go back to North Korea or Red China. A screening of all Red prisoners showed that 83,000 were willing to go back; 87,000 did not wish to do so.)

July 26-Sept. 28—Truce talks deadlocked.

Sept. 28—3 possible plans offered by U. N. for voluntary return of POWs; rejected by Reds Oct. 8; talks recessed indefinitely.

1953

Jan. 23—Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor succeeds Gen. Van Fleet as commander of U. S. 8th Army in Korea.

Feb. 22—Gen. Clark proposes that sick and wounded prisoners be exchanged before armistice is signed; Reds accept Mar. 28.

Mar. 30—Reds propose that neutral nation be made custodian of all POWs refusing repatriation.

Apr. 20—Exchange of sick and wounded POWs begins; 684 U. N. prisoners returned by Apr. 26; 6,670 Red prisoners by May 3.

Apr. 26—Truce talks resumed at Panmunjom after 6½-month recess.

May 7—Reds agree to let reluctant prisoners stay in Korea after truce; propose 5-nation POW custodianship.

May 25—South Korean officials denounce truce arrangements.

June 8—Agreement on POWs reached at Panmunjom: India to head 5-nation commission for custodianship of POWs refusing repatriation.

June 18-21—Pres. Rhee frees 27,000 anti-Red POWs in defiance of U. N.-Red prisoner agreement; truce talks halted June 20.

July 10—Truce talks are resumed.

July 11—Rhee agrees to armistice terms acceptable to other Allies.

July 27—Armistice signed at Panmunjom.

Aug. 5-Sept. 6—POWs exchanged in "Operation Big Switch"; 12,760 released by Reds, 75,799 by U. N.; U. N. believes Reds hold many back.

Aug. 8—U. S. signs mutual security pact with Republic of Korea; $1-billion rehabilitation aid to Korea contemplated.

Sept. 2—Dulles warns that U. S. may bomb Manchuria if war is renewed.

Sept. 4—Korean Communists release

Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, highest-ranking U. S. officer taken prisoner.

Sept. 21—North Korean pilot flies Russian MIG jet to Seoul; gets $100,000 U. S. reward.

Sept. 24-23 American POWs who refuse repatriation are delivered to Indian custody.

Oct. 15—Reds try to persuade unwilling prisoners to return; few are persuaded.

Dec. 12—Panmunjom talks to arrange Korean peace conference broken off by U. S.

Dec. 23-21 U. S. POWs turn down repatriation; prefer communism.

(For later items, see News Record of 1954)

U. N. Actions on Korean War

1950

June 27—Security Council (at that time boycotted by Russia) calls on U. N. members, to "furnish such assistance to the Republic of Korea as may be necessary to repel the armed attack."

1951

Jan. 13—U. N. votes new peace appeal; rejected by Red China Jan. 17.

Feb. 1—General Assembly condemns (44-7) Red China as an aggressor.

Feb. 7—U. N. rejects Russian charges of U. S. aggression against China.

May 18—U. N. votes (47-0) arms embargo against Red China; Soviet-bloc members refuse to vote.

June 23—Russia proposes truce.

1952

July 3-10 Security Council members vote in favor of U. S. resolution for International Red Cross investigation of Russia's charge of U. N. germ warfare in Korea; Russian veto kills it.

Dec. 3—Assembly approves (54-5) India's resolution to bring about truce by compromise of prisoner issue.

1953

Aug. 28—U. N. General Assembly votes (43-5) for "two-side" conference.

Sept. 13—Red China rejects U. N. plan for 2-sided political conference.

World Peace Organizations

TWICE, nations hopefully have launched international associations to preserve peace by checking aggression and improving the welfare of backward areas of the world. The League of Nations failed, in part because of America's refusal to participate, in part because it did not possess the economic means by which to impose sanctions on aggressor nations or help poor countries resolve their difficulties.

The United Nations is on firmer ground. The United States is fully committed to its responsibilities as a member; an International Bank and Monetary Fund exist and function; the U. N. has been able to intervene successfully to preserve peace in the Near East and Middle Asia. Korea was the test; and the U. N. survives because the challenge of the Communists was taken up. Corrections are necessary in the U. N. Charter; notably, the right of veto by a Council member requires careful study. On the other hand, the mounting prestige of the U. N. Assembly and the effective work of the Trusteeship Council are to be noted. The U. N. appears to have a better chance than the League of Nations, as men hope that war forever will be eliminated in the making of major decisions among the countries of the world.

League of Nations

1919
June 28—Covenant of League of Nations signed as Part I of Treaty of Versailles.
Nov. 19—U. S. rejects Versailles Treaty.

1920
Jan. 10—League of Nations officially inaugurated as Versailles Treaty goes into effect.
Jan. 16—1st Council meeting in Paris. Permanent members: England, France, Italy, Japan. (Germany made permanent member 1926 upon admission to League; Russia, 1934.)
Mar. 19—U. S. Senate vote lacks  $\frac{2}{3}$  majority to ratify Versailles Treaty.
May 19—Persia (now Iran) presents 1st dispute to League: demands Russia get out of Azerbaijan. Russia does.
Nov. 15—1st meeting of Assembly; 41 members (57 in 1934). Headquarters: Geneva, Switzerland.

1922
June 15—1st meeting of Permanent Court of International Justice (World Court).

1923
Aug. 31—Italy, blaming Greece for death of Italian on Greek border, seizes Corfu; League intervenes; Italy withdraws; Greece to pay indemnity.

1931
Sept. 18-19—Japanese army occupies wide area of Manchuria; China appeals to League; report of Lytton Commission on Oct. 4, 1932, is generally unfavorable to Japan.

1933
Mar. 27—Japan gives notice of quitting League (effective 1935).
Oct. 14—Hitler's Germany gives notice of quitting League (effective 1935).

1935
Oct. 3—Italy invades Ethiopia; League votes economic sanctions (effective Nov. 18) except for vital oil.

1936
Mar. 7—Hitler breaks Versailles Treaty and Locarno Pact by remilitarizing Rhineland; League does nothing.

1937
Dec. 11—Italy gives notice of quitting League (effective 1939).

1939
Dec. 14—Soviet Russia expelled from League for invading Finland.

1946
Apr. 8-18—Final Assembly session at Geneva dissolves League of Nations.

United Nations

1945
June 26—U. N. Charter signed; at San Francisco; goes into effect Oct. 24.
July 28—U. S. Senate ratifies (89-2) U. N. Charter.

1946
Jan. 10—1st meeting of General Assembly opens in London.
Jan. 17—1st meeting of Security Council opens in London.

Atomic Energy

IN SEPTEMBER 1953, it was reported that the Soviet Union had exploded a hydrogen bomb. Within a month the United States Atomic Energy Commission announced it was embarking on a $50,000,000 project to complete, in 3 years, a full-scale industrial nuclear power plant capable of furnishing 60,000 kilowatts of electric power, enough to supply the peacetime needs of a modern city of 100,000.

To understand the magnitude and importance of these major events, let us go back to a day late in 1938. In a university laboratory, a few miles from Hitler's Chancellery, outside Berlin, Otto Hahn and Fritz Strassmann performed an experiment that was to turn the world over on its head. They placed the metal uranium in the path of swiftly moving particles called neutrons, and reported the splitting or fission of the uranium atom, with the liberation of some energy from inside this atom. Lise Meitner, a Jewish scientist working with Hahn, was soon after forced to flee from the Nazis, and she passed the information on to Niels Bohr, Nobel prize winner, in Copenhagen. Shortly after, a scientific conference was held in Washington, D. C. Atomic physicists from our own universities and famous scientists from foreign countries attended. Niels Bohr was present, as well as Enrico Fermi, who had left Fascist Italy to work at Columbia University. Bohr suggested that the Germans had used an impure form of uranium containing several types (isotopes) of uranium atoms. It was uranium 235 (U-235) that was most sensitive to fission, said Bohr. If only this pure variety of uranium were used, much more powerful effects might be obtained. Fermi, too, made a crucial contribution. He suggested that in the fission of U-235 other neutrons might be expelled. These extra neutrons might attack other uranium atoms, which, in turn, would split still other uranium atoms, and this would continue until the whole mass of uranium had been annihilated. If this were true, the possibility of a chain, or self-propagating reaction, that would surely unlock the door to atomic energy, was close at hand.

Before this meeting ended, further researches confirmed the emission of such extra neutrons. By midsummer of 1940, the important facts regarding uranium fission had been discovered, and although a controlled chain reaction had not yet been achieved, its possibility was clear. Then, suddenly, World War II clamped tight the door of censorship on all research relating to the release of atomic energy. For 5 years, the outside world was kept in the dark about the vital research.

FISSION OF URANIUM-235 AND A CHAIN REACTION

With the dropping of the first atomic bomb on Hiroshima in August 1945, the veil was partly lifted. Early in 1940, Roosevelt and Churchill had pooled the brains of American, British, and German and Hungarian refugee scientists on a research program, the like of which the world had never known. Its goal was the release of atomic energy for the production of a weapon with which to win the war against the Axis. Knowledge that research on such a weapon was being carried on in Nazi laboratories compelled quick, co-operative action. The race was on—the prize we wanted, a free world. The U. S. Government invested $2 billion in "the greatest scientific gamble in history—and won."

The first controlled chain reaction was achieved on December 2, 1942, at the University of Chicago. The fissionable material used was U-235, laboriously separated at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, from the natural uranium mixture containing only about one part in 140 of the pure U-235. A second fissionable metal, plutonium, was also used. Plutonium was a new and synthetic element created in a flameless furnace called a nuclear reactor. Two such reactors were in operation during the war—one at Oak Ridge, the other at Richland, Washington. The Oak Ridge reactor is essentially a huge cube of graphite bricks containing a number of horizontal channels into which is placed the pure uranium fuel. Graphite is used to slow down neutrons and is called a moderator. (Heavy water is another good moderator.) Slow neutrons, moving at about one mile per second, are more effective in producing fission than are neutrons traveling at normal speeds of about 10,000 miles per second. The bricks are built up in layers, and since the structure is erected by piling one layer of bricks upon another, it is often referred to as an atomic pile. A chain reaction is started by bombarding U-235 with some neutrons liberated by a bit of the metal beryllium mixed with radium in the center of the pile. Several changes take place inside the atoms, and the uranium finally ends up as plutonium. This is then separated from the uranium by chemical methods. The atomic pile liberates tremendous quantities of heat. Till recently this heat was wasted, since we were interested primarily in making plutonium for bombs. Now, for the first time, a nuclear power plant will be built for peaceful use. The heat of this atom furnace will be harnessed to change water into steam, which will drive a turbine-generator to produce electricity to warm our homes, power our factories, and activate our vacuum cleaners, washing machines and refrigerators.

To grasp the full meaning of atomic energy we must first understand the nature of matter. All matter is composed of atoms. An atom is a particle too small to be seen even through the most powerful microscope. It is about 1/250,000,000 of an inch in diameter. Even this tiny particle is complex in structure. Every atom, except that of ordinary hydrogen, is composed of electrons, protons and neutrons. The electrons, which are particles of negative electricity, are located in layers on the rim of the atom. The protons and neutrons, each about 2,000 times as heavy as an electron, are packed away in the center or nucleus of the atom. The diameter of the nucleus is only about 1/10,000 that of the whole atom. The proton is a particle of positive electricity, and the neutron is an electrically neutral particle. The total number of protons and neutrons in any element represents its atomic weight. For example, uranium has 92 protons and 143 neutrons, and its atomic weight is 235. Each of the 92 natural elements and the 6 artificially created elements are composed of these 3 elementary particles.

During the burning of coal or the explosion of TNT, only the electrons of the atoms are involved. These merely change their positions. The nuclei of the atoms remain unchanged. However, some of the heavier elements, such as uranium, thorium and plutonium, behave differently. All of the 92 protons and 143 neutrons of the uranium atom, for example, are packed away in a sphere one millionth of a millionth of an inch in diameter. They are packed so tightly that the nucleus weighs more than 200 trillion times as much as an equal volume of water. All of these particles are in rapid vibration, and, in addition, all of its 92 protons carry positive charges which repel each other. The nucleus is thus under terrific tension, like a coiled spring ready to unleash its imprisoned energy. When uranium is placed in the path of a stream of neutrons emitted from beryllium exposed to a bit of radium, one of these swiftly moving neutrons gets through the outer barrier of electrons, enters the very center of the atom, disturbs this delicate balance within the nucleus, and disrupts it. As a result, the nucleus flies apart, the atom is shattered into two large pieces and several small fragments, neutrons are expelled, highly penetrating and lethal radiation similar to X-rays is liberated, and a tremendous volume of energy in the form of light and heat is released in a billionth of a second. Such a change is called nuclear fission.

The amount of energy liberated during the burning of one pound of coal (a chemical reaction) is only about 4 kilowatt-hours, enough to keep a single 100-watt electric light bulb burning for 40 hours. The energy liberated during the complete fission of the same weight of coal, if this were possible, is equivalent to 11 billion kilowatt-hours, enough to keep all the U. S. supplied with electricity for an entire month. Where does this Niagara of energy come from? To answer this we must go back about 50 years. In 1905, Albert Einstein proposed that matter and energy are really one, and that matter could actually be converted into energy. He introduced the now familiar formula to express this idea:  $E = mc^2$ , in which  $E$  is energy in ergs,  $m$  is mass or matter in grams, and  $c$  is the speed of light in centimeters per second. When we recall that the speed of light is 30 billion centimeters per second, and that this figure must be multiplied by itself, we begin to realize what an astronomical number  $E$  must turn out to be. Einstein at that time, even before the proton and neutron had been discovered, theorized that this energy would come from inside the atom.

How? Let us see what happened in 1932 when two Englishmen, Cockcroft and Walton, bombarded the metal lithium with swiftly moving protons (neutrons had not yet been discovered). Some lithium disappeared, and a different element, helium, was formed, accompanied by much energy. This nuclear change may be expressed:

* Electron-volts.

You will notice the whole is lighter than the sum of its parts. There is a loss of mass of about 0.02 units. This loss of mass is accounted for, in part, by the energy liberated. This demonstration was not very efficient, and there was no great or immediate excitement at the news. However, when 6 years later, U-235 was fissioned, science had stumbled upon a reaction that made possible the A-bomb.

Soon after the A-bomb, based on the fission of uranium and plutonium, had been successfully exploded, American scientists went to work on another type of bomb, subsequently named the hydrogen or H-bomb. The principle of this weapon is somewhat different from that of the A-bomb. The energy of the H-bomb comes from the fusion of lighter atoms into a heavier one, rather than from the fission of a heavy element into lighter ones. Two isotopes of hydrogen are used. Isotopes are varieties of the same element having different atomic weights. Isotopes have the same number of electrons and protons but differ in the number of neutrons. For example, ordinary hydrogen has only one proton and no neutrons, and its atomic weight is, therefore, one. This means that its atom has a mass of one, since it is the lightest of the elements; and uranium-235 has an atomic weight of 235, since its atom is 235 times as heavy as one atom of hydrogen. Heavy hydrogen, called deuterium (D), has one neutron and one proton in its nucleus, and its mass is 2. Synthetic, superheavy hydrogen, called tritium (T), has 2 neutrons in its nucleus in addition to the one proton common to all forms of hydrogen, and its mass is 3.

The nuclei of deuterium and tritium are forced to merge or fuse. During this fusion the hydrogen is transmuted into the heavier element helium, whose atomic weight is 4 (it contains 2 neutrons and 2 protons). One neutron is liberated, and atomic energy is released in tremendous quantities, because in fusion, too, there is a loss of matter (7 times as great as in an A-bomb explosion). This thermonuclear reaction may be expressed:

Deuterium + Tritium →

Helium + neutron + atomic energy

For this nuclear reaction to take place, an enormously high temperature, hitherto found only in the sun, is necessary. The energy released during the creation of helium out of hydrogen is generally accepted today as the mechanism that produces and maintains the terrific heat of the sun. This temperature of about 100 million degrees Centigrade is needed for about 1 millionth of a second to get the fusion going. With the development of the A-bomb, such a temperature became available here on earth. During the fission of uranium and plutonium in the A-bomb, central temperatures as high as 150 million degrees Centigrade are produced. The explosion of the A-bomb thus acts as a trigger for the H-bomb. The hydrogen bomb probably contains plutonium and uranium, as well as deuterium and tritium. This double-bomb explosion can be made to release almost unlimited energy since, unlike the uranium bomb, the hydrogen bomb is not restricted to the narrow limits of a specific or critical size of the A-bomb. It has been estimated that one H-bomb will increase the radius of destruction of an A-bomb of equal weight about 10 times. It could extinguish the lives of millions of people in one blow. It could devastate an area of 300 square miles by blast and 1,200 square miles by fire, compared with an area of about 10 or 15 square miles which is vulnerable to an A-bomb.

We now live in an age of peril, for such a holocaust can strike mankind.

1945

July 16—A-bomb test at Alamogordo, N. Mex. (announced Aug. 6).

Aug. 6—Hiroshima A-bombed; Nagasaki, Aug. 9.

1946

July 1—Underwater bombing at Bikini. (Repeated July 25.)

Aug. 1—U. S. Atomic Energy Commission created.

1947

Jan. 1—U. S. transfers control of domestic atomic energy from Army to civilian commission.

Apr. 9—Senate confirms (50-31) nomination of David E. Lillenthal.

1949

Sept. 24—Truman discloses recent atomic explosion in Russia.

1950

Jan. 31—Truman orders development of hydrogen super-bomb.

1951

Aug. 21—U. S. orders construction of world's 1st atomic submarine.

Oct. 3—Truman announces Russia has exploded 2nd atom bomb.

Oct. 30—Atom-data bill authorizes exchange of certain nonweapon atom data with friendly nations.

Dec. 29—U. S. Atomic Energy Commission announces production of electric energy from atomic energy.

1952

Apr. 22—Troops enter atomic blast area for 1st time in Nevada test.

Oct. 3—Britain sets off 1st atomic explosion.

Nov. 16—AEC announces "satisfactory" experiments in hydrogen-weapons research; eye witnesses tell of blasts near Eniwetok.

1953

Mar. 24—9 military volunteers unhurt after A-blast test 2,500 yds. away.

Aug. 20—Russia announces she exploded hydrogen bomb Aug. 12.

MEASURES AND WEIGHTS

UNITS OF LENGTH

Metric System

The meter was originally intended to be one ten-millionth of the earth's quadrant, a quadrant being one-quarter of a circumference. However, because of the difficulty of determining such a length with accuracy, this definition was abandoned. The meter is now considered to be the distance at 0°C between two microscopic marks on the International Prototype Meter, a platinum-iridium bar, kept by the International Bureau of Weights and Measures at Sèvres, France, a suburb of Paris.

In 1927, the International Conference on Weights and Measures adopted a secondary definition of the meter in terms of light-waves. According to this definition, one meter is equivalent to 1,553,164.13 wave lengths of the red light from cadmium.

English System

According to legend, the yard was established by Henry I as the distance from the point of his nose to the end of his thumb when his arm was outstretched. The British Imperial Yard was defined in 1878 by the Weights and Measures Act as the distance at 62°F between two fine lines on gold studs sunk in a bronze bar known as the "No. 1 Standard Yard." This is equivalent to .914399 meter. In the United States, the yard is defined in terms of the meter, using as a standard the U. S. Prototype Meter. According to this definition, the yard is 3600/3937 (or .914402) meter, slightly longer than the British Imperial Yard.

UNITS OF WEIGHT OR MASS

The term mass denotes the amount of matter contained in an object, while the term weight denotes the gravitational pull of the earth on the object. For practical purposes, the two terms are synonymous.

Metric System

The gram was originally intended to be equal to the mass of one cubic centimeter of pure water at 4°C. However, because of the difficulty of making exact measurement, a small error was made; and it has since been found that a kilogram of pure water occupies 1.000028 cubic decimeters. The standard for the kilogram is a platinum-iridium cylinder, called the International Prototype Kilogram, which is kept at the International Bureau of Weights and Measures in France.

Metric ton (t)	1000 kg	1.1023 tons*

* Short tons. A metric ton is equivalent to .9842 long ton.

English System

The English System is complicated by the existence of three different kinds of weight: avoirdupois weight, used for common purposes; troy weight, used for weighing gold, silver, etc.; and apothecaries weight, used for making up medical prescriptions.

The British Imperial Pound (avoirdupois) is defined as the mass of a pure platinum cylinder kept by the Standards Department of the Board of Trade. In the United States, the pound (avoirdupois) is defined in terms of the kilogram, using as a standard the U. S. Prototype Kilogram. According to this definition, the pound is equal to .4535924277 kilogram, making it infinitesimally smaller than the British Imperial Pound.

UNITS OF CAPACITY

Metric System

The liter is a secondary unit of capacity defined as the volume occupied by one kilogram of pure water at 4°C. It was intended that the liter should exactly equal one cubic decimeter, but as an error was made in measurement, has since been found to equal 1.000028 cubic decimeters.

English System

In Great Britain, the standard unit of capacity for measuring both liquid and dry commodities is the British Imperial Gallon. It is defined as the volume of ten pounds of pure water at 62°F and contains 277.418 cubic inches. The bushel is defined as eight gallons (2218.192 cubic inches).

In the United States, there are two separate standards. The unit for measuring liquids is the gallon, which is defined as 231 cubic inches; the unit for measuring dry commodities is the bushel, which is defined as 2150.42 cubic inches.

Miscellaneous

Speed per second acquired by falling body:  $v = 32t$ , in which  $t$  is the time in seconds.

Distance in feet traveled by falling body:  $d = 16t^2$ , in which  $t$  is the time in seconds.

Speed of sound in feet per second through any given temperature of air:

$$V = \frac{1087\sqrt{273+t}}{16.52}, \text{ in which } t \text{ is the temperature Centigrade.}$$

Cost per hour of operation of electrical device:  $C = \frac{Wtc}{1000}$ , in which  $W$  is the number of watts,  $t$  the time in hours, and  $c$  the cost per kilowatt-hour.

Conversion of matter into energy (Einstein's Theorem):  $E = mc^2$ , in which  $E$  is the energy in ergs,  $m$  the mass of the matter in grams, and  $c$  the speed of light in centimeters per second. ( $c^2 = 9 \cdot 10^{20}$ ).

Abbreviations

The National Bureau of Standards recommends that the period be omitted after all abbreviations of units unless the abbreviation forms an English word, and that the same abbreviation be used for both singular and plural.

FAHRENHEIT AND CENTIGRADE SCALES

Zero on the Fahrenheit scale represents the temperature produced by the mixing of equal weights of snow and common salt.

Absolute zero is theoretically the lowest possible temperature, the point at which all molecular motion would cease.

	F	C
Boiling point of water	212°	100°
Freezing point of water	32°	0°
Absolute zero	-459.6°	-273.1°

To convert Fahrenheit to Centigrade, subtract 32 and multiply by 5/9.

To convert Centigrade to Fahrenheit, multiply by 9/5 and add 32.

ROMAN NUMERALS

Roman numerals are expressed by letters of the alphabet and are rarely used today except for formality or variety.

There are three basic principles for reading Roman numerals:

1. A letter repeated once or twice repeats its value that many times. (XXX=30, CC=200, etc.).

2. One or more letters placed after another letter of greater value increases the greater value by the amount of the smaller. (VI=6, LXX=70, MCC=1200, etc.).

3. A letter placed before another letter of greater value decreases the greater value by the amount of the smaller. (IV=4, XC=90, CM=900, etc.).

Letter	Value	Letter	Value
I	1	LX	60
II	2	LXX	70
III	3	LXXX	80
IV	4	XC	90
V	5	C	100
VI	6	D	500
VII	7	M	1,000
VIII	8	V	5,000
IX	9	X	10,000
X	10	L	50,000
XX	20	C	100,000
XXX	30	D	500,000
XL	40	M	1,000,000
L	50

SIMPLE INTEREST FOR $100

To find the interest for any amount of money, move the decimal point of that amount two places to the left and multiply by the figure obtained from the table.

For figuring simple interest, the year is considered to have 360 days.

MISCELLANEOUS UNITS

AGATE: Originally a measurement of type size (5½ points). Now equal to 1/14 inch. Used in printing for measuring column length.

ANGSTROM (A or λ): .0001 micron or .0000001 mm. Used for measuring length of light waves.

ASTRONOMICAL UNIT (A.U.): 93,003,000 miles, the average distance of the earth from the sun. Used in astronomy.

BALE: A large bundle of goods. In the U. S., the approximate weight of a bale of cotton is 500 pounds. The weight varies in other countries.

BARREL (bbl): For liquids, 31½ gallons or 7326.5 cubic inches. For dry commodities, except cranberries: 105 dry quarts or 7056 cubic inches. For cranberries: 5826 cubic inches.

BOARD FOOT (fbm): 144 cubic inches (12 in. x 12 in. x 1 in.). Used for lumber.

BOLT: 40 yards. Used for measuring cloth.

CABLE: About 100 fathoms or 600 feet. Used for measuring lengths of cable.

CARAT (c): 200 milligrams or 3.086 grains troy. Originally the weight of a seed of the carob tree in the Mediterranean region. Used for weighing precious stones. Also a measure of the purity of gold alloy, indicating how many parts out of 24 are pure. Eighteen carat gold, for example, is ¾ pure.

CHAIN (ch): a chain 66 feet or one-tenth of a furlong in length, divided into 100 parts called links. One mile is equal to 80 chains. Used in surveying and sometimes called Gunter's chain.

CUBIT: 18 inches or 45.72 cm. Derived from distance between elbow and tip of middle finger.

ELL, ENGLISH: 1¼ yards or 1/32 bolt. Used for measuring cloth.

FATHOM (fath): 6 feet or 1.8288 m. Derived from the distance to which a man can stretch his arms. Used for measuring cables and depths of water.

FREIGHT TON (also called MEASURE-MENT TON): 40 cubic feet of merchandise. Used for cargo freight.

GREAT GROSS: 12 gross or 1728.

GROSS: 12 dozen or 144.

HAND: 4 inches or 10.16 cm. Derived from the width of the hand. Used for measuring the height of horses at withers.

HOGSHEAD (hhd): 2 liquid barrels or 14,653 cubic inches.

HORSEPOWER: The power needed to lift 33,000 pounds a distance of one foot in one minute (about 1½ times the power an average horse can exert). Used for measuring the power of steam engines, etc.

KNOT: Not a distance, but the rate of speed of one nautical mile per hour. Used for measuring speed of ships.

LEAGUE: Rather indefinite and varying measure, but usually estimated at 3 miles in English-speaking countries.

LIGHT-YEAR: 5,880,000,000,000 miles, the distance light travels in a year at the rate of 186,272 miles per second. (If an astronomical unit were represented by one inch, a light-year would be represented by about one mile.) Used for measurements in interstellar space.

LINK: One-hundredth of a chain or 7.92 inches. Used in surveying.

MAGNUM: Two-quart bottle. Used for measuring wine, etc.

MICRON (μ): .001 millimeter. Used for scientific measurements.

MIL: .001 inch. Used for measuring size of wire. The area of a cross-section of wire is usually expressed in circular mils, a circular mil being the area of a circle one mil in diameter. A wire one inch in diameter has a cross-section area of one million circular mils.

MILLIMICRON (mμ): .001 micron or .000001 mm. Used for scientific measurements.

NAUTICAL MILE (also called GEOGRAPHICAL or SEA MILE): Equal to a minute or 1/21600 of a great circle of the earth. Length varies in different countries. In Great Britain, it is 6080 feet or 1853.2 meters, and in the United States, it is 6080.2 feet or 1853.248 meters. The International Hydrographic Bureau proposed in 1929 a length of 1852 meters or 6076.097 feet, which has been adopted by several countries.

PARSEC: Approximately 3.26 light-years or 19.2 trillion miles. Term is combination of first syllables of parallax and second, and distance is that of imaginary star when lines drawn from it to both earth and sun form a maximum angle or parallax of one second (1/3600 degree). Used for measuring interstellar distances.

PI (π): 3.14159265+. The ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter. For practical purpose, the value is used to four decimal places: 3.1416.

PICA: ½ inch or 12 points. Used in printing for measuring column width, etc.

PIPE: 2 hogsheads. Used for measuring wine and other liquids.

POINT: .013837 (approximately 1/72) inch or 1/12 pica. Used in printing for measuring type size.

QUINTAL: 100,000 grams or 220.46 pounds avoirdupois.

QUIRE: Used for measuring paper. Sometimes 24 sheets but more often 25. There are 20 quires in a ream.

REAM: Used for measuring paper. Sometimes 480 sheets, but more often 500 sheets.

SCORE: 20 units.

SPAN: 9 inches or 22.86 cm. Derived from the distance between the end of the thumb and the end of the little finger when both are outstretched.

STONE: Legally 14 pounds avoirdupois in Great Britain.

TOWNSHIP: U. S. land measurement of almost 36 square miles. The south border is 6 miles long. The east and west borders, also 6 miles long, follow the meridians, making the north border slightly less than six miles long. Used in surveying.

TUN: 252 gallons, but often larger. Used for measuring wine and other liquids.

Mean and Median

The mean, also called the average, of a series of quantities is obtained by finding the sum of the quantities and dividing it by the number of quantities. In the series 1,3,5,18,19,20,25, the mean or average is 13 —i.e., 91 divided by 7.

The median of a series is that point which so divides it that half the quantities are on one side, half on the other. In the above series, the median is 18.

The median often better expresses the common-run, since it is not, as is the mean, affected by an excessively high or low figure. In the series 1,3,4,7,55, the median of 4 is a truer expression of the common-run than is the mean of 14.

Use of proportionate quantity of drippings would add approximately 50% more thiamine and niacin and 25% more riboflavin.

NOTE: Parentheses denote imputed values. The sign ... shows that no basis could be found for imputing a value although there was some reason to believe that a measurable amount might be present.

* VALENCE is a measure of the extent to which an atom is able to combine directly with others.

† Isotopes are different forms of the same element, having the same atomic number but different atomic weights. The number of isotopes given includes only those that are stable and natural occurring, excluding those marked ††.

‡ Liquid. § Amorphous. ¶ Graphite. ** Crystalline. †† Compressed. ‡‡ Cast. §§ Exact date doubtful —Born 1193 and died 1280. ††† Have been artificially produced. *** New name adopted by International Union of Chemistry, replacing old name in parentheses. < Is less than. > Is greater than.

Figures in parentheses are tentative or theoretical.

The number of isotopes of each element is increased by discovery or by manufacture.

Inventions

- Adding machine, recording: William S. Burroughs, 1888.
- Airplane: Wilbur and Orville Wright, 1903.
- Air brake, railroad: George Westinghouse, 1868.
- Air pump: Otto von Guericke, 1650.
- Automobile: (Product of inventions of many men. Gottlieb Daimler is frequently given credit, c.1887.)
- Bakelite: Leo H. Baekeland, 1908.
- Balloon, hot-air: Joseph and Jacques Montgolfier, 1783.
- Barometer: Evangelista Torricelli, 1643.
- Camera, Kodak: George Eastman, 1888.
- Carburetor, spray: Charles E. Duryea, 1892.
- Cellophane: J. E. Brandenberger, 1912.
- Celluloid: John W. Hyatt, 1870.
- Clock, pendulum: Christian Huygens, 1656.
- Converter, Bessemer: William Kelly, 1851. (Patent bought by Sir Henry Bessemer, who made a similar invention in 1856.)
- Cotton gin: Eli Whitney, 1793.
- Cyanide: Nikodem Caro and Adolf Frank, 1905.
- Cyclotron: Ernest O. Lawrence, 1931.
- Daguerreotype process: Louis J. M. Daguerre, 1839.
- Diesel engine: Rudolf Diesel, 1897.
- Dynamite: Alfred B. Nobel, 1862.
- Dynamo: Michael Faraday, 1831.
- Dynamo, industrial: Zénobe Gramme, 1872.
- Electromagnet: William Sturgeon, 1823.
- Electroplating: Luigi Brugnatelli, 1805.
- Elevator, passenger: Elisha G. Otis, 1857.
- Elevator safety device: Elisha G. Otis, 1852.
- Engine, high-speed internal-combustion: Gottlieb Daimler, 1885.
- Filament, tungsten: Irving Langmuir, 1915.
- Flying shuttle: John Kay, 1733.
- Food preservation, hermetically sealed: François Appert, 1804.
- Fountain pen: Lewis E. Waterman, 1884. (First successful one.)
- Frequency modulation (FM): Edwin H. Armstrong, 1933.
- Guncotton: Christian Schönbein, 1845.
- Gyrocompass: Elmer A. Sperry, 1905.
- Gyroscope: Léon Foucault, 1852.
- Helicopter: Louis C. Bréguet, 1909.
- Hydroplane: Glenn H. Curtiss, 1911.
- Lamp, electric incandescent: (Inventor uncertain; Thomas A. Edison, who made a lamp in 1879, is sometimes credited.)
- Lens, bifocal: Benjamin Franklin, c.1760.
- Lightning rod: Benjamin Franklin, 1752.
- Linotype machine: Ottmar Mergenthaler, 1884.
- Lithography: Aloys Senefelder, 1796.
- Machine gun: Richard J. Gatling, 1861.
- Match, friction: John Walker, 1827.
- Mercury-vapor lamp: Peter C. Hewitt, 1912.
- Microscope, compound: Zacharias Janssen, 1590.
- Microscope, electron: Vladimir Zworykin et al., 1939.
- Miner's safety lamp: Sir Humphry Davy, 1815.
- Monotype machine: Tolbert Lanston, 1887.
- Motion pictures: Thomas A. Edison, 1893.
- Motion pictures, sound: (Product of various inventions. First picture with synchronized musical score: Don Juan, Warner Bros., 1926. First picture with spoken dialogue: The Jazz Singer, Warner Bros., 1927.)
- Motor, A-C: Nikola Tesla, 1892.
- Ophthalmoscope: Hermann von Helmholtz, 1851.
- Phonograph: Thomas A. Edison, 1877.
- Photography, color: Gabriel Lippmann, 1891.
- Power loom: Edmund Cartwright, 1785.
- Printing, movable-type: Johann Gutenberg (?), c.1440.
- Printing press, rotary: Richard Hoe, 1847.
- Radio: (Product of various inventions. First practical system of wireless telegraphy: Guglielmo Marconi, 1895.)
- Radio telephone: Lee De Forest, 1906.
- Radio tube, diode: Sir John Ambrose Fleming, 1904.
- Radio tube, triode: Lee De Forest, 1906.
- Rayon: Sir Joseph Swan, 1883.
- Reaper: Cyrus McCormick, 1834.
- Revolver: Samuel Colt, 1835.
- Rifle, automatic: John M. Browning, 1918.
- Rubber, vulcanized: Ch. Goodyear, 1839.
- Screw propeller: John Ericsson, 1837.
- Self-starter, automobile: Charles F. Kettering, 1911.
- Sewing machine: Elias Howe, 1846.
- Spinning frame: Sir Richard Arkwright, 1769.
- Spinning jenny: James Hargreaves, 1764.
- Spinning mule: Samuel Crompton, 1779.
- Steamboat: Robert Fulton, 1807. (First commercially successful one in U. S.)
- Steam engine: James Watt, 1765. (First practical one.)
- Tank, military: Sir Ernest Swinton, 1914.

The Races of Mankind

by PROFESSOR WILTON MARION KROGMAN
Graduate School of Medicine, University of Pennsylvania

Classification of Man into groups called "races" rests upon the basic fact that all peoples belong to the same genus and species, Homo sapiens. This is important to keep in mind, for it implies that all peoples are much more alike than different.

Scientists classify Man by using a number of physical traits, most of them based upon observation rather than upon precise measurement (blood-groups are an exception). Examples of these are stature and head-form (determined by a breadth/length ratio), skin color, hair color, form and texture, eye color, nose shape, mouth form, shape of face with special reference to cheekbones. Other criteria, such as arm and leg proportions, are more specialized. Two things are noteworthy: (1) most physical traits are external; (2) physical traits are so variable that a single trait has virtually no diagnostic value.

We may define a race as a sub-group of Mankind more or less set apart by a heritable combination of physical traits.

There are three, possibly four, great aggregates of races, usually called stocks: Caucasoid, Mongoloid, Negroid, and Archaic Caucasoid (or Australoid). The first three are often referred to as "White," "Yellow," and "Black." This is not really correct; peoples of North-Central India are Caucasoids, yet their skin color is brown to dark brown; certain tribes of Northeast Africa are Negroids, yet their skin color is light brown to brown. Variability also may be seen in stature: the tallest people in the world are found in Denmark and the Scottish Highlands, in East Africa, and in southernmost South America—respectively Caucasoid, Negroid, and Mongoloid. It must be re-emphasized that not one or two traits, but an aggregate of traits, of genetic origin, provides the only valid method of setting up stock or racial classification.

Caucasoids are the peoples of Europe, the adjacent shores of North Africa, and of Asia Minor and the northern half of India. The following races belong to the Caucasoid stock: Nordic, or Northwest European, Alpine or Central European, Mediterranean or Southwest European, Baltic or Northeast European, Danic or Southeast European, Armenoid in western Asia Minor, and Indic (often called Hindu) in North-Central India. These races are not, of course, absolutely limited to those geographical areas. For example, the Mediterranean race is found also in North Africa, especially Egypt, and in Asia Minor, where it is represented by the Bedouin Arabs of Arabia. Other Caucasoid peoples are the Magyars, the Finns, and the Lapps, who show traces of Mongoloid mixtures, especially the last.

The Negroids are the peoples of Africa and Oceania, termed respectively the African Negroids and the Oceanic Negroids. The following African Negroid races are commonly recognized: Forest or West African or "True" Negro in West Africa, Sudanic in Central Africa, Nilotic in East Africa, Hamitic in Northeast and North Africa, Bantu (better: Bantu-speaking) in South Africa, and Bushman-Hottentot in the Kalahari Desert of South Africa. The Oceanic Negroids are commonly called Melanesian or Papuan, and are found chiefly in Borneo, New Caledonia, the Solomons, the Hebrides and Fiji.

Of special interest among Negroids are Pygmies, who average about four feet in stature. They are found in Africa in the Congo region, in the Ituri Forest, and in Oceania on the Andaman Islands, the Malay Peninsula, the Philippines, and Borneo.

The Mongoloids are basically the peoples of Asia, but are also in the Western Hemisphere as the American Indians, and are represented in Malaysia and in Oceania. The Mongoloids are usually divided into the following races: Sinic of China and Japan, Palearctic of Siberia, Turkic and Tungic or Mongolic of Central Asia, and Malayan of Malaysia. In the Western Hemisphere they are found as Eskimos and the Indians of the Americas. In Polynesia, i.e., in Samoa, Tonga, Hawaii and west to Easter Island, the Mongoloid stock is a basic element, with some Caucasoid and some Negroid (Melanesian?) admixture.

The Archaic Caucasoids are found in Australia as the Australian aborigines and in Japan as the Ainu. They may possibly be an element in Melanesia and in Ceylon and South India, e.g., the Toda, the Veddā, and other tribes.

This is a brief survey of the "stocks" and "races" of the world. There is much intermixing and some overlapping. This leads to two very important biological observations: (1) there are no pure races; (2) there are no superior or inferior races. We know from history that all peoples, upon contact, have crossed their genetically based physical traits. We know from human anatomy that in fundamental structure all peoples are identical.

As far as biological Man is concerned, what he is, is related to his cultural environment, rather than to any innate (or inherited) ability or aptitude. There is no "German race," only a German nationality; there is no "Jewish race," only a Jewish socio-religious community; there is no "Aryan race," only an Aryan language; there is no "master race," only a political bombast!

RELIGION

Principal Religions of the World

Source: Encyclopædia Britannica.

Statistics of the world's religions are only very rough approximations. Aside from Christianity, few religions, if any, attempt to keep statistical records; and even Protestants and Catholics employ different methods of counting members. All persons of whatever age who have received baptism in the Catholic Church are counted as members, while in most Protestant Churches only those who "join" the church are numbered. The compiling of statistics is further complicated by the fact that in China one may be at the same time a Confucian, a Taoist and a Buddhist. In Japan, one may be both a Buddhist and a Shintoist.

Baptist

American Baptist Association.—A group of Independent Missionary Baptist Churches, mainly in the South, Southwest and Southeast, organized into an association in 1905. Members (1951): 286,691.

American Baptist Convention.—The early historical local independency of Baptist churches in America tended to impede the formation of any general organization until in 1814 a General Missionary Convention was formed to permit Baptists to express themselves in terms of missionary activities. In 1845, the state conventions in the South withdrew to organize the Southern Baptist Convention. In 1907, the Northern Baptist Convention was organized, a delegated body under whose direction the many agencies of the Baptists in the North and West now operate. In May, 1950, the name was changed to the American Baptist Convention. Members (1952): 1,557,816.

Free Will Baptists.—A body of Arminian Baptists, organized in 1787 by Benjamin Randall in New Hampshire. Members (1953): 425,000.

General Baptists.—An Arminian group of Baptists, organized in 1607 and transplanted to the Colonies in 1714. It died down in the East but was revived in the Midwest in 1823 under Rev. Benoni Stinson. Members (1953): 52,382.

National Baptist Convention, U. S. A., Inc.—The older and parent convention of Negro Baptists. This body is to be distinguished from the National Baptist Convention of America, usually referred to as the "unincorporated" body. Members (1953): 4,526,847.

National Baptist Convention of America.—This is a body usually referred to as the "unincorporated" convention, not to be confused with the "incorporated" National Baptist Convention, U. S. A., Inc., from which this body withdrew. Organized in 1895. Members (1953): 2,606,510.

National Baptist Evangelical Life and Soul Saving Assembly of U. S. A.—Organized in 1921 by A. A. Banks, Sr., as a charitable, educational, and evangelical organization. Members (1951): 57,674.

National Primitive Baptist Convention of the U. S. A.—A group of Negro Baptists opposed to all forms of church organization. Members (1952): 80,000.

North American Baptist Association.—Organized 1950 in Little Rock, Ark., as the result of a division in the American Baptist Association. In theology these churches are militantly fundamentalist. Members (1953): 160,000.

Primitive Baptists.—A large group of Baptists, largely through the South, who are opposed to all centralization, to modern missionary societies, and to Sunday schools. They are sometimes called "anti-missionary" Baptists. Members (1950): 72,000.

Southern Baptist Convention.—In 1845, Southern Baptists withdrew from the General Missionary Convention over the question of slavery and other matters and formed the Southern Baptist Convention. Members (1953): 7,883,708.

The United Free Will Baptist Church.—A body which set up its organization in 1901. Though ecclesiastically distinct, they are in close relations with the Free Will Baptists. Members (1952): 100,000.

Catholic and Orthodox

Armenian Apostolic Orthodox Church of America.—The American branch of the Ancient Church of Armenia. Established in the U. S. in 1889. Diocesan organization under the jurisdiction of the Holy See of Etchmiadzin, Armenia, U.S.S.R. Members (1951): 130,000.

The American Carpatho-Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic Church.—This church is a self-governing diocese in communion with the Ecumenical Patriarchate of Constantinople. On Sept. 19, 1938, the late Patriarch Benjamin I canonized the diocese in the name of the Orthodox Church of Christ. Members (1953): 75,000.

Greek Archdiocese of North and South America.—Greek-speaking Orthodox Christians have had parishes in the U. S. for the last seventy years. These were first under the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan of Athens and later under the Patriarchate of Constantinople. Political changes in Europe have been reflected in this country and have brought difficulties in all branches of the Orthodox Church. In 1931, a general convention held in New York City under the presidency of Archbishop Athenagoras brought a large measure of unity and order. Members (1953): 1,000,000.

North American Old Roman Catholic Church.—This body is identical with the Roman Catholic Church in worship, faith, etc., but differs in discipline. It was received into union with the Eastern Orthodox Church by the Archbishop of Beirut in 1911 and by the Orthodox Patriarch of Alexandria in 1912. Members (1953): 85,500.

Polish National Catholic Church of America.—After long dissatisfaction with Roman Catholic Administration in many Polish parishes, this group was organized in 1904. Members (1951): 265,879.

The Roman Catholic Church.—The largest single group of Christians in the U. S., the Roman Catholic Church is under the spiritual leadership of Pope Pius XII. This group dates back to the priests who accompanied Columbus on his second voyage to the New World. A settlement, later discontinued, was made at St. Augustine, Fla. The continuous history of this Church in the colonies began at St. Mary's in 1634, in Maryland. Members (1953): 31,476,261.

Rumanian Orthodox Episcopate of America.—This body of Eastern Orthodox Christians of Rumanian descent is under the spiritual supervision and canonical jurisdiction of the Bishop of the Rumanian Orthodox Church of North and South America. Members (1953): 50,000.

The Russian Orthodox Church Outside Russia.—Organized in 1920 to unite the missions and parishes of the Russian Orthodox Church outside of Russia. Members (1951): 55,000.

The Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic Church of North America.—The Russian Orthodox Catholic Church entered Alaska in 1792. In 1872, its headquarters were moved from Sitka to San Francisco and, in 1905, to New York. It administers churches in the U. S., Canada, Alaska, Aleutian Is., South America and Japan. Members (1953): 440,000.

Serbian Eastern Orthodox Church.—This body of the Eastern Orthodox Church has its own diocese and is under jurisdiction of the Serbian Patriarchate (Yugoslavia). Members (1953): 100,000.

Syrian Antiochian Orthodox Church.—This body is a division of the Orthodox Church which is under the jurisdiction of the Patriarch of Antioch. It is a member of the Federation of Orthodox Greek Catholic Churches in America. Members (1953): 100,000.

Ukrainian Orthodox Church of U.S.A.—This church was organized in the U. S. in 1919. Members (1953): 71,000.

Lutheran

American Lutheran Church.—This Church is a constituent body of the American Lutheran Conference. It is itself the result of the merger in 1930 of the Evangelical Lutheran Joint Synod of Ohio and Other States (org. 1918), the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Iowa and Other States (org. 1854), and the Lutheran Synod of Buffalo (org. 1845). Members (1952): 767,261.

Augustana Evangelical Lutheran Church.—This group, whose constituency originally was of Swedish extraction, is a member of the American Lutheran Conference and is also a participating body in the National Lutheran Council. Organized in 1860. Members (1953): 493,085.

Evangelical Lutheran Church.—In 1917 the United Norwegian Church, the Norwegian Synod and the Hauge Synod united under the name, Norwegian Lutheran Church of America. In 1930 this group became a constituent part of the American Lutheran Conference. The new name, The Evangelical Lutheran Church, was adopted at its General Convention in 1946. Members (1952): 888,634.

The Evangelical Lutheran Joint Synod of Wisconsin and Other States.—This group, a constituent part of the Synodical Conference, was organized in Wisconsin in 1850. Members (1952): 316,839.

Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod.—This group, the largest constituent part of the Synodical Conference, was organized in 1847, holds to an unwavering confessionalism and is the leader in the conservative group among the Lutherans. Members (1953): 1,850,100.

Lutheran Free Church.—This body was organized in 1897 as the result of differences of opinion in the United Norwegian Church over control of the Augsburg Seminary. It became a constituent part of the American Lutheran Conference in 1930. Members (1953): 65,904.

United Lutheran Church in America.—This group dates back to the Ministerium of Pennsylvania, organized in 1748, and beyond that to early colonial days. It represents the union of the General Synod, General Council, and United Synod of the South in 1918. Members (1953): 2,061,004.

Methodist

African Methodist Episcopal Church.—This group was formed in Philadelphia in 1816 and extended throughout the South after the Civil War. Members (1951): 1,166,301.

African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church.—This group was organized in 1796, coming out of the John Street Methodist Church, New York. Members (1952): 760,153.

Colored Methodist Episcopal Church.—In 1870, the General Conference of the M.E. Church, South, approved the request of its colored membership for the formation of their conferences into a separate body. Members (1951): 392,167.

Free Methodist Church of North America.—This body, organized in 1860, grew out of a movement in the Genesee Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church towards a more original Methodism. Members (1953): 51,952.

The Methodist Church.—In April, 1939, the Uniting Conference forming The Methodist Church was held by representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Protestant Church. The Methodist Church in the United States originated with the efforts of John and Charles Wesley, leaders of the revival movement in England in the eighteenth century. Methodist emigrants from Ireland planted Methodism in America about 1760. In 1771 Francis Asbury, one of Wesley's preachers, later a Bishop, landed in Philadelphia. The Methodist Episcopal Church was organized in 1784-85. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, dated from 1846, the separation from the Methodist Episcopal Church having taken place over the slavery issue. The Methodist Protestant Church dated from 1830, and was organized over the issue of lay representation. Members (1953): 9,151,524.

Presbyterian

Cumberland Presbyterian Church.—In 1806, a presbytery (Cumberland) of the Presbyterian Church was dissolved by the Synod of Kentucky on account of its attitude toward revivalism. Members of the presbytery organized as an independent body in 1810 and became the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. When this body attempted to reunite with the Presbyterian Church in 1906, a minority preferred to continue as an independent church as above. Members (1953): 83,307.

Presbyterian Church in the U. S.—This group is the branch of the Presbyterian Church which separated from the main body at the time of the Civil War. It is often called the "Southern" Presbyterian Church. Members (1953): 756,866.

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.—This group, distinguished by its representative form of government and its Calvinistic theology, appeared among the earliest colonists of America. Its first church was established about 1640. Members (1953): 2,492,504.

United Presbyterian Church of North America.—This group dates back to the Reformed Presbyterian (Covenanter) Church (1643) and the Associate Presbyterian (Seceder) Church (1733), both of Scotland.

These two groups appeared in America in 1774 and 1753 respectively. They united and became the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church in 1782. A minority, however, continued as the Associate Presbyterian Church. In 1858 the two groups united and became the United Presbyterian Church. Members (1953): 228,718.

Others
